PREFACE

The ADAM HAWKES FAMILY ASSOCIATION was founded over one hundred years ago with the express purpose of gathering and publishing a genealogy of the descendants of Adam Hawkes. Now, three hundred and fifty years after the arrival of the immigrant ancestor in America, it is deemed expedient to present all facts now known for the first six generations, albeit some lines admittedly need to be perfected. However, intense effort has been expended to give as accurate and complete a record as possible, showing the source of information, and adding clues for further search.

For those unaccustomed to genealogical numbering systems, the following information may help. Each of the family groups presented has an Arabic number and identifying information: e.g., 2 John^{2} (Adam^{1}) indicating that the second family presented is that of John, the son of Adam of the first generation. This is followed by birth, death and marriage information for John and his wife (wives). Then comes narrative material including such items as occupation, military service, land transactions, and probate records if found. The children are then listed in chronological order, indicated by small Roman numerals; where a male child is carried on further, his Arabic numer immediately precedes the Roman numeral, giving a quick reference to that number in later position in the book. Under the Roman numerals, and further indented, are the grandchildren, preceded by Arabic numbers, and with surname indicated.

The author wishes to acknowledge with deepest gratitude all those cousins who have helped in so many ways in the compilation of materials for the book over the past twenty years. Of special notice is the contribution of Mrs. Susan Hawkes Cook who has been indefatigable in her assistance in record searching and typing services during the actual preparation of the book. May the expressed thanks to her be symbolic of thanks to all others for their generosity.

Written records for the family have been found in widely divergent areas including public records such as town and state vital records, church and cemetery records, probate and land records, and also private records including Bible records, family letters, etc. Much helpful material has come from the New England Register, the Essex Institute Historical Collections, and publications of the Society of Mayflower Descendants, as well as printed genealogies of many allied families. Of particular help in nineteenth century records was the manuscript of Dr. John Milton Hawks, compiled about 1875-1905 now in the manuscript collection of the New England Historic Genealogical Society; he knew and corresponded with many then living, who could give information not otherwise available as families migrated to distant places. Also the unpublished but carefully documented family records compiled by Phyllis Archambault circa 1930-1940 and her genealogical correspondence in the files of the Society have proved fine source material. The writings of Nathan Mortimer Hawkes of Saugus reveal much of the history of the local scene. Bradley Hawkes Patterson, ADAM HAWKES, HIS LIFE AND TIMES, 1957 focuses on the first generation.

A word regarding the various spellings of the name HAWKES may be helpful. An attempt has been made to use the exact spelling found in each instance, and the reader should bear in mind that seventeenth century spelling was not standardized. HAWKE-HAWKS-HAWKES may be interchangeable. In general the families remaining in Essex County, Massachusetts or migrating to Maine used HAWKES while those migrating to Worcester County and westward to New York State and beyond tended to use HAWKS. However, there have been individual variations. Other spellings appear, such as HOAKES, HAUKES, etc., but are not common.

Some confusion may exist as to the use of the terms Lynn and Saugus. To clarify: Settlement in the area south of Salem, near the Saugus River, began in 1629. The name Saugus was given to the entire area, but on 20 November 1637, according to the Court Record, "Saugust is called Lin." Only one section, or Parish, retained the name Saugus, and the lands of Adam Hawkes were located in the north part of that Parish. In 1644, part of Lynn became part of the new town of Reading. On 17 February 1815 Saugus the West Parish of Lynn became a separate town, following the example of Lynnfield to its north.

BAPTISMAL RECORD OF ADAM HAWKE, PARISH RECORDS FOR 1605
ST. ANDREWS CHURCH HINGHAM, NORFOLK, ENGLAND

ENGLISH BEGINNINGS

Adam Hawke, son of John Hawke, was baptized 26 January 1605 at St. Andrews Church, Hingham, Norfolk, England, according to the Parish Register there. An older brother Stephen, son of John Hawke, had been baptized there on 5 December 1602. The parish register was started in 1600, and it contains no record of other children of this family. The marriage of John Hawke and Mary Cowper is recorded on 27 January 1612. This may possibly be a second marriage of the father of Adam and Stephen, although no death is recorded for their mother; or perhaps it is the marriage of an older brother, born before the parish register was started, or born elsewhere. There is no further mention of this family in the register or other records in the Parish Chest, and the muster rolls of the parish, indicating military service, do not include the names of Adam or Stephen. However, Charles Edward Banks in his Topographical Dictionary lists Adam Hawkes as coming from Hingham, Norfolk, England to America in 1630 with the Winthrop Fleet. (He errs in stating that Adam settled in Hingham, Massachusetts as did so many who came from the old Hingham). It appears that Adam emigrated as a single man, age 25. On the fly leaf of John Winthrop's Journal, March 29-July 8, 1630, a partial list of the male passengers includes the surname Hawke, without given name, and the surname Hawkes, also without given name. These are believed to be Adam Hawkes of Saugus and his brother John who settled first at Dorchester, Massachusetts, then Windsor, Connecticut, and finally Hadley, Massachusetts. There seems also to be a close connection with Matthew Hawke who was of Cambridge, England, married Margaret Nelson at Ipswich, Suffolk, England and emigrated with her to Hingham, Massachusetts in 1638.

Adam Hawke was the first infant to be baptized by the newly installed Rector of St. Andrews, Robert Peck, who had strong Puritanical leanings. The ancient baptismal font is no longer in use but in the church one can still see "a wooden ball, the only remnant of an ancient Font cover" (Hingham and St. Andrew's Church, by M. E. Lonsdale, page 11). A brief history of the Old Ship Church in Hingham, Massachusetts states "the Christening Bowl was made before 1600 and probably came to the New World with the first Hinghamites." Possibly it was brought by Robert Peck when he fled from the English Church authorities, emigrating to Hingham, Massachusetts with the majority of the parishioners of St. Andrews in 1638. A pamphlet from St. Andrews "Hingham Parish Church: Norfolk" England (1978) states: "the present font was introduced in 1858: the bowl of the original one is lost without trace, but its shaft is in the Cohasset Church, a dau. church to Hingham in Massachusetts." One can imagine that these three parts account for the font from which the infant Adam was bap., a few days after birth, on a cold winter's day in the unheated highvaulted 14th century stone church!

Although further details of the early life of Adam Hawke are lacking, it is helpful to learn something of the times and the place in which he lived, especially with regard to the happenings within the Parish Church, which must have influenced him greatly, particularly with regard to his decision to leave the land in 1630. Hingham was a small town of ancient origin located 97 miles NE of London, in Norfolk County in that part of England formerly known as East Anglia. It lies about 14 miles WSW of the shire town, Norwich. It was a small agricultural community with its Market Place and Fair Grounds, surrounded by lush fields of various crops, and its population even in 1969 was but 1314. Over the centuries there had been many changes in the ethnic makeup of East Anglia area. Early, the Celts had made settlements atop hills, later fortified for protection against the invading Romans. Norfolk and Suffolk were heavily invaded by the Viking Norsemen. By the 5th century AD England began to be divided into Counties or Kingdoms. In the 11th century descendants of the Norsemen who had settled in nearby parts of France, subsequently named Normandy, crossed the channel under the leadership of William the Conqueror to defeat the Saxon King Harold in October 1066. This was the beginning of taxation and bureaucracy. In the following generation, through a combination of annihilation and inter-marriage, one-half of the English population had Norman blood, and in one additional generation, three-fourths. There was other immigration, including Italian, French, Spanish, Dutch, etc. During the 16th century, in Elizabethan times, many Huguenots and Walloons came the short distance across the North Sea to East Anglia from the lowlands of the continent to Protestant England, escaping thus from the religious persecutions in their homelands. By 1587 there were 4,679 Dutch and Walloons in Norwich alone! (Ref.: Robert M. Bartlett's "The Pilgrim Way")

From "Historic Norwich" by Jarrold & Sons, Ltd. Norwich 1976, we learn the following: "The great city of Norwich, the capitol of Norfolk and once second only to London in importance, was founded by the Saxons, who traveled up the River Wensum and settled here when their boats could go no further. Gradually this settlement grew, following two tracks left by the Romans, until England was conquered by the Normans in 1066. The conquerors and the conquered quickly became united and Norwich, which by now was dominated by its Norman castle, continued to grow, and in 1404 it was granted the status of a city. Weaving was the main industry here and Norwich really gained prominence with the introduction of Flemish cloth weavers in the reign of Edward III; this was the true beginning of the cloth industry in England." Many of the places which may have been seen, and surely were heard of, by our Adam Hawkes are still extant in Norwich, and worthy of visitation. Dominating all is the great Norman Cathedral, started in 1096 by Herbert de Losinga, formerly a Prior in Normandy. As Norfolk had no suitable building stone, it was brought by boat from Caen, Normandy, and a canal, later filled in, was constructed from the Wensum to the Cathedral site. This great Cathedral has the second highest spire in all of England, exceded only by that at Salisbury. In addition to the Priory, there was also a Benedictine Monastery, built to accomodate 60 monks. In 1539, under Henry VIII, after 400 years of existence, the Priory was dissolved and was re-established as a secular cathedral; the monastic buildings suffered greatly after the Dissolution, some being destroyed while others were converted for different uses. Also still present is Norwich Castle, built by the Normans with forced Saxon labor, to keep their kingdom in subjugation. Early inns and meetingplaces, such as the Maid's Head Hotel and the "Adam and Eve" are still in operation. Located at the center of a great agricultural area, Norwich has for many centuries been an important market town; Norwich Market Place to-day remains one of the largest and finest of its kind in England. The Guildhall built ca. 1410 is extant. Several museums shelter various antiquities illustrating the background and history of East Anglia.

Of special note is the plaque near the cathedral commemorating Kett's Rebellion, one of the most exciting incidents in the history of Norwich. In 1549 Robert Kett and his bro. led a mob protesting against the enclosure of land in Wymondham, a town between Norwich and Hingham, and pronounced as "Windham." They threw down the fences locally and then, growing confident, marched on Norwich itself. They first camped on Mousehold Heath. Their grievances were mainly agricultural and their demands moderate. When they were refused, they stormed and took the city, holding it until they were defeated by the king's forces and their leaders were hanged. (Ref.: "Historic Norwich" by Jarrold & Sons). Robert Kett is considered to be one of Norwich's national heroes, along with such others as Lord Nelson, Joseph John Gurney and his sister Elizabeth Fry of Quaker fame, and Jeremiah Coleman, the manufacturer of mustard. There are many churches of interest in addition to the Cathedral, from one of which Robert Browne launched his reform and laid down the principles of the Separatist Movement, his followers being called Brownists. John Robinson, later to become pastor of the Plymouth Pilgrims during their sojourn at Leyden in Holland, was minister of St. Andrews Church, Norwich, and two of his children were baptized there. He was there little more than a year, due to his Puritanical leanings, about 1604; the church still stands.

From M. E. Londale's "Hingham in History", printed by E C Business Services, Wymondham, Norfolk, we learn that the Town of Hingham was Crown property for at least 300 years, and later an ancient demesne, retaining its many privileges; tenants could seek justice in the King's Court rather than the Manor Court; they could not be forced to give service outside their Manor; and they were free from payment of tolls on their goods, both buying and selling. In 925 AD the Town belonged to King Athelstan, grandson of Alfred the Great, and consisted of 60 caracutes of land, a caracute being the amount of land a team of oxen could plough in one season. In the 12th century, King Stephen granted the Manor to a grandson of Hubert de Rye who came to England with William the Conqueror. Through marriage and inheritance it passed along until Sir Thomas, Lord Morley, born 1392 became Lord of the Manor of Hingham. He fought with Henry V at the Battle of Agincourt, and after his death he was buried on the north side of the channel of St. Andrews Church, his tomb being one of its greatest treasurers. This church where Adam Hawkes was baptized is one of great antiquity; it is known that Remigius de Hethersette, Rector from 1316 to 1359 was responsible for its construction. The remains of an apse of a late Saxon or early Norman church was later discovered on the same site. It is described as "a splendid and consistent example of the decorated period of architecture." The west tower stands 120 feet high. The glass in the east window is medieval but was not placed there until the 19th century. There is a peal of eight bells in the tower, the oldest of which was cast in 1450.

Such was the church at which Robert Peck was installed only weeks before he officiated at the baptism of Adam Hawke. He was a staunch believer in those principles for which William Carman had died. "In March 1556 William Carman, late of Hingham, was taken to the Lollards' Pit without Bishopgate in the city of Norwich, and was there burned at the stake for being an obstinate heretic who had in his possession a Bible, a testament and three psalters in the English tongue. He was one of many in the diocese of Norwich to die in the flames rather than abjure the Reformed Faith" (Lonsdale). And so during the years of Adam's childhood, Robert Peck lived by his faith. In 1615 he was in very serious trouble with the ecclesiastical authorities for holding Conventicles (prayer meetings in private houses) which was unlawful, and for his Puritanical teachings. He was beloved by his parishioners as "a learned, godly, loveing, peaceable and painfull minister, a man so unblameable in his life and doctrine that no just offence in either could ever be found", while his enemies considered him "a man of violent and schismatical spirit." When the Bishop of Norfolk ordered that the Sanctuary floor be raised, some of Peck's parishioners went into the church later, removed the altar rails, chopped them up and threw them into the Parson's Pit. They then lowered the mount at the east end of the church, restoring the altar to its former level. Peck continued in disfavor with the church authorities until in 1636 he was excommunicated, and in 1638 he fled from old Hingham with the majority of his parishioners to Hingham in Massachusetts. Growing up in such an environment of religious turmoil must have influenced Adam Hawkes' readiness to emigrate to America when he learned of the plans for the Winthrop Fleet.

Before leaving the subject of early English beginnings, let us give brief general consideration to the family name in England prior to 1630, even though no connection has been made with the emigrant, Adam Hawkes. As with other names of early origin, one finds Hawkes spelled in many variations, due to the fact that spelling was not standardized. According to Charles W. Bardsley's "Dictionary of English and Welsh Surnames", Hawkes may have originated to describe one of "fierce or wild disposition", or may be interpreted as "son of Harry or Henry." The name Houk appears as early as 1066 in Winton, Hampshire. An Adam de Halk is listed on the 1260 Assize Rolls of Cambridgeshire. Thomas, Adam and Johannes (John) Hawke appear in 1379. John Hawk was Town Clerk of Norwich, Norfolk from 1433-6, and again from 1442-6. Thomas Hawkes, gentleman, one of the retainers of John, Earl of Oxford, at Earls Coln Priory, in 1555, refused to comply with the rites of the Roman Catholic Church in reference to the baptism of his children. He was brought to Coggshall in Essex and martyred on June 10th of that year. The event is vividly described in John Foxe's "Book of Martyrs". In December 1604 John Haukes appears on a list of Popish Recusants (those who refused to conform to the Anglican Church) in the Visitation of Barningham, Diocese of Norwich. Several of the Adam Hawkes Family Association members have attempted research with the hope of finding Adam's English ancestry, without success; the name has been found in widely separated parts of England. Effort has been concentrated mainly in Norfolk. The need for search continues.

While Hawkes families have been found in various parts of England in its early history, it has also been suggested that Adam was of Huguenot ancestry. There has however been no documentation for this theory, beyond the fact that he lived in a part of England where there were a large number of persons who had fled to England from the lowlands of Europe to escape religious persecution, and that his brother John settled in Western Massachusetts among several families of known Huguenot origin. Neither has proof been found that Adam was entitled to any of the Hawkes coats-of-arms as described in Burke's Peerage.

JOURNEY TO AMERICA

As previously stated, the inside flyleaf of John Winthrop's Sea Journal March 29-July 8, 1630, in a partial list of passengers, includes the names Hawke, and Hawkes, without given names. All evidence points to their being Adam Hawkes, later of Charlestown and then Saugus, Massachusetts, and his brother John who went first to Dorchester, then Windsor, Connecticut and finally Hadley, Massachusetts. There is no known complete list of passengers either on the Arbella or other ships in the fleet. But since Adam Hawkes was surely a participant in the journey, some background information about it is here given.

The early period of discovery and exploration on the North American continent was naturally followed by attempts at colonization. In the reign of King James I there had been the settlement of the Virginia Colony and the Plimoth Colony as well as other efforts to settle at a number of places along the New England coast. There had already been the start of settlement, and some preparations for the coming of Winthrop's Fleet in 1630. Roger Conant had tried, unsuccessfully, to settle Cape Ann under a charter dated January 1, 1623/4. With him was the Reverend John Lyford who went to Virginia, urging others to accompany him. Conant removed to Naumkeag, now Salem, where in 1628 he was joined by John Endicott and others through the efforts of Reverend John White of Dorset. He had a grant from the Council for New England, and arrived in the Abigail in June 1628. John Endicott was Governor of the plantation while Matthew Cradock in England was first Governor of the colony. Six vessels came, bringing 80 women, 26 children, 300 men, and 140 head of cattle. Interesting details of their hardships and sufferings can be read in "An Historic Sketch of Salem, 1626-1789" by Charles Osgood and H. M. Batchelder, 1879. Back in England, the Reverend John White of Dorchester, Dorset, an Anglican minister dissatisfied with the church and wishing to "purify" it, had appealed to a group of London businessmen who visualized economic opportunity in America.

After Endicott's departure, efforts continued as religious and economic conditions worsened in England. A group of men met at Cambridge in July 1629 and decided to promote a Great Emigration to New England in March 1630. One of them, John Winthrop, met with the company in October of that year and shortly after was elected Governor. Tremendous preparations were made for the journey, beginning with the insistence of John Winthrop that there be no governing council in England after the fleet sailed. Recruitment of passengers reached some who were motivated mainly by religious unrest, and many yeomen whose families for generations had been tenant farmers under landlords who drained them of all their earnings. They were seeking the right to profit by their labor and were attracted by the opportunity to receive grants of land of many acres, as well as to avoid the increasing tax burden imposed by Charles I. Word about New England came mostly through their local clergy, some of whom were becoming more and more dissatisfied with the established church. There were, however, only two clergymen who actually sailed with the fleet: the Reverend John Wilson of Windsor, Berkshire and the Reverend George Phillips of Boxford, Berks, both close to Groton, home of John Winthrop. Many who came sympathized with the Puritans, but there were also many who were loyal to the English Church and never joined the Puritan Church or became freemen; their chief incentives were 1) freedom from burdensom taxes, and 2) land ownership. The royal charter was granted to the parent corporation in England in March 1629, legally titling it the "Massachusetts Bay Company", most opportune since, but eight days later Charles I announced he would dissolve Parliament and govern without it! (Reference: Bicentennial 1975 Ed, p. 118). Ten of the Company purchased the "Eagle" and chartered her to the Company, renaming her "Arbella" in honor of Lady Arbella, wife of Isaac Johnson, Esq. and daughter of Thomas, 3d, Earl of Lincoln. The Lady and Mr. Johnson both were passengers aboard the Arbella, along with various other notables. Also chartered for the trip were: Ambrose, Jewel, Talbot, Charles, Mayflower, William and Francis, Hopewell, Whale, Success, and Trial. The Talbot had made the trip the previous year with Endicott's group. So the word went out and when the fleet departed, it was the "largest number of Englishmen sailing as passengers in one body across the Atlantic up to that date". (Banks: The Winthrop Fleet 24). The total number has been estimated as high as 1,000; however, John Winthrop himself placed the number at 700 in a letter he wrote to his wife, just before departure. (Banks: 46). By the end of the year, 200 of these were to die of disease, 100 would return to England or Ireland, and others would move north of the Bay Colony to join settlers on the Piscatequa River in New Hampshire. Winthrop planned to sail from London, with a great rendezvous of the fleet off the Cowes, Isle of Wight, where passengers might embark and final loading of goods be made. The majority of the 700 passengers came from East Anglia, comprising Norfolk, Suffolk, Essex and Cambridge, a region of flat rich plains, quiet villages, winding streams, and many historic treasures of Roman and Norman England. In addition, there were the large crews, necessary for handling these square-rigged vessels. The Arbella, a ship of 350 tons, Captain Peter Milbourne Master, had a crew of 52 seamen, to sail the ship, man the guns, and fight any boarding pirates if necessary, 28 pieces of ordinance, and was about two times the tonnage of the Pilgrims' Mayflower of 1620. Three of the ships, the William and Francis, Hopewell, and Trial were loaded with goods and livestock, and carried no passengers.

Who was Governor John Winthrop, who was to lead this enterprise and to have such a great influence on the lives of so many in the years ahead? A book, "The Winthrop Family in America" by Lawrence Shaw Mayo, Boston, Massachusetts 1948 by the Massachusetts Historic Society, gives much factual information and insight into the character of the man. He was born at Edwardston, near Groton, in Suffolk, England in 1588, the only son of Adam and Ann (Browne) Winthrop and spent his early years at Groton where his enterprising grandfather had become Lord of the Manor. After his education at Trinity College, Cambridge, he was three times married; the first two wives and several infants did not survive. His first wife brought him considerable wealth. Always deeply religious, he wrote of having "an insatiable thirst for the word of God". In 1618 he married Margaret Tyndall, daughter of Sir John Tyndall of Essex, a religious and lovable young woman; his many letters to her glow with expressions of affection. The grave, sad Winthrop revealed in his portraits, the introspective conscience-tortured Puritan of his early journals now appears as a happy, healthy young married man abounding in love and tenderness for his congenial mate and children. At 30 he was well established in all ways: he was Lord of the Manor, he had a remunerative profession in the law, a good income from his tenants, in addition to his children who would inherit from their maternal grandfather. But the England he loved was changing. In June 1629 his commission as attorney of the Court of Wards and Liveries in London was taken from him. Seeing greater troubles ahead, he redirected his efforts to the tremendous project of emigration over the seas and the building of a new Colony there. Besides preparations for the Migration, he must wind up his business affairs, and would leave his wife and daughter-in-law both pregnant at the Manor, to follow later with their new-born infants after disposing of their goods and of the Manor itself.

Fortunately, John Winthrop kept a journal starting on Easter Monday March 29, 1630, so we know much that transpired on the voyage, including the course taken, the weather, and various events that occurred. There were the customary delays, and it was finally decided that four ships should set sail ahead of the rest. "A plan of consortship was arranged by which the Arbella was designated 'Admiral', the Talbot 'Vice Admiral', the Ambrose 'Rear Admiral', and the Jewel a 'Captain' in nautical ranking for the fleet." The remainder were to follow as soon as possible. Tradition suggests that Adam Hawkes may have been a passenger aboard the Arbella, although this is not documented. What a thrill it must have been to him and the others when at 10 AM on March 29th, the ship weighed anchor and set sail down the Solent for Yarmouth on the west end of the Isle of Wight, followed by the Talbot. Last farewells had been said, a gun salute given Matthew Cradock. The Reverend John Cotton, Vicar of Boston, Lincolnshire, had preached an eloquent sermon based on 2 Samuel VII-10: "Moreover I will appoint a place for my people Israel and will plant them, that they may dwell in a place of their own, and move no more; neither shall the children of wickedness afflict them any more, as before-time."

Approaching Yarmouth, they saw a very large Dutch vessel which had been bound for the East Indies but had been wrecked some two years previous while attempting to pass through the Needles. A ship returning from the Virginia Plantation soon anchored near, and her captain came aboard for several hours for an interchange of news. Then they remained at anchor off Yarmouth Castle in hopes that the other seven ships would arrive and join them. Meanwhile the very elderly Captain of Yarmouth Castle came aboard and entertained them with long tales of his many exciting experiences during many years at sea, including several years in a Spanish prison in Elizabethan times. Finally it was decided that the four ships would go on, and they were accompanied by some small vessels heading for Newfoundland. Shortly, they passed the Needles, a spectacular sight. The following day, they became alarmed by the appearance of numerous sailing ships astern, thought to be enemy vessels. Hasty preparations were made for battle; guns were loaded, decks cleared, and women and children sent below. The Captain tacked and stood by for the meeting; they turned out to be friendly vessels headed for Canada. When other ships were sighted at sea, there was always anxiety until it could be determined if they were friend or foe. The following day they passed Plymouth, Devon and later the Lizard, Cornwall. The next morning they passed the Scilly Isles and were now in the open seas, truly on their way to America!

Ships in that day were not made to carry passengers;

they were built to carry freight, and therefore had few "creature comforts." On the Arbella a few cabins were constructed, but in general the men hung the hammocks wherever they could and we may imagine what lack of privacy and primitive sanitary conditions existed. The cost of food was five pounds per person, including salt beef and salt fish, butter, cheese, peese pottage, water-grewell biskets and beer. There were no fresh vegetables. Aboard the Arbella there were 20,000 biscuits. There were also 3,500 gallons of water, but as it could not be kept sweet, there were also 10,000 gallons of beer. Financially, the passengers included four groups: 1) those who paid for their passage; 2) those who had a profession or trade and would work after arrival; 3) those who paid part and would work out the remainder after arrival at three shillings a day; and 4) indentured servants, whose passage was paid by their masters who would then receive 50 acres of land for each servant. The cost of transporting household goods was extra and so the cost of travel was very high. Medical service was another extra. There were doctors aboard in accordance with the Maritime Law, and in addition two doctors, Dr. William Gager and Dr. Richard Palsgrave were themselves emigrating to the New World. Also there were two professional military men, Captain John Underhill and Captain Daniel Patrick, employed to lead them against whatever foe they might encounter, either on the voyage or after arrival. For light they had only four lanterns and six dozen candles, and so to bed at dark. Nor was there heat, except for the woodburning stove in the galley, and it was a very cold journey, far moreso than they had anticipated, as reported by Governor Winthrop in a letter to his wife.

After they left the Scilly Isles, the seas became so rough that many became ill and it became necessary to cancel their first Sunday services at sea. Later they were to encounter numerous other storms as well as periods of calm. Spritsails were split, sails ripped, shrouds broken, and things not secured were washed overboard. Many animals, transported on the decks and badly tossed by the storms, died. But in general the fleet maintained a westerly course just north of 43° latitude passing north of the Azores and finally just south of Cape Sable, Nova Scotia. During April and all of May they continued the long voyage across the Atlantic. Along the way, punishment was meted out for wrongdoing. When it was discovered that two crewmen stole some "strong water" they were laid in bolts all night, whipped openly in the morning and kept on bread and water all day. Two young men started fighting; for this they were made to walk the deck until night with their hands tied behind them. Another, for contemptuous speech, was laid in bolts until he promised open confession. Governor Winthrop observed that the young people "gave themselves to drink hot waters very immoderately." A servant bargained with a child to sell him biscuits each day, which he in turn sold to other servants. For this, his hands were tied to a bar and a basket of stones tied around his neck for two hours. Sometimes, when the weather permitted, there was visiting between ships, and also between the Winthrop Fleet and a squadron which overlook them, bound for Quebec. In mid-ocean there was a time of great excitement when a whale swam by, spouting water.

On Sunday June 6th they first sighted land, Cape Sable. The following day in two hours they caught a large number of big codfish, which must have made a most welcome repast after the salt fish they had been eating! On arriving off the coast of Maine, they were then able to follow known landmarks along the coast. They passed Mt. Desert, Cape Porpoise, Agamenticus, Boone Island, the Isles of Shoals, were they saw several shallops fishing, and finally Cape Ann. On Saturday June 12th at 4 AM, nearing port at Salem, they set off two ordinances at a signal and sent a skiff to Master Pierce's ship which was in the harbor. Shortly after, the shallop of Isaac Allerton arrived and he came aboard to welcome them. He was headed for Pemaquid, Maine. It is to be noted that he was one of those who came on the Mayflower to Plimoth Plantation in 1620 and had become first deputy Governor of that Colony; also that two of his granddaughters were destined later to become the first and second wives of Adam Hawkes' son John. Then the ships sailed into the harbor where they were greeted by John Endicott, the temporary Governor, together with the Reverend Samuel Skelton, pastor of Salem, and Captain Levett. Many of the passengers, weary after the long sea voyage were happy to go ashore on Cape Ann and gather the fresh strawberries. The following day Miasconomo the Sagamore of Agawam and two other Indians came aboard to greet them.

On Thursday June 17th, they sailed for what is now Boston Harbor, exploring the surrounding lands for the best place to settle, after consultation with those who had come earlier. Their Charter granted them all lands from three miles south of the Charles River to three miles north of the Merrimack River, and from the Atlantic Ocean to the South Seas!! But they were to look at, and decide upon that small peninsula between the Charles and Mystic Rivers which they would name Charlestown. En route they lay at Mr. Samuel Maverick's; this was at Noddles Island (now Logan Airport). Later they returned by way of Nantascot, now Hull, arriving back at Salem the 29th of June. In the next few days the other ships in the fleet, which had been left behind in England, began arriving. It was reported that many passengers on the Success were almost starved on arrival. The Talbot had lost 14 passengers by death. The Jewel had one birth. At last, on July 6th, all had dropped anchor in Salem Harbor and the journey was at an end. Thursday the 8th was declared a day of Thanksgiving for their safe arrival. SOJOURN AT CHARLESTOWN

On arrival in America Adam Hawkes first settled in Charlestown in the Massachusetts Bay Colony, where he was a husbandman. There he m. Anne (? Brown) Hutchinson, a widow with four sons and a daughter. These children grew up in the household of Adam and Anne Hawkes, and all were named in the settlement of Adam's estate following his death. Anne may have been the sister of Nicholas Brown who settled first in Saugus and later in Reading, Massachusetts, son of Edward and Jane Lide Brown of Inkberrow, Worcestershire, England although no birth record has been found for her in the parish records of Inkberrow. Or she may have been related to one of the several people named Browne who came with the Winthrop Fleet from Hawkdon, Suffolk, England. Anne's former husband, although listed in Mormon records as William Hutchinson, may have been the Thomas Hutchinson listed by Banks as having come to Charlestown with the Winthrop Fleet from London, who became a member of the church there 1630 (#52), and then marked "dead." Anne's children by her first husband, surname Hutchinson, were: Samuel b. ca. 1617/18, Elizabeth b. 1622 (m. 1650 Isaac Hart), Edward b. ca. 1624, Thomas b. and Francis b. ca. 1630.

Prior to the fleet's arrival, preparations had been made for the new settlers, and the beginnings of a town laid out. In the summer of 1628 Ralph, Richard and William Sprague traveled 12 miles through the woods from Salem and found a hill on a small but heavily wooded peninsula, between the Mystic and Charles Rivers where there were many Indians called Aberginians, whose chief, John Sagamore, was willing for white settlers to come. One white man was already there: Thomas Walford, a smith who had a thatched and pallisadoed house part way up the hill near the Charles River. Then in June 1629 Mr. Thomas Graves, engineer, came with 100 of the Company's servants; they built the Great House for the Governor and laid out streets and two acre houselots; they started to build houses and fences. When the fleet arrived a few of the leaders were housed at the Great House, but most of the settlers set up "booths" (huts) and tents of cloth, and slept on the ground. Many were sick on arrival; others became ill; many died. Provisions were dwindling; the water supply was limited and poor. However, they proceeded to found a church and on July 30th the four founders, Governor Winthrop, Deputy Governor Dudley, Mr. Isaac Johnson, and the Reverend John Wilson subscribed to the Covenant. Nearly 100 men and women united with the church, a small proportion of all the settlers, and Adam Hawkes' name is not among them. The following month the first General Court was held and church officials were chosen. Later the Governor and most of the people moved across the river to what is now Boston because of the sickness, deaths, and especially the poor water situation. Although there were lakes and fresh water streams nearby, at that time it was believed that drinking water must come from springs, and the only spring available to them was under salt water at each high tide. So some went to settle in Watertown, others to Dorchester, etc. Budington quotes Johnson's "Wondrous Works of Providence", Chapter 17: "The grief of this people was further increased by the sore sickness which befell amongst them, so that in almost every family lamentation, mourning and woe was heard and no fresh food was to be had to cherish them; it would surely have moved the most locked up affections to tears, no doubt, had they passed from one hut to another and beheld the pitious case these people were in." It has been estimated that between April 1630 when they left England and the December following, at least 200 died. Numerous artisans, yeomen and merchants felt constrained to move off the peninsula also to improve their status. The impetus to migrate can be attributed to a variety of factors, not the least of which was connected with their exclusion from the evolving oligarchy of the new town.

Adam Hawkes continued to live in Charlestown until 1634, having married the widow, Anne Hutchinson about 1631. [She is not to be confused with the famous Anne Marbury Hutchinson, her contemporary, who was banished from the Massachusetts Bay Colony for religious reasons]. He was a husbandman who held the town offices of Cow Commissioner and Surveyor, and was called "Mister", a term denoting status. There appears no record of his becoming a freeman or a church member, although there is a record of Anne's admission to church membership on September 2, 1634. This is readily understandable because there was a small group of ruling elite who determined which persons might be admitted, and only church members were allowed to become freemen and to vote. By 1635 the oligarchy had become so powerful that over one-half the eligible men were neither church members nor enfranchized; many moved elsewhere when it was decided to limit land grants to citizens. Above all, Adam Hawkes needed land for his increasing live-stock, and the little peninsula between the Charles and the Mystic Rivers did not afford this. Also, their first child, John, b. ca. 1631 did not survive and health conditions were not conducive to the survival of further progeny. In August 1633 the twins, John and Susanna were born; later that year an epidemic of smallpox struck the Aberginians on the peninsula, and in December of that year their chief, John Sagamore, died. On January 10, 1635/6 Adam sold his four acres of planting ground at Charlestown to N. Easton and J. Sibley. The family is next heard of in Saugus, an agricultural community about eight miles to the north. THE YEARS AT SAUGUS

It is not known exactly when Adam left Charlestown for the more ample agricultural acres of Saugus or whether the family made the journey by boat up the meandering Saugus River or overland by ancient Indian trails or perhaps a rough, newly laid road. Either way, it must have been a real undertaking with his wife and two infants and five step-children as well as the livestock, the household goods, and the farm implements! He had sold his property in Charlestown in 1635 and he received land in the first division in Lynn in 1638. It seems probable that the move was close to the earlier date. In 1930 a marker was placed by the Massachusetts Bay Tercentenary Commission near the site of his first habitation at the intersection of what is now the Newburyport Turnpike and Walnut Street in North Saugus. It reads "Adam Hawkes, the first white settler in Saugus built on this site about 1630. President John Adams was his grandson." This legend must be evaluated in light of present day knowledge regarding his residence from 1630-35 in Charlestown; more clearly he was the first white man at that particular site in North Saugus as there are others recorded earlier in Saugus which was in the beginning the name for all of Lynn. Further, John Adams, President of the United States of America, may be more accurately shown to be Adam's great great great grandson. (Ref.: Commemoration address, 1972, Adam Hawkes Family Association by E. F. Smith, unpublished).

SAUGUS IN COLONIAL DAYS. ADAPTED FROM NEWHALL BY COOK AND SMITH

Adam chose a rocky knoll for the site of his first home there, later to be known as Close Hill at Hawkes Corner as it had a small field enclosed by a stone wall called a close. The Lynn Union of 27 October 1882 states, "Adam evidently had an eye to the beautiful as well as the practical when he selected this beautiful part of the country for his chosen home. The land was free from rocks, rich in soil and easy of cultivation and his immediate successors and descendants hold it still in the family name not withstanding more than two and a half centuries have passed since he first set foot on it." Another century has passed and still a small part of the original home site remains in the ownership of the Adam Hawkes Family Association and a part of the old stone wall remains. This site, though only about eight miles from the former home in Charlestown was far up the winding Saugus River with nothing beyond save the wigwams of the local Indians.

Traditions die slowly. One of these as published in an undated, yellowed news clipping says, "Adam Hawkes, founder of the family, settled on that spot in 1629 after having been given 500 acres of land by the King of England." It has been told that he was a soldier and performed some special services for the king for which he was duly rewarded. No documentary evidence has ever been produced to verify this or in fact the several claims to different coats of arms. Contrary to this is another story that Adam "filled up one of his mines on the supposition that it contained silver." According to Colonial Law, a large percentage of any silver discovered belonged automatically to the king. Historical fact on the other hand tells us the following: On the 15th of November 1637, by record of the General Court, the name Saugus was changed to Lynn in honor of the Reverend Samuel Whiting who came there from Old Lynn in Norfolk, England. A town meeting was held and Daniel Howe, Richard Walker and Henry Collins chosen a committee of three to divide the lands. The land was laid out in those parts best adapted for farming. Woodlands were reserved as common property and not divided until 69 years later. In 1638 the committee completed its task, listing proprietors and their allotments. The original book has been lost, but a copy of the first three pages is preserved in the files of the Quarterly Court at Salem, Massachusetts. On page three is "Adam Hawkes, upland, 100 acres." Also noted on page one is the name of Nicholas Browne, 210 acres, and on page three, Samuel Hutchinson, 10 acres. Samuel was the oldest of Adam's stepchildren, just old enough to claim title to property in his own right. The index to early deeds in Essex County does not appear to include 17th century transactions of land; however, we know from the probate records of Adam's estate that before his death he had increased his holdings in Saugus to over 554 acres.

FIRE

A story with three versions has been passed down; namely that shortly after Adam Hawkes built his first "cabin" on Close Hill, it burned. One has it that two infants and the black servant girl perished in the fire; another that two infants and a servant girl were the only ones there at the time and they escaped unharmed. The third is that it happened on a very cold winter's night and that several children perished in the fire but Adam and his wife and the twin babies escaped. Adam then strapped shingles onto his wife's feet as makeshift snow shoes so that the family could make their way several miles through the deep snow to the nearest place, that of Nicholas Browne, Adam's "brother-in-law." This relationship to the prosperous Brownes is explained as follows: In Volume 4, p. 32, Quarterly Court Records, Essex County, Massachusetts - at court held 2 March 1667/8 Mary Browne, aged ca. 31, deposed that "her cousin John Hawkes, being at her brother John Newhall's house..." and Thomas Browne of Lynn, age 40, deposed his "cousin John Hawkes..." The Browne Genealogy by C. H. Browne, 1907, Volume 1 states Thomas Browne, born Lynn 1628, son of Nicholas who was son of Edward and Jane Lide of Inkeberrow, Worcester, England married Mary Newhall, daughter of Thomas of Lynn. Lewis's History of Lynn, 1865, p. 482 states Thomas Newhall had son John born England and daughter Mary. Mary married Thomas Browne. John Hawkes above called cousin was the son of Adam and Mrs. Ann Hutchinson Hawkes. Again Quarterly Court Records, Essex County, Volume 4, p. 94 and 95; Nicholas Browne and Adam Hawkes who were among the early planters pitched their tents considerably to the NW of Mr. Saddler; p. 119, Nicholas Browne was a farmer and lived on Walnut Street in Saugus. He removed to Reading in 1644. Son Thomas remained in Lynn and died in 1963. From this it has been concluded that either Adam's wife Anne was the sister of Nicholas Browne or Adam had a sister who was the wife of Nicholas Browne or Adam Hawkes and Nicholas Browne both married sisters of the Newhall family.

IRON WORKS

Adam built a second house near the site of the first and there he lived and prospered as an industrious husbandman, being referred to as "Mister", a term of prestige among the local people. A few years later in 1642 work began on Hammersmith, the Saugus Iron Works, just downstream from Adam's farm. It flourished until 1688. In the beginning Adam joined his townsmen in welcoming the effort. An iron master's house, iron furnace and forge were built, being financed in London, and with initial capitalization of 1,000 pounds to produce pig iron in bars and shapes and also pots, kettles, etc. "A mighty help to us that want iron work, chains, plow irons, scythes and bolts." It was Adam Hawkes who supplied the company of undertakers with the first iron ore coming from his two iron bogs. In addition, he supplied timbers used to support the furnace and forge and immense oak beams and rafters for the peaked tudor style iron master's house (still standing 1980). Then, over the years there were many disputes between Adam Hawkes and the iron works as the iron master ordered the damming of the river in order to provide increased water power resulting also in the flooding of the Hawkes' lands. All matters large and small were routinely taken to the Quarterly Court for settlement in those days and we find Adam repeatedly going to court successfully to collect for his damages. Adam complained that he had "much corn spoiled, English grass damaged, wells flooded and tobacco lands injured. (Ref.: Saugus, Massachusetts by Elijah P. Robinson, 1869, p. 22). In 1646 he collected for damage to three acres; in 1651 - six acres flooded; in 1652 ten acres. From the Essex Institute Historical Collection, Volume 18, p. 247 we read in 1652 Mr. Gifford was authorized to raise the dam by which ten acres additional of Adam Hawkes' land was overflowed for which privilege the company was at first adjudged to pay 200 cords of wood and 16 loads of hay annually, but this rent, appearing to be too great an amount, it was reduced to seven pounds and finally to ten shillings annually. "Quite a falling off from the original and showing either an error of judgement or great cupidity, for the price of ten acres of land in those days ought not to have been one-half the price of the first annual rent." (The Iron Works). Then in June 1660 the records of the Salem Quarterly Court were as follows:

> Mr. Adam Haukes v. Mr. William Paine and company of undertakers of the Iron works of Lynn and Mr. Oliver Purchass, their agent. Trespass. For damming their waters so high, which was the cause of floating his lands, well and bridge, to his great damage for several years. Verdict for defendant.
> Agreement, dated, October 31, 1652, between John Giffard, agent for the company of the Iron works, and Adam Hawks: Whereas there was an agreement made, 20: 4: 1651, by Captain Robert Caine and Captain William Hawthorne, arbitrators for said Giffard and Hawks, in consideration of certain damages that said Hawks had received, from the first erecting of the said works by raising a dam for the works, whereby he had lost the use of three acres in one place and since then, six acres, besides the overflowing of certain feeding lands, for all of which said Hawks was allowed eight pounds; now in consideration of that causeway which should be made him good by the company with 16 loads of hay to be allowed him yearly, besides 200 cords of wood granted said Hawks to cut and carry away; also in consideration of ten acres of ground now sold by Hawks to the Iron company, lying near the works among those ten acre lots which lay near Thomas Errington's house, and in full satisfaction for any future damage that may occur, the said Giffard conveyed to said Hawks, that fresh marsh called Farmer Dextor's marsh, which adjoined the house of Adam Hawks, which was in full satisfaction of the arbitration. It was further agreed that for the future the water should be so kept that it would not ascend the top of the upper flood gates in the pond or higher than a foot and a half from the top of the great rock that lay in the middle of the pond before the gates. Wit: John Jarviss and Daniel Salmon.

Joseph Jencks, Sr., deposed that he spoke with Adam Hawks about the damage and the latter told him that he had satisfaction from the old company, etc. Sworn in court.

Thomas Browne deposed. Sworn in court.

Daniel Salmon, aged about 50 years, deposed that, being servant to the Iron works under Mr. Geffards, he laid out the marsh given to Mr. Hauckes for damage, and Hauckes was with him at the time, etc. Sworn in court.

Henorey Lenard, aged about 50 years, Nicklis Pinnion and John Vinton deposed that ever since Mr. Porchas > came to the works, the water had been kept low by his order, so low that it caused a great deal of difference between the workmen and the water drawer; that the waste had been dug wider and deeper since he came, etc. Sworn in court.

> Francis Hutchinson deposed that the flowage of water over Mr. Adam Hauckes' land made the ground unfit for use; that the bridge in front of the house, which was the usual passage to and from the house for both man and beast, a herd of cattle passing over twice each day, had been broken by the water and the timbers raised up; that the cattle were in danger of falling in and breaking their legs; that sometimes it had been repaired, and then the water would break it so that horses going over had fallen in, etc. Sworn in court.

In the 20th century when the old Iron Works had long faced oblivion, a descendant of Adam Hawkes, Miss Louise Hawkes, led a successful effort to prevent Henry Ford from removing the old Iron Master's house to Dearborn, Michigan and then inspired the American Steel Companies to a restoration of the old Iron Works which has now become a national historic site.

PUBLIC AFFAIRS

Apparently, Adam Hawkes never took the freeman's oath as did his brother John and Matthew Hawke of Hingham. This is not surprising as only a minority of men in the early Massachusetts Bay Colony did so. In Charlestown he served as cow commissioner and surveyor. Ever busy with his crops and husbandry, he nevertheless found some time for public affairs. On 24 February 1657 at a town meeting, "It was voted that Nahant should be laid out in planting lotts and every householder should have equal in the dividing of it, noe man more than another and every person to clear his lott of wood in six years and he or they that do not clear their lotts of the wood shall pay 50 shillings for the town's use. Alsoe every householder is to have his and their lotts for seaven years and it is to be laid down for a pasture for the town and in the seventh everyone that hath improved his lott by planting shall then, that is in the seventh year, sow their lott with English corne and in every acre of land as they improve they shall with their English corne sow one bushel of English hay seed and soe proportionable to all the land that is improved a bushel of hay seed to one acre of land and it is to be remembered that no person is to raise any kind of building at all and for the laying out of this land there is chosen Francis Ingalls, Henry Collins, James Axee, Adam Hawckes, Lieut. Thomas Marshall, John Hathorne and Andrew Mansfield. (Massachusetts Archives). On 4 June 1639 Adam Hawkes had been referred to the court at Salem from the Quarterly Court held at Boston according to records of the Governor and company of the Massachusetts Bay in New England printed by order of the legislature 1853. On 27 September 1655 Mr. Adam Hawkes served on the jury of trials, court held at Salem. 28 June 1659, he served on the jury again at Salem. On 27 September 1660 Mr. Hawkes served on the grand jury, Essex County. Note: no other person on the jury was called "Mister."

ADDITIONAL COURT RECORDS

From the Essex Institute Collection, Volume 1, p. 914, 290 and Volume 2, p. 193, 210, 290 and 433 is the following: On the 25th of July 1638 John Harrison and four others v. Mr. John Howes and Mr. Hawkes, Mr. Adam Hauke v. Mr. Bridges (Nicholas Browne constable) case of trespass. Indebtedness to farmer Hawkes for keeping cattle of Edward Richards, witness William Clark and Mary his wife. Court at Salem 26 April 1650 - Adam Hawkes v. Mr. William Paine and company. BRICK AND FIREBACK

Two items still in existence are a brick and fireback and they are of historic interest. Old records state the second house of Adam Hawkes was followed by a third and when the third house was taken down in 1872, one of the bricks found in the chimney had the date 1601, believed to have been written in the soft clay when the brick was made in England. Bricks from the first house had been used in this chimney. The remaining bricks were laid into the fourth house on the farm of Richard Hawkes of the sixth generation from Adam. The second relic is an iron fireback about two feet square, weighing about 100 pounds on which is molded the British arms of Adam's time. The supporters appear similar to those of the British arms, the lion and the unicorn, the shield is the shield of James 1. Instead of a crown there are a visor and bars of helmet surmounting the shield and lion. The casting was made to lay in masonry as the edge is depressed and rough. At one time descendants came to believe this was Adam Hawkes' coat of arms but nothing was ever proven. It is not definitely known whether the fireback was brought from England or cast in the 17th century at the Saugus Iron Works. Firebacks were common in Europe for several centuries and were made and used in America by the late 17th century. They had two functions: to radiate heat into the room and to protect the back wall of the fireplace. In 1978 the compiler of this work was in England and mentioned the brick and fireback to a prominent genealogist there, Sir Cecil R. Humphery-Smith, whose immediate response was "a brick and a fireback is the symbol for a customs officer. Your ancestor must have been that." However, further research revealed nothing additional. Hingham, Norfolk was an inland agricultural town. We surmise the 1601 may have been to mark the year of marriage of Adam's father John as his older brother Stephen was baptized in 1602 at the parish church in Hingham, Norfolk. A second genealogist informed us that customs records of that early date would not reveal names of persons but only the goods imported.

BEES

Another story of interest is that of the bees. In the inventory of Adam's estate there is proof that he kept bees. An old Adam Hawkes Family Association record says, "In telling of his visit to the Hawkes farm in 1873 Mr. William Goold of Windham, Maine, a descendant, being told of the ancient colony which had occupied a large hive made of straw in the old English fashion for 80 years and had not swarmed for one-half that time but a modern one was substituted and the colony died the first winter."

MILITARY SERVICE

There is no record of any military service performed by Adam Hawkes although he probably participated in a local "train band" judging by items in the inventory of his estate which included three swords, a pistol and a drum, muskets and fouling pieces.

RELIGION

Adam apparently was not active in affairs of the church. Baptized in the Church of England, Episcopal, in a parish with definite nonconformist leanings and not invited into membership of the Puritan Church of Charlestown as was his wife, it follows that he may not have been motivated to be active in the Congregational Trinitarian Church of Lynn where the Reverend Samuel Whiting was pastor from 1636 to 1679. Mention has been made that the Reverend Whiting preached the funeral sermon. Lynn Reporter 30 July 1880 states "Adam's neighbor wrote in his quaint diary: ask Mr. Whiting his mind on Indian damnation. Ask him if sinn and sinn whether or no; praise his discourse at Goodman Hawkes his funeral!" It is likely that burial was in the graveyard by the church some three miles from Adam's home though no cemetery record and no gravestone confirms this. Some have called him a Quaker but erroneously as the earliest recorded mention of the Society of Friends in his family was that of his youngest grandson, Ebenezer Hawkes, and the local Society of Friends was not founded until 1677, after the death of Adam. The inventory of his estate did include the listing of a Bible.

SECOND MARRIAGE

Adam's first wife Anne was several years his senior and when she died in 1669 his children and stepchildren were all grown and married with families of their own or had moved away and so in June he married again. Adam, now 65, took for his bride the young Sarah Hooper who was just 19. Sarah was born in that part of Reading which is now Wakefield. She was the oldest living child of 11 born to William Hooper, a weaver, who had come in the James from London in 1635 at the age of 18. He had acquired considerable land and was a church member and freeman. The following year their daughter Sarah was born on 1 June 1671 and in less than a year after that Adam Hawkes died.

ESTATE OF ADAM HAWKES OF LYNN

The estate of Adam is probated at Essex County Probate Court, File #12899. Mention has been made in the literature of a will; however, he appears actually to have d. intestate as the heirs agreed upon a settlement for division of the estate and administration was granted to his son John.

SARAH THE WIDOW

The young widowed mother requested that her stepson John Hawkes be named by the court to administer the estate of her deceased husband. The stepson was 17 years her senior. He had been married, widowed, married again and had six children. Sarah's stepdaughter Susannah Hawkes, twin of John, was likewise 17 years older than she and had married William Cogswell and removed to Ipswich where she had ten children. In Reading Sarah's father had married a second time and his 11th child had been born. In the division of the estate Sarah and her daughter were provided for as above and on this document the widow Sarah placed her mark 27 March 1672. In such circumstances is it surprising that Sarah embarked on a second marriage? A year after the death of Adam Hawkes she married Samuel Wardwell (Wardle, Wardell). He was the son of Thomas and Elizabeth Wardwell of Andover, Massachusetts. They married 9 January 1672/3. Samuel, born 16 May 1643, was 28 at the time of the marriage and a carpenter. They lived in Andover and had the following children: Marcy or Mary, b. 1673 who m. John Wright; Elizabeth, b. and d. 1675; Samuel, b. 1676; William, b. 1679; Eliakim, b. 1687; Rebecca, b. 10 September 1691, m. Ezekial Osgood. Note: these children not Hawkes descendants. Soon after the birth of the sixth child the witchcraft delusion started in the neighboring town of Salem Village, now Danvers. Quickly the hysteria spread to Andover and Samuel Wardwell, who apparently had been a good citizen, husband, and father, was accused and brought to trial. At his first examination he confessed but soon after, he "belyed" himself and begged forgiveness. He declared he would hold to the truth even though it cost him his life. Two indictments were found against him: one, that he maliciously and feloniously practiced and exercised at and in the town of Boxford on the 15th of August against Martha Sprague, single, two, twenty years earlier he made a covenant with the Devill, promising to honor, worship, and believe him, contrary to the statute of King James I. Thomas Chandler testified he had often heard Samuel Wardwell tell young girls their fortunes. Ephraim Foster said Sam Wardwell had predicted correctly the sex of Ephraim's children, five girls and one boy, and that he was indeed in league with the Devil. Samuel Wardwell confessed that many years previously he did covenant with the Devil, being melancholy due to unrequited love on the part of a young maid named Barker. He said he had seen the appearance of a man who called himself Prince of the Air who promised him he would live comfortably and be Captain provided he would honor him which he promised to do. Samuel said he had covenanted with the Devil until he be 60 years old and was now about 40. His wife Saeah and daughter Mary testified against him but Mary later retracted. To pay for the trial the government took from them five cows, one heifer, nine hogs, six acres of corn, etc. The jury found Samuel guilty and on Thursday, September 22, 1692, he was hanged on Gallows Hill between Salem and Peabody. According to tradition eight were hanged that day, the last ever to be hanged for witchcraft in the Massachusetts Bay Colony. Sarah, now 42, found herself again a widow with her youngest child just one year old, but her troubles grew greater for she too was now accused of witchcraft. She was tried and found guilty at the new Court of Trials, 2 January 1693. The jury's verdict was: guilty of covenanting with the Devil, also guilty of felony by witchcraft. Along with others she was condemned and imprisoned for a long time but finally set free on the general jail delivery. During this time she provided her own sustenance through her son Samuel, according to custom. Meanwhile, provision was made as follows by the selectmen of Andover for her young children who were found "in a suffering condition." Samuel, age 17, placed for one year with John Ballard, his uncle, who had married Sarah's sister now deceased; William, age 14, was placed with Corporal Samuel Frye to the age of 21 as apprentice to learn the trade of weaver; Eliakim, age 9, placed with Daniel Poor to the age of 21; Elizabeth, 2, placed with John Stevens until 18, clothing to be provided. Mary Wardwell, age 20, was accused of witchcraft; found not guilty. She married John Wright. Sarah Hawkes, daughter of Adam Hawkes and Sarah, now in her 22nd year married 1 February 1693 Francis Johnson of Andover whose mother was also among those accused. As for Sarah the widow, we have found no record of what became of her after her release. Vital records of several Essex County towns have revealed no date or place of death. This is not surprising as usually rites of burial were denied those found guilty of witchcraft; however, the impoverished and miserable conditions she endured in a prison dungeon must have contributed to her death within the next few years, possibly before age 50. It is known in 1711, some years later, her sons petitioned to have her name removed from the witchcraft list. His Excellency, Governor Dudley of Massachusetts Bay Colony ordered payment of damages to the heirs and this included 36 pounds, 16 shillings. As is well known, exoneration for all did not come until the 20th century. (References: History of Andover by Bailey, Witchcraft in Salem Village 1692 by W. S. Nevins, and Essex County Court Records).

John grew to manhood on the ever increasing farm of his father in North Saugus along with his four Hutchinson stepbrothers, his stepsister Elizabeth Hutchinson, and his twin sister Susannah Hawkes. He is the only known son of Adam Hawkes to grow to manhood and leave issue. When he married, in both instances he chose brides who were descendants of Mayflower passengers as follows: Isaac Allerton, married on the 4th of Nov. 1611 at Leyden, Holland, Mary Norris of Newbury, England. They had among their children Remember, born about 1614 at Leyden who later married at Salem, MA, Moses Maverick of Marblehead and had daughter Rebecca; also Mary Allerton, born June 1616 at Leyden who married Thomas Cushman in 1636. Remember Allerton, age about 6 and Mary Allerton

- - age 4, left Leyden, in 1620, with their parents and brother Bartholomew on The Speedwell. They later left England aboard the Mayflower, arriving at Plymouth in December of that year; thus all descendants of John Hawkes by either his first or his second marriage may claim Mayflower ancestry. (Reference: Mayflower Index). Those who are descended from John Hawkes through his first wife Rebecca Maverick have also the following lineage which is traced through Mary Gye born about 1580 who married the Reverend John Maverick, grandfather of Rebecca Maverick Hawkes. Mary Gye's heritage may be traced directly back to two Magna Charta Barons - (1) The Baron William Malet and (2) Baron Saher De Quincy. Still earlier generations include King Henry the First of England, William the Conqueror, and Charlemagne King of France 768-814, crowned Holy Roman Emperor the 25th of Dec. 800. The same year that John Hawkes m. Rebecca Maverick he found himself involved in a civil lawsuit at the Ipswich Quarterly Court. "John Hakes v. Mr. Joseph Cooke for taking away a young mare, verdict for the defendant. Edward Collins affirmed concerning the mare colt in controversy that he believed that the colt Mr. Cooke brought from Isaac Hart (husband of Elizabeth Hutchinson Hart, John Hawkes' step-sister) of Reading was the same that deponent sold him about two years since with its dam. His servants affirmed the same. Dated at Medford, Sept. 26, 1658. Thomas Hutchinson testified that his father-in-law Adam Haukes gave this colt to his son John Hakes." Sworn in Ipswich Court, Mar. 30, 1658. At court at Cambridge Mr. Joseph Cooke of Cambridge v. Isaac Hart of Reading, case about stray colt, verdict for plaintiff. A writ dated Mar. 20, 1658, served by Thomas Hartson, constable who attached the black colt, house, orchard, and two acres of land adjoining. Copies of depositions on file

He had seen Hart's mare with Farmer Greene's horses. Mr. Goold's man was Thomas Gerrish, age 18. John Browne, age 27, testified that Isaac Hart said the colt was in partnership between John Hawkes of Lynn and himself and he bought a half part of his brother John Hawkes that at the end of seven years they were to divide the increase and she was brought to Cambridge and the rest of the horses were left at Goodman Peirson's house which they did before him and his wife and John Dawes. Sworn 1st month, 1658 before Edward Johnson, Commissioner of Woburn.

During the next few years the court records of Essex Co. shows that John served several times as a jury man. In 1664 he was on the Jury of Trials and in 1672 once again a jury man; then in 1681 he served on the Grand Jury. During this time period two depositions at Essex Court are important in showing the relationship between the Adam Hawkes' family, the Nicholas Brown family and the Newhall family as follows: 2 Mar. 1667/8 Thomas Browne of Lynn, about 40 years of age, deposed that his "cousin John Hawkes", etc., etc. Then at Court at Ipswich 29 Mar. 1670 Mary Browne, age about 31 deposed that "her cousin John Hawkes being at her brother John Newhall's house", etc. Further court record shows that at Salem Court on 18 Dec. 1677 John Hawkes was among those who took the oath of fidelity before Samuel Ward, Commissioner of Marblehead. The list of those who were sworn by Captain Thomas Marshall of Lynn according to general court order, who took the oath at a general meeting 26 Feb. 1677 by their several squadrons of tithing men and constables: in Thomas Bancroft's squadron were Francis Hutchinson, John Hawkes, Moses Hawkes, Thomas Hutchinson and others. (Records and Files of the Quarterly Courts of Essex County, Vols. 1 through 8 inclusive).

Late the following year John's first wife Rebecca died in childbirth, leaving him with an infant son who was named for his maternal grandfather, Moses Maverick. This child was to inherit from both of his grandfathers. In the informal will of Moses Maverick at Essex Co. Probate he mentions "Moses Hawkes, the child of my deceased daughter Rebecca." About a year and a half later John married Sarah Cushman, first cousin of his deceased wife, and they had four boys and four girls; however, in November of 1675 the three older daughters were to die of scarlet fever.

In 1675, John Hawcks is among those soldiers from Lynn who were listed as privates at the Narragansett Fort in the war against King Philip. (Soldiers in King Philip's War by George Madison Bodge, 1896, p. 406). On December 9, 1675, six companies of foot and one troop of horse were mustered on Dedham Plain under the command of Major Samuel Appleton of Ipswich. They marched to Attleboro, thence to Seekonk, and through Providence to Wickford. After several days scouting, they marched on the 18th to Pettisquamscott and met the Connecticut forces under Major Treat. That night according to Bodge, the whole army was forced to bivouac in the open air in a driving snow storm during the night as the garrison house there had been burned by the Indians a few days before. Then with the MA division leading, they marched through rough country and deepening snow, each man carrying his arms and rations until they arrived at the Great Narragansett Swamp where the Indians had gathered in large numbers, built a strong fortification and were awaiting the attack. The scene of the battle was in what is now West Kingston, RI. The Indians had fortified an island of several acres in the midst of a large swamp which however was frozen over. The Indian fort was palisadoed and nearly impregnable but for the fact that it was not yet quite complete. The ensuing battle was fierce and the losses many. Carnage was great; the Indians were defeated and this marked the final decisive battle of King Philip's War. When the soldiers mustered on Dedham Plain December 10, 1675, they were promised in the name of the Governor that "if they played the man, took the fort, and drove the enemy out of the Narrangansett country which is their great seat, they should have a gratuity of land besides their wages." In spite of their valiant services the soldiers were not repaid and on June 4, 1685, a petition was presented to the General Court, then at Boston. The petition was for the grant of land which had been promised and among the signers from Lynn was John Hawcks. (Bodge, p. 406) An article in the Citizen and Banner, Wakefield, MA, Saturday, April 6, 1878, further confirms the relationship between Adam Hawkes of Saugus and his family to that of John Hawkes of Hadley and his descendants and also of the Browne family of Reading, MA. It is entitled The Guardian Angel, a story by Captain Jeremiah Swain in 1676. Captain Swain had been at Hadley during the fighting there. The article states, "During the latter part of the summer 1676 Captain Swain returned to Reading. There were many people in the eastern towns who had relatives in the Connecticut Valley. Some of these were neighbors of Captain Swain. Among them, John Hawkes who lived at what is now Hawkes Corner in North Saugus and Esquire John Browne who resigned the captaincy that Swain might be elected. These two men each about 45 years of age, were the cousins of John and Eleazer Hawkes of Hadley who were somewhat younger, being respectively 33 and 21 years of age. The above named gentlemen came to inquire of Captain Swain about their Hadley cousins. He was able to tell Hawkes and Browne that their Hadley cousins were good men and true; that John Hawkes had been one of 25 men to rush to the deliverance of Hatfield when it was attacked a few days before the eastern soldiers reached Hadley and had particularly distinguished himself by a deed of strategy and daring that he and his younger brother Eleazer also bore an honorable part in the disastrous Falls Fight of May 18. Then Captain Swain told the story of the Hadley attack. On this visit to Captain Swain's home there accompanied John Hawkes his second son, Adam, then a boy of 14 years of age. As Captain Swain told his story to his neighbors Goodman John Hawkes of Lynn and Esquire John Browne of Reading, this lad Adam sat by drinking in every word and now one of his descendants gives it forth. Then follows a very lengthy report of the experiences of Captain Swain at Hadley. In it he states that John Hawkes, the son of "your lamented and worthy uncle" came to him bringing word that his widowed mother desired to see him so that she might hold converse concerning her deceased husband's kinsmen in Lynn and Reading, which Captain Swain was glad to gratify. He then went to the house of Mistress Elizabeth Hawkes who greeted him with joy and invited him to make her house his quarters while he should remain at Hadley. Mistress Elizabeth recounted to him the story of her family's sojourn at Windsor, CT for 24 years and the reasons why they removed to Hadley with the people of Weathersfield, which people took their minister with them. He then went on to tell the well-known story of how the regicide appeared during the fighting at Hadley; inspired the man and their leaders and brought about a great victory for the colonists and defeat for the Indians.

John was involved in several land transactions among which were the following noticed at Essex County Registry of Deeds and Essex Co. Probate.

John Hawkes continued to be harassed by the damming up of the Saugus River ordered by the owners of the Iron Works down stream. He was dependent upon the livestock and crops of his farm to maintain his ever growing family.

Apparently he did not have the faith that his father had in the court procedure. Adam had won several cases against the Iron Works; however, the situation was somewhat different at this time. The Iron Works had been sold to Samuel Appleton, Jr., who now lived down stream from the Hawkes farm. Samuel Appleton's father was Major Samuel Appleton, Esquire under whom John Hawkes had fought in the Narrangansett War. Also, said Major Appleton was one of the judges at the Ipswich Quarterly Court, thus John apparently determined to take matters in his own hands with the following results:

Samuel Apleton, Esquire and Samuel Apleton, v. John Hawkes, Sr., and Moses Hawkes; trespass, for that John Hawkes, Sr., was the only plotter, contriver and secret manager of the cutting or breaking of the great dam at Hamersmith or the Iron Works in Lin, by sending his son Adam Hawkes and Joseph Trumbel, his reputed man, who with Moses Hawkes, his son, broke or cut down this dam which belongs to plaintiffs, about May last, by means of which the water forced through and carried away a considerable part of this dam and undermined the other so that it could not be repaired without excessive charge, if at all, whereby plaintiffs have suffered damage to their land adjoining by being much washed away, gravel cast up by the water, two bridges and much fence carried away, and by the head of water let out, their pasture and corn field were laid down to the common, the corn spoiled, the river filled up with soil so that a boat cannot come up as before, requiring them to carry what they have to transport by water a mile further than formerly, and necessitating the making of about 300 rods of fencing about the land which was fenced by the dam; dated March 22, 1682-3; signed by William Cowdrey, for the court; and served by Samuell Tarbox, constable of Lyn.

The dam was faced with stone on the water side from top to bottom and the damage was 250 li.

The damage by the water that forced through the breach consisted of several acres of land covered with gravel so that the grass cannot grow upon it, two bridges carried away, 40 rods of fence carried away, the boat way filled up, logs carried upon the marsh, all to the value of 45 li. damage. They measured the fence which must be made by reason of the pond being let out and found 240 rods which must be made a stone wall on account of the difficulty of getting fencing, at a cost of 3s. per rod. Sworn Apr. 9, 1683, before William Browne, assistant.

Those who came from Reding went to Hawkes' house and he asked them why they did not come the night before as he sat up late waiting for them and that they had begun to

Moses was the first and only child of Rebecca Maverick Hawkes who died in childbirth. The infant survived and inherited from both grandfathers, Adam Hawkes and Moses Maverick. On 26 Feb. 1677 he was among those who took the oath of fidelity, being on the list of those who were sworn by Captain Thomas Marshall of Lynn, according to the General Court order. The men took the oath at a general meeting by the several squadrons of tithing men and constables. In Ensign John Fuller's and Matthew Farrington, Senior's squad were Thomas Browne, Sr. and Thomas Browne, Jr., Joseph Browne and several Newhalls. In Thomas Bancroft's squad were John and Moses Hawkes, Francis and Thomas Hutchinson, etc. (Vol. 6, p. 400, Essex County Quarterly Court Records)

Moses did not marry until he was almost 40 when he took for his bride the 24 year old Margaret Cogswell, niece of his aunt Susannah Hawkes Cogswell of Ipswich and dau. of John and Margaret Gifford Cogswell. Margaret Gifford was the dau. of John Gifford of Lynn Iron Works whom Moses' grandfather Adam had taken to court repeatedly over the flooding of his lands. They had three sons and two daughters, the youngest born only months before Moses' death at 50 in 1709.

Essex County Deed 14:126.

This was an agreement "more expressly for ye maintaining of love, peace, and unity between ye said brethren, their heirs and assigns not withstanding any former settlement or agreements, we ye said brethren Moses Hawks and John Hawks have agreed in way of exchange both for ourselves, our heirs and successors, and do by these presents for ourselves, our heirs executors, administrators or assigns, and for a full and final settlement of bounds of our lands, we do agree as followeth." The bounds were then fully described starting with a red oak tree belonging to Isaack Letherbee's corner, the tree being marked with the initials of the two brothers. Also a pile of stones. Also mentioned is land formerly of Mr. John Gifford, deceased. Again, "that this is our full and final settlement and agreement and in testimony whereof we, ye said Moses Hawks and John Hawks have hereunto set our hands and seals this first day of April, Anno Domini 1700. Ye words "with a heap of stones" between the 13th and 14th lines from the top interlined before signing and sealing." It was then signed by the two brothers and witnessed by John Newhall and John Breade and also signed by John Hathorne, Justice of the Peace.

In 1706 the second great division of land in Lynn was made. (History of Lynn) Following his death further land records regarding Moses' estate at Essex County Registry of Deeds are: 1 June 1725 Moses Hawkes' estate from Moses Hawkes, Book 38, p. 3. Also recorded under name Margaret et al executors, Moses Hawkes, Lynn. 27 June 1728 Margaret et al, executors sold to Benjamin Potter of Lynn, Book 50, p. 226.

On 23 June 1708 there were public fasting and prayer because of the ravages of the caterpillars and canker worms on the fruit trees in the area. It is noted in the various inventories that the Hawkes farm was surrounded by orchards of apple trees.

Later that same year on December 8 Moses made his will. This is the oldest recorded will of the family now on record at Essex County Probate Court #12932. It was written for him by John Burrill but carries the original signature of Moses Hawkes. Parts are now difficult to transcribe due to fading and also the early Colonial manner of writing. It reads in general as follows: In the name of our Lord God everlasting, Amen. I Moses Hawkes of Lynn in ye county of Essex in ye Province of Massachusetts Bay in New England, being sick and weak of body yet God of his goodness affording to me my right and understanding, take this opportunity to make this my last will and testament as followeth.

Thomas was the first of the family to become a physician. He settled in Reading, originally part of Lynn, in that part which is now Wakefield. His wife is said to have been a granddaughter of Sergeant Richard Haven of Lynn who fought in King Philip's War. Her birth is not recorded but she was mentioned in her bro. Joseph's will as sister Sarah Hawkes. Joseph's will proved Mar. 1748/9 called Sarah Hawkes widow. Joseph's executors were his widow and Elkanah and Jonathan Hawkes, the sons of said Sarah Hawkes who received the remainder of Joseph's estate. (Ref.: Genealogy of Richard Haven of Lynn by Josiah Adams, 1849, Boston, p. 8, 9) Although the Essex County Probate Records show the administration of Dr. Thomas Hawkes' estate in 1722, there are records of the First Church Reading which carry the entries: 1726 Dr. Thomas Hawkes, 1728 Dr. Hawkes' widow, 1729 Dr. Hawkes' widow. It may be possible that the son Thomas was b. earlier than thought and that after his father's death he may have carried on the practice of his father. The birth dates for the several children do not appear in Lynn VR or Reading or Wakefield VR; however, the baptismal date, identical for all, is recorded in the Wakefield records as being taken from the records of the First Church of Reading.

Thomas engaged in several land transactions. On 1 Mar. 1698 he sold to Heananiah Hutchings for 130 pounds upland, part of place called Hawkes farm, bounded southerly by land of Ebenezer Hawkes and at ye east corner by a great rock called Hogg Rock, from thence ye line runs to a bridge in ye said farm and from ye bridge to a point of ye orchard on ye south side through a meadow to a heap of stones by ye brook until it comes to a marked oak and so on to a marked tree near Moses Hawkes his house, etc. Signed Thomas Hawkes. Dated 1 Mar. 1698. Witnessed by John Townsend, John Perkins, Samuel Parker. Then on 1712/3 Thomas Hawkes, yeoman, sold to his bro. Ebenezer land in Lynn. This was recorded 3 July 1724 and witnessed by Eleazer Linse and John Burrill. In 1715 Thomas sold land to Samuel Collins, land which had been laid out to him in Lynn. This was not recorded until 26 June 1729. Also on 23 Feb. 1699 he bought land in Lynn from John Hawkes et al; on 25 May 1700 Thomas et al bought from John Cogswell land in Lynn; and on 21 Aug. 1703 Thomas bought from John Cogswell et ux land in Lynn.

The History of Lynn by James R. Newhall 1865, p. 319 tells us that a small pox epidemic prevailed in New England in 1721. In Boston alone more than 800 persons d. In Lynn the Honorable John Burrill, then a councilor, d. of the dread disease on 10 Dec. at the age of 63. It was he who had drawn the will for Dr. Thomas' older bro. Moses a few years earlier. He was called one of the most eminent men that Lynn or indeed the colony ever produced. It is possible that Dr. Thomas cared for him in his last illness for it is reported then that early the following year, 1722, Dr. Thomas himself d. of smallpox. (Boston Transcript 26 Aug. 1907, #9341) The exact date of his death is not stated but his estate was presented for probate (Essex County Probate #12943) on 4 June 1722. He d. intestate. The papers of administration and bond mention Sarah, widow, and on 19 July 1722 the inventory of his estate was presented. It is headed An Inventory of the Estate of Dr. Thomas Hawkes, Late of Lynn, Deceased, taken the 15th day of June 1722. In addition to wearing apparel and household contents it includes a parcel of worsted, combs, ironing box, two looms, one sleigh, a mare, saddle, bridle and pillion, a pair of oxen, two cows, one heifer, 38 sheep, one swine with gease, one Bible with other books, doctors books, lancets (small surgical instruments for making incisions) and drugs, housing and land, several common lots. This inventory was prepared by Nathaniel Gowing, Joseph Haven and John Brintnall.

Ebenezer was the youngest of the children of John and Sarah Cushman Hawkes. He was a minor at the death of his father and on 3 Dec. 1694 he chose his father's stepbrother Francis Hutchinson of Reading to be his guardian. (Essex Probate #12911) Ebenezer grew to manhood and became a blacksmith, living on the lands of his grandfather Adam Hawkes, and in the Congregational Parish of the Parson Jeremiah Shepard who was ordained over the church at Lynn in 1680. Parson Shepard became greatly alarmed at the progress of Quakers in the area in 1694 and appointed a fast "that the spiritual plague might proceed no further." It is not known exactly at what time the first Hawkes joined the Society of Friends but it appears that it was Ebenezer who took for his second wife Sarah Bassett whose people were associated with that faith. An old story has it that a Mrs. Hawkes was favorably impressed with the doctrines of the Friends and that Parson Shepard rode up to her door on horseback and the husband, who attended Parson's Shepard's meetings came out to greet him. While shaking hands, the minister said "I wish I could shake the devil out of the family that the Quakers shook into your wife." This harsh remark is said to have offended the husband and ever after he attended the Friends' Meetings with his wife and many of his descendants continued in that faith. As Parson Shepard d. in 1720, there seems little doubt that the story relates to Ebenezer. At any rate, early mention in records of the Society of Friends shows that three of Ebenezer's children were m. in that faith. Elizabeth m. Joseph Griffin 1723, Ebenezer, Jr., m. Anna Breed 1725 and Samuel m. Philadelphia Estes in 1727. The first mention we find of Ebenezer is 9 Sept. 1732, "nothing but that he is clear." This is in reference with his declaration of intentions to marry his third wife, the widow Ruth Graves. Than at the Monthly Meeting at Boston, "Ebenezer Hawkes and Ruth Graves appeared a second time regarding their intentions. About 1720 Ebenezer moved to Marblehead, perhaps as a result of the religious tensions and possibly because of the earlier associations of the Maverick and Allerton families who had held large amounts of land in Marblehead. At any rate he became an industrious and prosperous businessman there. He was a blacksmith, an anchor maker, store keeper, a dealer in real estate and land lord there. An old account book kept by him is still extant and in good condition. From this has been written an interesting record as follows. This is a good sized book in parchment binding and on the first leaf is written Ebenezer Hawkes, Senior, his book, #4. He was a blacksmith and as traffic in those days was principally carried on by barter, men received goods for their work and of course had goods to sell. Mr. Hawkes sold "brix" and lime by the bushel, hay, Barbadoes rum by the gallon, molasses, charcoal which he burned himself. He had a farm at the Ferry and pastured the cows of the village, selling "cow rights on the Neck." He owned several houses, one a large two-story tenement house which he called "the Grate House" in which he had many tenants from the ground floor to the garret and always noted the day when they went in and that "the glass was all whole." He kept a hired man for all work and had a "negar boy Abraham" and a team for his own and other people's work. He also built and ran a windmill to grind corn, all this in addition to his regular business. The first charge in Mr. Hawkes' book is on the 20th day of the 11th month (November) 1746. He made and mended anchors and all the iron work for vessels from the ship Prince belonging to Squire Robert Hooper who from his wealth and social standing was called King Hooper, down to the fishing "jigger Flyblow" belonging to Skipper Worden. He also made all sizes of nails by hand. Ten penny nails cost nine shillings and eight pence per thousand. Shingle nails cost four shillings and eight pence lawful money. He also shod horses and made all kinds of farming tools from a plow share to a bow-pin. He was a thrifty man, collecting his dues by occasionally "sueing out an execution at Salem Court." As debt and credit, even the smallest items were kept in his book. It shows what he ate and drank. He had a long account with Wait the butcher for whom he made steel yards and marked the pounds and with Saunders the baker. Mr. Hawkes' score with the tavern keeper is amusing. Captain John Diamond kept a public house in the town, evidently a house of call for businessmen and citizens generally. With this man Hawkes had a long account of both debt and credit. The credit page was vastly more items in number, such as drams toddy, rum and sugar, mugs of flip with a biscuit in it, brandy and the like, but on settlement Diamond was always sure to owe a balance. Mr. Hawkes often noted circumstances as reminders, such as: when you rubbed out my score in chalk, drams I had to drink with Tompkins, when you waged about saying the compass, two half pints of rum when I killed my hog, cash you paid me at my house, Grant the goldsmith present. Proof of Ebenezer's three marriages is to be found in his own handwriting in this old book account book kept while in Marblehead. When the book was begun there was a fierce French and Indian War in progress. The provincial land and naval forces were in possession of Louisburg, Cape Breton. This expedition was voted in Massachusetts General Court in secret session on a petition of the Marblehead people whose fishing vessels were seized by the French cruisers. With their prey they immediately dodged into that strong hold before they could be overhauled by the armed vessels of the province. The news of Indian attacks were frequent and newspapers were few. It was at the gathering of the public house that the people learned the news. Of course the house must be patronized and this old book shows that its owner was always ready to share the expense in social drinking which was the rule, in his turn.

Ebenezer was also active in his participation in town affairs. In 1724 he was one of a committee appointed to divide the lands on the Neck at Marblehead. In 1727 he was one of those who signed a petition for the protection of Marblehead Harbor. (Essex Institute Collections, Vol. 56, p. 312) Then in 1735 Ebenezer and his oldest son Ebenezer, of Marblehead, Massachusetts, took an active and influential part in raising a colony of settlers and in getting a grant of land in the Province of Maine, then part of Massachusetts, for the use of the colony. They obtained a grant of 25,600 acres and the new settlement was named New Marblehead. The grantees living at Marblehead chose Ebenezer Hawkes, Thomas Chute and William Goodwin a committee to assist the committee appointed by the General Court of Massachusetts to lay out the township. On the 19th of April 1735 these committees held a meeting and immediately commenced their work. Sixty three 10 acre lots were surveyed and on June 27th of the same year at a meeting in Marblehead the sixty three home lots were drawn and disposed of. Of the ten acre home lots, Ebenezer drew the one numbered 60. He was allowed another ten acres and acquired by gift or purchase the 100 acre lot number 41 in the second division and a 100 acre lot number 58 in the third division. The first mill was built on Horse Beef Falls on the Presumpscot River by Ebenezer Hawkes, William Goodwin, Isaac Turner and Ebenezer Stacy. The settlement was much troubled by hostile Indians. Samuel Webber, the first school-master, was captured and carried away to Canada. The town was incorporated as Windham on 12 June 1762. In that year there were 39 families in the town. It may be of interest to note here that a town in England pronounced in the same manner but spelled Wymondham is that town immediately adjoining Hingham, Norfolk, England where the progenitor, Adam Hawkes, was bap. in St. Andrews Parish Church. Neither Ebenezer nor his son Ebenezer, Jr., who predeceased him actually moved to New Marblehead but four of the grandsons did so and a great grandson of the fifth line removed to Buxton, the town next to it. At one time there were more persons with the surname Hawkes in Windham, Maine than of any other surname and most of these were staunch followers of the Society of Friends.

The Essex County Registry of Deeds contains records of a tremendous number of transactions of property in which Ebenezer participated. Abstracts of some are helpful because of dates or signatures or other information as follows:

Ebenezer was in his 90th year when he d., leaving a will which was probated at Essex County Probate #12913 in which he was called yeoman and blacksmith, late of Marblehead, 3 Feb. 1767. He had dated his will at Marblehead on the 29th day of June in the year of 1765 and in the 5th year of His Majesty's Reign. He willed that "my daughter Elizabeth Griffin and her husband Joseph have, possess, and enjoy during the term of their and each of their lives, the dwelling house where we now dwell, with the garden adjoining and the blacksmith shop and at and after their decease I will the said dwelling house, garden and blacksmith shop to my three grandchildren in equal parts and shares, namely Benjamin Griffin, Ebenezer Griffin and Elizabeth Griffin and to their heirs, etc. Next he left to his grandchildren, the children of his son Ebenezer, Jr., deceased, equal parts of one half of all the real estate and personal property in Marblehead and one half of the real estate in New Marblehead in the Province of Maine and one half of the estate of John Estes given him by his father Matthew Estes, etc., etc. He left to his son Samuel property in Lynn and to his two grandsons Ebenezer and Joseph Hawkes, sons of said Samuel, "all my farm with the buildings and land in Lynn, they paying to their brothers and sisters hereafter named viz to John Hawkes 13 pounds, 6 shillings, 8 pence, to Matthew Hawkes, ibid; Philadelphia Hawkes likewise; Sarah, the same; Deliverance the same; Patience, the same. Lastly he appointed his grandsons Ebenezer Hawkes and Benjamin Hawkes, both of Marblehead as executors. His will was signed by him and witnessed by Mary Griffin with her mark, Joseph Striker and Zaccheus Collins, Quaker. A substantial inventory of Ebenezer's estate, both real and personal, amounting to over 3,018 pounds was prepared by the committee appointed by the court and it is given here in the original spelling - note: for vice, translate vise; for mandrill, not an African baboon but mandrel which is a metal bar that serves as a core around which metal or other material may be cast, molded, forged, or bent; for steelyards, a balance for determining the weight of objects by moving a counter poise along an arm to produce equilibrium.

There is no record of the place where Ebenezer and his last wife Ruth are buried. In his account book he wrote, "Ruth d. in her 74th year on the 15th day of the 1st month (January) 1760. She has been my wife 27 years." As they were both members of the Society of Friends, they were undoubtedly buried in a cemetery of that denomination. As the Friends did not use grave stones until after the time of the Rev. War, it is probable that no stone was ever placed for either of them.

15-iii. SAMUEL, b. 12 May 1706 Lynn (Lynn and Saugus records have a typographical error calling it 1716. 1706 is the date of birth given by Nathan Mortimer Hawkes, Esq. in early AHFA records.

Note - three additional children, John, Matthew and Philadelphia, have been attributed to Ebenezer; however, these are grandchildren as named in his will, also a Hannah has been listed as his child but there is no birth record for her. She reportedly was b. ca. 1714, was of Lynn, and m. on 10 July 1739 at Lynn (VR) Jonathan Wayt. There is no further information whatsoever in the vital records ca. either of them. A Jonathan Wayt is mentioned in regard to Hawkes in the Inferior Court of Common Pleas in Boston, Suffolk County as of 12 Nov. 1760. (Index to Suffolk File for 1730-1799) On the first Tuesday of October last, Jonathan Hawkes (see #12) of Chelsea, Suffolk County, yeoman, recovered judgement against Jonathan Wayt of Halifax, Nova Scotia, victualler for the sum of 34 pounds, 9 shillings, 6 pence lawful money in damage of 2 pounds, 1 shilling; also Elkanah Hawkes of Lynn, Essex County, gentlemen, recovered judgement against Jonathan Wayt, Halifax Nova Scotia, victualler, 14 pounds, 7 shillings, 8 pence and damages of 2 pounds and 2 pence. The record mentions Ezra Wait, Jonathan his father, and Jacob. Payment was made in land and so the writ was returned. (Suffolk files 81423)

8. MOSES[4] (Moses[3], John[2], Adam[1])

SUSANNAH HITCHINGS, dau. of Daniel, Jr., and Susannah Townsend Hitchings (Kin of Daniel Townsend who was killed at the Battle of Lexington, 19 Apr. 1775)
b. 22 Mar. 1711 (Lynn VR)
d. after 1762 (Essex Probate #12936) Not in Lynn, Saugus or Lynnfield Vital Records

The earlier marriage date and Townsend name in Lynn VR may have represented intentions to marry. Nathan Mortimer Hawkes, a direct descendant of this line mentions only the marriage of Moses to Susannah Hitchings.

About 1725 Moses built his house on land which had been inherited by his father from his grandfather, Adam Hawkes. The house stood on the north side of the road from North Saugus to Wakefield near the school house and facing due south as was customary. (Nathan Mortimer Hawkes, Hearths and Homes of Old Lynn, p. 47, pub. 1907) He took for his wife a granddaughter of Daniel Hitchings of Lynn who was a fighter in King Philip's War. (Society of Colonial Wars Index of Rolls, 1922, p. 242) Moses, called yeoman, and his wife Susannah raised a large family of nine children on the farm in North Saugus. There are several land transactions attributed to Moses as listed in the Grantor and Grantee Indexes at Essex County Registry of Deeds. These include 1 June 1725 Ebenezer Hawkes et al executors, Book 38, p. 3 Lynn; 13 July 1725, Province of Massachusetts Bay, Book 51, p. 46 Lynn; 18 May 1730 Daniel Mansfield Book 57, p. 112 Lynn; 28 Dec. 1748 John Hawkes III Book 94, p. 72 Lynn.

In 1736 the first meeting house in the third parish of Lynn was built. This was at Saugus and meant that the inhabitants there no longer had to make the long trip over to Lynn Meeting House on the Sabbath Day. Apparently Moses was a devout member of the congregation and active in the affairs of the church. In 1739 a committee was appointed to draw up proposals for the settlement of a minister in the Saugus parish. This committee consisted of William Taylor, Thomas Cheever, Joseph Haven and Moses Hawkes. After deliberation they chose The Reverend Edward Cheever, son of Thomas Cheever of Lynn, who had graduated at Harvard College in 1737. He was ordained on Wednesday, the 5th of December 1739 and he served the church for the following nine years. A number of persons were shortly thereafter granted land on which to set a stable (shed), Jonathan Wait, Thomas Douglass, Moses Hawkes, John Hawkes, & Elkanah Hawkes, Daniel Hitchings, etc., etc. (Ref.: Saugus, Massachusetts by Elijah T. Robinson, pub. 1869)

On 3 Nov. 1760 Moses Hawkes drew up his will as follows: The last will and testament of Moses Hawkes of Lynn in the County of Essex within his Majesty's Province of the Massachusetts Bay in New England, yeoman, being some weak and infirm of body but of sound mind and memory in consideration of the uncertainty of life and the circumstances of my family and being desirous that peace and unity may be continued among them when it shall please God to remove me from hence, have therefore thought fit to make and publish this my last will and testament, hereby revoking, making null and void any other will by me at any other time made and this one is to be my last will and in manner following:

In the first place I resign my mortal soul to God that gave it and my body to the earth to be decently buried at the discretion of my executors hereafter named, for the temporal estate wherewith God hath blessed me I will and bestow as followeth:

Impr. I will that all my just bills and funeral expenses be paid and discharged by my executors with what convenient speed after my decease.

Item. I will and bequeath Susanna, my well beloved wife, all my personal estate forever and to cut and cart 80 cords of wood to pay my just debts and for my wife to have the improvement of all my real estate till my youngest child comes of age but if my wife should marry, then she is to have but the income of one third of my estate and if my estate should be rented out the tenant not to cutt the wood but to burn the fallen wood and the rents to be divided among the children hereafter named till the youngest child is of age. (Some missing here which apparently refers to the oldest son Moses) and shall have but an equal part with the rest of my children, to be paid by my four sons, 5 pounds, 10 shillings yearly till he is made equal unto each of them or their parts of my estate and no more. The reason why I gave him not a double share out of my estate is what I have given and done for him will make equal to a double share and if he brings any attempt against my estate, then he is to have but 20 shillings out of all my estate.

Item. That at or before the later marriage or decease of my wife, which of them shall first happen, and if my youngest child should be of age then my whole estate shall be brought to a division to and among my four sons, Abijah Hawkes, Nathan Hawkes, Daniel Hawkes, and James Hawkes, share and share alike for quantity and quality, they paying unto my four daughters Mary Mansfield, Susanna Hawkes, Anna Hawkes and Lois Hawkes, to be paid by my four sons 22 pounds yearly till they are made equal unto each of them or their part of my estate.

Item. I do nominate, constitute, and appoint my loving wife Susannah with Adam Hawkes to be my sole executors of this my last will and testament.

Lastly, I hereby revoke and make null and void any other will by me at any other time made in witness whereof the three foregoing pages is my will and testament. I the said Moses Hawkes have hereunto set my hand and affixed my seal this third day of November, Anno Domini 1760.

The above will was probated at Essex County Probate #12933 on 26 Jan. 1761.

Among the probate papers also appears the inventory for Mr. Moses Hawkes, yeoman, of Lynn, deceased, taken by William Collins, Timothy Hutchinson, and William Richardson on March 10, 1765. It is signed also by Adam Hawkes who swore to its truth and promised to add anything which might be found in addition. The real estate included the dwelling house and barn, 33 pounds, 6 shillings, 8 pence; ca. 200 acres of land in Lynn, 666 pounds, 13 shillings, 4 pence; ca. three acres salt marsh at ye Pines so called, 6 pounds, 13 shillings, 4 pence; also personal estate including 4 oxen, 4 cows, 2 two year olds, 3 yearlings, 1 horse, 1 colt, 4 swine, 13 sheep, the usual household furnishings and farm equipment of that period. On 11 Sept. 1762 guardianship for the minor children was provided (Probate #12936) as follows: Nathan Hawkes, ca. 17 years of age and Lois, ca. 15, children of Moses Hawkes, late of Lynn, yeoman, appeared before me and personally made choice of Mr. Ebenezer Hawkes of Lynn, blacksmith, to be their lawful guardian. Signed Nathaniel Henchman, Justice of the Peace. Lynn, Sept. 11, 1762. To the Honorable John Coate, Esq., Judge of Probate of Wills. This may certify that it will be agreeable to me for you to appoint Ebenezer Hawkes of Lynn guardian for my two youngest children, Daniel Hawkes 13 and James Hawkes 11, heirs to the estate of Moses Hawkes of Lynn deceased. Signed Susanna Hawkes.

Note: Thomas Mansfield has been called the son of Daniel and Joanna Burrage Mansfield who was b. 24 May 1717 according to Lynn VR, d. 11 Sept. 1758, (Lynn VR 2:534) "Thomas, son of Daniel fell off his horse between Marblehead and Salem and d. immediately" Sept. 11, 1758, age 41 years. In view of the above listed children, all of whom are named in the Lynn VR, that is an incorrect statement as all children were b. following the death of Thomas, the son of Daniel.

iii. SUSANNA, b. 13 Feb. 1736 (Lynn VR), d. 8 Jan. 1763 (Lynn VR), probably in childbirth, m. 26 Apr. 1762 (Lynn VR) MICHAEL NEWHALL, son of Moses and Susanna Bowden Newhall, b. 15 Aug. 1740 (Lynn VR), d. 17 Sept. 1812 Leominster, Worcester County, MA. 18- vi. NATHAN, b. 1 July 1745 (Lynn VR) vii. LOIS, b. 30 June 1747 (Lynn VR), d. ca. 1809, probably at Onondaga, NY, m. 3 Dec. 1768 by Reverend Robie (Lynn VR) JOHN HITCHINGS, son of Daniel and Hannah Ingalls Hitchings, b. 4 Apr. 1747 (Lynn VR) d. ca. 1830 New York state. (erroneously listed in m. record as Lydia in Lynn VR, and not found in original town records; however, all old family letters and Bible records, etc., name her Lois)

Lois' husband was a direct descendant of Daniel Hitchings the so called Indian fighter of King Philip's War. He and four of his brothers all fought in the Rev. War as private in the Saugus Co. at the Lexington Alarm (Lynn in the Rev. by Sanderson 1909, p. 306, 492), his two sisters Hannah and Sarah m. Lois' two brothers Abijah and Nathan Hawkes respectively. The Worcester County Registry of Deeds shows three transactions of John Hitchings as follows: Book 91, p. 530 where he bought land from Hawkes for 175 pounds in 1784. Book 99, p. 301 where he mortgaged the same to one Chandler by conditional sale for 43 pounds in 1786. Book 101, p. 11 where he sold it still subject to the mortgage to Joseph Negus, the neighboring landowner for 125 pounds on 25 Feb. 1790. This is signed "together with Lois my wife in token of the relinquishment of her right of dower and power of third." Witnesses were Jonathan Grant, Jr., and Daniel Bigelow. Lois and John followed the trek westward led by Abijah Hawkes, first to Worcester County, MA and then on to Richfield in Otsego County, NY. They later moved still further west to Onondaga, Onondaga County, NY. Letters from the Richfield Hawkes family to their Hawkes relatives in Saugus mention the Hitchings 30 July 1808 "Bro. Hitchings' family is well except sister Lois and her dau. Susanna. Sister is very low and it is not probable she will live to see another spring." 1810 Cens., in Otsego Co. p. 112. Reel 34. The 1820 Census lists the family in Onondaga County, NY, p. 181, Reel 102, and Lois not listed, apparently deceased. 1830 census lists family of John Hitchings, Jr., at Onondaga. 20 Aug. 1829, "Your Uncle Hitchings last time I heard from him possessed good health and cheerfulness of mind more than is common for his age but his family are not commonly healthy, more subject to sickness and debility, Susanna in particular." 20 Feb. 1831, "Uncle John Hitchings is dead and Moses, William and Thomas." (His sons)

Diligent search has failed to reveal the identity of Hannah Priest, John's wife. She was definitely not of the family of the Mayflower pilgrim Degory Priest as he left no male progeny. She was long thought to be the dau. of Joseph and Margaret Childs Priest of Waltham, MA, but that Hannah m. Philip Gage and resided at Weston while John and Hannah Priest Hawkes were in Lynn. A Hannah, dau. of John and Elizabeth Gray Priest bap. 1689 was too early as Hannah Priest Hawkes had a child b. 1749. She may have been part of the family of John and Rachel Garfield Priest who removed from Woburn to Lancaster, MA, in 1687 or she may possibly have been a child of John and Hannah (Meacham) Gill Priest of Salem, MA, m. 4 Mar. 1699 (Salem VR) but reportedly had no children. The line of John and Hannah Hawkes has been accepted and appears in the 1960 Mayflower Index, #17,184.

This John Hawkes was called John the smith in his death record. He and Hannah raised a large family of eight children of whom six were daughters. The first son Adam d. as a result of yellow fever contracted in the Rev. War. The youngest child, a son named for John, was never seen by his father as he was b. ca. seven months after his father's death.

In 1739 when the first church in Saugus was built, Moses, John and Elkanah Hawkes were among those granted land on which to set a shed (stable) according to Saugus, Massachusetts by Elijan P. Robinson, pub. 1869.

When John d. intestate his estate was probated at Essex County Probate #12923 on 14 Nov. 1748. Bond for administration of John Hawkes, late of Lynn, deceased was signed by Hannah, widow, her mark, Moses Hawkes husbandman and Elkany (Elkanah) Hawkes blacksmith. The appraisal of the estate included such live stock as two mares, seven cows, eight swine, blacksmith tools and materials were listed; also books and household goods, a negro 95 pounds, gun and sword and such oddities as wallet, feathers, rug, etc. Hannah Priest Hawkes alias Fuller was named administratix for the estate of her husband John, late of Lynn, deceased. The inventory above totaled 120 pounds, 8 shillings, 8 1/2 pence. Names included in administration papers were the widow now Fuller, Adam as son, Mary, Lydia, Sarah, Rebecca and John, all children. On 12 June 1758 a later account gave to John Sprague for bringing up one child three years since last account, ten pounds, six shillings, zero pence. Adam Hawkes of Lynn, cordwainer, in company of John Tufts of Malden blacksmith with James Johnson of Reading tanner now gave bond to administer the estate of John Hawkes of Lynn, late deceased intestate the 17th day of April 1765. Signed by Adam Hawkes, Jr., John Tufts and James Johnson. The later accounting included names of many creditors including Samuel Whitford and Margaret Hawkes. Item: to loss of a Negroman, amount crossed out; funeral and mourning charges; to the widow for lying in after the death of her husband; to the widow for bringing up three young children 10 1/2 years in all; sundry journeys to Boston; to the widow, the easterly end of the dwelling house, one third of the bar, 20 acres, etc. The remainder 1765 was 326 pounds.

Provision was also made for the guardianship of Adam, John and Rebecca, the three minor children of John, deceased, on 13 July 1756. (Essex County Probate #12902)

John was still an infant when his father d. at the age of 27. His mother m. a second time and had six more children. She was John's guardian during that period (Essex County Probate #12921); however, she d. in 1706/7 and on 2 June 1707 John asked at Essex Probate Court that his Uncle John be appointed his guardian, which was done (Essex County Probate #12921). Six months after the death of his mother his stepfather m. a second time. It was only three years later that John himself m. and had seven children, of whom five were daughters.

At the Essex County Registry of Deeds there are records of several land transactions as follows: Book 52, p. 7, on 11 Mar. 1728 John et ux Mary to Samuel Aborne, Salem, MA; Book 65, p. 115, on 9 Nov. 1733 John et ux Mary to Samuel Whitford, Salem, MA; Book 62, p. 191, on 14 May 1734, John et ux Mary to Benjamin Prescot Salem, MA.

John lived out his entire life on the farm which he had inherited from his father and he in turn left it to his son Adam[5] and it followed in direct line of descent through John[6], Joshua[7], George Lathrop Hawkes[8], until the latter sold it. When John was not yet 50 years of age, he d. intestate and his estate is probated at Essex County Probate #12922. Administration was granted to his first son Adam and an inventory of the estate was presented 19 Sept. 1738. This included bedding, furniture, a loom, three spinning wheels, pewter, brass kettle, small gun, farm tools, etc. No books. Livestock included a horse, a cow, two small heifers, one calf, seven sheep, one swine. Real estate included 80 acres and buildings thereon. Total estate 743 pounds. On 10 Nov. 1740 the widow Mary's dower was set off; she to have the west end lower room of the dwelling house, east end chamber, one third part of cellar, one third of the barn and all of the west end. Land ca. 12 acres. Receipt for 30 pounds. John Hawkes III, "all that is due." As the two youngest daughters, Eunice and Elizabeth, were minors at the time of their father's death, guardians were appointed for them at Essex County Probate Court on 10 Nov. 1740 as follows. Daniel Newhall was appointed guardian for Eunice Hawkes, upward of 14 years of age, dau. of John Hawkes, late of Lynn, signed Daniel Newhall, Ebenezer Bancroft, Adam Hawkes. Ebenezer Bancroft was appointed guardian to Elizabeth, a minor, under 14, dau. of John Hawkes of Lynn, deceased, same signatures.

At the Essex County Registry of Deeds there is record of several land transactions of John Hawkes III including a discharge: Samuel Adams et al to John Hawkes, which was not recorded until 16 May 1750, as follows: Know all men by these presents that we Robert Auchmuty of Roxbury, Esq., Samuel Adams and William Stoddard of Boston Esquires, Peter Chardon of Boston merchant, Samuel Watts of Chelsea, Esq., all in the County of Suffolk, George Leonard of Norton in the County of Bristol, Esq., Robert Hale of Beverly, Esq., John Choate of Ipswich, Esq., Thomas Cheever of Lynn gentleman, all of the County of Essex directors of ye manufactory company so called for and in consideration of a sum of 40 pounds principal and the further sum of 6 pounds as interest cost and contingent charges thereon (in ye bills called Manufactory Bills) which we hereby acknowledge we have received from John Hawks tertius of Lynn in ye County of Essex tanner in full satisfaction for ye sum of 40 pounds in said bills which he said John Hawks received on his mortgage deed to us certain lands and appurtenances contained therein bearing date of 9th day of Sept. 1740 situate and bounded as by said deed may appear have released and quit claimed and discharged and do hereby for our selves heirs, executors, and administrators respectively release, acquit, and discharge to him ye said John Hawks his heirs, executors, administrators and assigns forever all and singular our right, title, estate and interest of and in ye lands with their appurtenances in said deed contained or that can be construed to be contained therein; to have and to hold to him ye said John Hawks, his heirs and assigns forever ye said lands and premises with their appurtenances as of his and their former estate in witness whereof we do hereunto set our hands and seals ye 10th day of June in ye 15th year of His Majesty's reign, Annoque Domini 1742. Then ye above named Samuel Adams, John Choate, Robert Hale, Samuel Watts, Thomas Cheever personally appearing acknowledged this instrument to be their free act and deed before me Joseph Richards, Justice of the Peace.

From Essex Institute Historical Collections, Vol. 44, p. 232-234 comes the following information. Lydia was brought up in the home of her childless Uncle Theophilus Burrill and apparently had been named for the first wife of Theophilus who was Lydia Gathercole of Boston. Theophilus Burrill was a very prominent resident of Lynn. He was Captain of the Lynn Company in the expedition against Port Royal in 1707, and in 1732-3 was Colonel of the Essex County Reg't. of Militia. He was appointed a special Justice of Common Pleas and Justice of the Peace for the counties of Essex, and Suffolk and served as a representative in 1725 and a member of the Governor's Council from 1727 to 1730. He lived in what is the north eastern corner of Boston and Federal Streets in Lynn. The house stood a short distance from the street and on each side of the walk leading to the front door was a row of Buttonwood trees which so protected the lawn in the hot summer days that the grass and shrubbery were always green. He gave this house to his niece Lydia Burrill during the time she was the wife of Francis Calley. It was stipulated that she should not enter the place for a year and was to pay the widow of Theophilus who was executrix of his estate the sum of 100 pounds. The widow was unable to collect the money; she appealed to the court and brought suit against Lydia during the time she was the wife of John Hawkes and was able to recover judgment. The defendants appealed to the General Court but the judgment was sustained. Later, during her third marriage Lydia disposed of this estate by conveying it to John Lewis who had m. her sister Mary Burrill. The house was demolished ca. 1885. The old mansion was occupied by Colonel James Robinson; first postmaster of Lynn; the post office having been located in a building on the premises.

No probate file has been found at Essex County Probate for John III who d. in 1743; however, in the probate of John (See #10) who left widow Mary is a petition by widow Lydia Hawkes to grant administration to another. This raises the possibility of confusion in filing the numerous estates of the various persons named John Hawkes. Following the death of John Hawkes, Lydia, m. again on 21 Jan. 1744. "Joshua Ward m. the widow Hawkes at his farm of Throgmorton Cove South Fields" (Essex Institute Collections, Vol. 2, p. 66) This was at Salem, Essex County, MA. (Recorded also Marblehead VR) Joshua was the son of Miles and his first wife Sarah Massey Ward, b. 15 Aug. 1699 who m. first Sarah Trevett and had four sons and three daughters by her prior to her death. Those Ward children were Joshua, b. 1723, Daniel 1725, John 1729, Sarah 1733, Martha 1736 and Martha 1737 then Richard (no date). Joshua and Lydia Burrill Ward had one child: Burrill Ward, b. 29 Aug. 1747, d. 28 Feb. 1748. After her death Joshua Ward m. a third time Ruth Woodward of Gloucester. He d. 29 Dec. 1779. (Ref.: Materials for Genealogy of the Ward Family in Salem, Essex Institute Collection, Vol. 5, p. 207, 208.

John Ropes was bap. 18 Feb. 1738/9 at the First Church in Salem. He was a sea captain in the merchant service and lived in a house on Essex Street later sold to Higginsons.

Children surname ROPES:

(Thacher, An Old Family) She is sometimes confused with Abigail, dau. of Samuel and Hannah Ingalls Farrington, b. 30 Oct. 1715 (Lynn VR). Lynn Vital Records, Vol. 2, p. 134 and 176 shows one of these Abigail Farringtons m. Jonathan Hawkes on 11 Oct. 1743 while the other m. Ephraim Olliver 14 June 1744. Neither birth nor death for Ephraim Olliver is found in Lynn VR, nor the death of his wife Abigail. No births for children of Abigail and Ephraim Olliver found in Lynn or Saugus of Lynnfield VR. Essex County Probate #9278 for John Farrington who m. Abigail Fuller mentions dau. Abigail, also Essex County

Probate #9280, the estate of John, the son of the above who d. 1768 and who m. first Hannah Hawkes and later Elizabeth Smith mentions Adam Hawkes, Moses Hawkes, Abigail Farrington, "Abigail Hawkes for faling the cow" and for keeping children. It provides for guardianship of child Hannah Farrington whose guardian was John Tufts. John bequeathed to Abigail Hawkes (sister) and to William Farrington (bro.). No Essex Probate found for Samuel Farrington. It seems to follow then that Abigail b. 1726 and her bro. John b. 1727/8 m. Jonathan Hawkes and Hannah Hawkes respectively.

(For Hannah see 9 ii) Further, since Abigail was still bearing children ca. 1760 it would follow that she was the Abigail b. 1726 rather than that one b. 1715. No documented death date has been found for Abigail Farrington Hawkes but she was still living in 1814 (JMH ms.) Final proof of Abigail's parentage is found in deed: Essex County 88, p. 198 "Theophilus Farrington of Lynn, shipwright, purchased of Jonathan Hawkes of Lynn, cordwainer and Abigail his wife, dau. of John Farrington of said Lynn, currier, deceased. Dated 1 Dec. 1746."

Jonathan, his two brothers and sister, were all christened on the same day, 20 Sept. 1719, at the church in Wakefield, MA. There is no documentation for the exact date of his birth. JMH ms. places it as ca. 1703. Old AHFA records give it as 1712. Question has been raised as to whether he may have been a twin of his bro. Elkanah but this seems uncertain. Nathan Mortimer Hawkes "Hearths and Homes of Old Lynn" calls him "older bro. of Elkanah", p. 131.

Jonathan was still a child when his father d. in 1722 intestate. Papers of administration were granted to his mother and nothing is extant to indicate guardianship of the children. It is assumed that the mother had this responsibility.

Jonathan resided in Lynn where his first wife d., perhaps in child birth, leaving him with one dau. The first four children by the second wife were also b. in Lynn. From 1749 to 1756 he was first clerk of 3d Parish Church. In 1756 he appears to have removed to Chelsea. Although called cordwainer in the earlier days, he became a purchaser of much land in Chelsea during the 1750's. During part of this time he was called "of Medford." He d. owning property both in Lynn and Chelsea. (Rumney Marsh, now Revere) At the time of his death in 1762 he was the owner and operator of an inn at Chelsea. Deeds at Essex County show several transactions between Jonathan and Abigail Hawkes and the Farrington family as follows: 1746 Jonathan et ux to Theophilus Farrington, Lynn; 1761 Jonathan et ux to John Farrington, Lynn; 23 Oct. 1765 Abigail ux Jonathan administrator, sold to John Farrington, Lynn.

Chamberlain in History of Chelsea, MA, Chapter 6, Appendix 9, p. 179 and following, makes numerous mentions of Jonathan Hawkes and wife Abigail, although at first he confuses him with John Hawkes. (See #5) He then states Jonathan the innkeeper belonged to a younger generation. Middlesex Deeds 17:272, Suffolk Deeds 136:166 and Vital Records of Lynn. 26 June 1753 Elisha Tuttle, yeoman, conveyed to Jonathan Hawkes of Lynn, cordwainer, for 133 pounds, 6 shillings, 8 pence, 16 acres of upland bounded north and east on the widow Ruhamah Tuttle, south on said Elisha, west on the town road. (Deed 83:216) 15 Nov. 1753 Elisha Tuttle for 1,000 pounds conveyed to Jonathan Hawkes of Lynn title to 50 acres of land on which a house stood. It was bounded east on the town road, south on Isaac Lewis, west on land in possession of Robert Temple, (the Newgate-Shrimpton farm), north on the widow Dudley's land, (the little Keayne or Dudley farm) and land in the possession of Samuel Tuttle and of Ruhamy Tuttle, also 30 acres on which a barn stood, bounded west and south by the town road, east by land of Samuel Watts, (formerly the Jonathan Tuttle farm) and north by Nathan Cheever, Ruhamy Tuttle and Jonathan Hawkes. 84:154. April 11, 1758 Elisha Tuttle and his wife Elizabeth for 533 pounds, 6 shillings, 8 pence conveyed to Jonathan Hawkes of Medford, innholder, title to all the land above conveyed that is to 92 acres with one dwelling house and a barn thereon. The south boundary was Isaac Lewis and the "Town Road from the corner of the pound to the north corner of the land in the occupation of Ebenezer Hough", (formerly the Jonathan Tuttle farm). 11 Dec. 1754 Elisha Tuttle had mortgaged to Nathan Cheever a portion of the land above conveyed; that is 23 acres bounded west on the road (School Street), north on Jonathan Hawkes, etc. to a _____ and further conveyanced to Jonathan Hawkes of Medford. Deed 90:128, Deed 92:250.

Two records regarding Jonathan Hawkes appear in the Suffolk County Court Files, first #55801 Jonathan Hawkes, cordwainer of Lynn at Boston 22 July 1742 he made complaint in a case regarding counterfeit bills of Rhode Island of the year 1738 given to him by Eleizer Linsley. He reported he had asked Linsley to replace them with good currency and while doing so at Linsley's house he also saw a quantity of new five shilling notes which were as yet unsigned. He reported Linsley asked him if he would be willing to give a pair of oxen and a cart in return for a goodly number of these notes which he said, "I declined to do." Apparently Jonathan Hawkes and Eleizer Linsley were brothers-in-law as they m. the Farrington sisters, Abigail and Lydia respectively, both daughters of John and Abigail Fuller Farrington. Again, Suffolk County Inferior Court of Common Pleas in Boston, #81423 at this time both Elkanah Hawkes of Lynn, Essex County, Gentleman, and Jonathan Hawkes of Chelsea, Suffolk County, yeoman, recovered judgement on 12 Nov. 1760 against Jonathan Wayt "of Halifax, Nova Scotia", victualler. It is not known why he was called of Halifax, N.S. as he was undoubtedly Jonathan Wayt of Lynn, the father of Ezra Wayt who m. Jonathan Hawkes' only dau. by his first wife. Apparently Jonathan Wayt victualler was supplying foods to the inn which Jonathan Hawkes kept. The case was settled when Jonathan Wayt made payment in land.

The estate of Jonathan Hawkes, late of Chelsea, was probated at Suffolk County #12911, 12 Mar. 1762. Abigail Hawkes, widow of Chelsea, and Elkanah Hawkes, Gentleman, and William Farrington, cordwainer, both of Lynn, Essex County were bound for 1,000 pounds to Thomas Hutchinson, Judge of Probate, Suffolk County. Abigail was granted the administration of the estate of Jonathan, late of Chelsea who d. intestate. Abigail signed with her mark; the others wrote their signatures. March 12 Thomas Pratt and Samuel Sprague were appointed appraisers of the estate. May 12 Samuel Spratt and Thomas

Sprague (error for above names) were appointed to divide the real estate so as to assign the widow her one third right of dower and to notify all interested persons. Aug. 13 Mrs. Abigail Hawkes presented the inventory to the court and the widow's one third was set off. Aug. 21 the account sworn to and allowed. (Ref.: History of Chelsea by Chamberlain) Also from History of Chelsea, p. 219, is the following: 29 Oct. 1765 Abigail Hawkes as administratrix of the estate of her husband Jonathan Hawkes conveyed to Thomas Pratt for 120 pounds, 18 acres of land bounded north on Lieut. Nathan Cheever and Lieut. Samuel Pratt; east on Honorable Samuel Watts; south on the town road leading by the meeting house; and west on lands of the said Abigail. On the following day Thomas Pratt reconveyed the same land for the same consideration to the widow Abigail Hawkes. No mention was made of buildings. (Suffolk Deeds 107:244, 246) From Abigail Hawkes the title passed to her son Jonathan Hawkes, Deed 129:160; from him to Thomas Ruggles, Deed 141:230. From Samuel Dyer of Boston to Samuel Lowe 24 Mar. 1792 a dwelling house and 18 acres of land. Deed 172:165. When the direct tax of 1798 was assessed it was owned by Samuel Lowe and occupied by William Pratt. The house covered 900' was of two stories, had 16 windows and a half acre of land and was valued at $440. There was a barn 33' by 30', etc. 30 Sept. 1782 Abigail Hawkes of Boston, widow, conveyed to Peter Thacher of Malden, clerk, and his wife Elizabeth; Samuel Cheney of Roxbury, a physician and his wife Hannah; Thomas Ruggles of Boston, merchant, and his wife Abigail; also to said Thomas as attorney to William Hawkes, all her right in the estate of her late husband, Jonathan Hawkes of Chelsea. She made her mark. Deed 136:166. On the same day the above grantees conveyed to John Buckman of Boston, trader, and Thomas Lock of Chelsea, Gentleman, for 630 pounds, the farm at Chelsea, 40 acres of land with the house thereon were bounded east on the road (School St.), south and west on James Stowers, formerly the Lewis farm, north by land late of Jonathan Williams, 30 acres with the barn thereon lay on the opposite side of Beech St. It was bounded east partly on the land sold to Jonathan Hawkes and on land of Samuel Pratt, south on the road that goes by Chelsea Meeting House, west on the town road, (School St.), north on land of Samuel Sprague. Deed 136:167. Oct. 23 of the same year John Buckman and Thomas and Abigail Lock conveyed the land for 700 pounds to James Stowers of Chelsea, Gentleman. Deed 136:196. Note: James Stowers was a grandson by marriage to Jonathan and Abigail Farrington Hawkes. When the direct tax of 1798 was assessed the house and land were owned by James Stowers and occupied by his son Samuel S. Stowers. The house covered 800', was of two stories; had 15 windows and was "old." There was a black kitchen which covered 252 feet and had five windows and an outhouse that covered 280' and had seven windows. Both were of one story only, with an acre of land that was valued at $440. The barn was 30' by 30'. Presumably the house a few rods north of the junction of School and Beech Streets as given on the plan of James Stowers estate at the end of Vol. 260 of Suffolk Deeds was the homestead of Elisha Tuttle, father and son, and the tavern of Jonathan Hawkes.

Child of Jonathan and Sarah (Newhall) Hawkes:

i. SARAH, b. 26 Apr. 1736 (Lynn VR), living in 1772 (The Waite Family of Malden, MA, by D. C. Corey, pub. 1913, p. 29), m. (1) 8 Mar. 1752 (Lynn VR) EZRA WAYT (Wait), son of Jonathan and Abigail Lynd Wayt, b. ca. 1730 Lynn, d. ca. 28 May 1765 Malden (Waite Family by Corey, p. 29 and Lynn VR), m. (2) before 6 July 1772 John Adam Dagyr of Lynn (Corey-Waite Family by Corey, p. 29 but not found in Lynn, Saugus, or Chelsea or Malden VR). John Adam Dagyr came to Lynn from Wales in 1750 and m. first 18 Aug. 1761 (Lynn VR) Susannah Newhall. He d. 31 Mar. 1806. No death record has been found for her. Her children: Catherina, b. 1 Sept. 1762, Sarah, b. 1764, Joseph, no birth record in Lynn VR.

Because John Adam Dagyr was such a famous shoe maker and because so many of the early members of the Hawkes families were cordwainers, we digress to give an account of early shoe making in Lynn before the days of the 19th and 20th Century factories as we have known them. "Dagyr, the Welch shoemaker, was a man remarkably skillful at his handicraft and so noted for his taste that work came to him from Boston and indeed distant parts of the province. Many a graceful bride of that day hardly felt herself prepared for the nuptial ceremony if she had failed of being supplied with a pair of Dagyr's elegant slippers. The Boston Gazette called him the celebrated shoemaker of Essex." (Proceedings in Lynn, MA, June 17, 1879, 250th Anniversary, by James R. Newhall, pub. 1880, p. 101) "John Adam Dagyr, a shoemaker from Wales came to Lynn. He was one of the best workmen for ladies shoes who had ever appeared in the town. At the time of his arrival the business of shoemaking at Lynn was very limited and the workmen unskillful. There were but three men who conducted the business so extensively as to employ journeymen: John Mansfield, Benjamin Newhall, and William Gray. The workmen frequently obtained good shoes from England, took them to pieces to discover how they were made. By the instruction of Mr. Dagyr they were soon enabled to produce shoes nearly equal to the best imported from England. Shoemakers from all parts of the town went to him for information. He resided on Boston Street not far from the foot of Mall. (From Annals of Lynn 1750, p. 328 of History of Lynn by Newhall) "For 150 years (prior to 1880) shoe manufacturing was the leading mechanical industry of Lynn and until within a few years the work was always done by hand. Buildings required were small and very common in their appointments but when ponderous machinery was introduced substantial and capacious structures began to appear. When the work was done by hand the shoes were cut out in small buildings occupied by the bosses and thence taken by the jours to their own little shops, made up and returned. These shops were to be seen in all quarters for they rather affected positions whence the incomings and outgoings of neighbors could be observed and the sprightly music of the lap stone and hammer were well nigh ceaseless. When The Old Tunnel Church, built in 1682, was dismantled its unique belfry was transformed into a cozy little shoemaker's shop and remained a picturesque object near High Rock til destroyed by fire on 25 Mar. 1849. (History of Lynn 1883 Edition by James R. Newhall, pp. 313, 316) "Not long after the division of the common lands (1638) shoemaking became an important industry in Lynn. In 1750 John Adam Dagyr, a skilled Welch shoemaker appeared and gave great impetus to the gentle craft of leather. The warmth and sociability of the little shoemaker's shop became more attractive than the exposure and hardship of frontier farm life. The boys went to work at the bench, later shoe manufacturing did away with the social democratic shoe shop life of a homogeneous people." (In Lynn Woods With Pen and Camera by Nathan Mortimer Hawkes, 1892) "At the beginning women's shoes in Lynn were made of neat's leather or woolen cloth, only they had a nicer pair of white silk for the wedding day which were carefully preserved as something too delicate for ordinary use. About the year 1670 shoes began to be cut with broad straps for buckles which were worn by women as well as by men. In 1727 square toed shoes and buckles for ladies went out of fashion though buckles continued to be worn by men til after the Revolution. The sole leather was all worked with the flesh side out. In 1750 John Adam Dagyr gave great impulse and notoriety to the business by producing shoes equal to the best made in England. From that time the craft continued to flourish until it became the principal business of the town. Fathers, sons, journeymen, and apprentices worked together in a shop of one story in heights, 12 feet square, with a fireplace in one corner and a cutting board in another. The finer quality of shoes were made with white and russet rands stitched very fine with white waxed thread. They were made with very sharp toes and had wooden heels covered with leather from half an inch to two inches in height called cross cut, common, court, and Wurtemburgh heels. About 1800 wooden heels were discontinued and leather heels were used instead. The manufacture of wood heels was as much a separate business as last making later became. One of the principal factories at which they were turned out was on Boston St. In 1783 Mr. Ebenezer Breed introduced the use of Morocco leather and at the commencement of the present century (19th) two of the principal shoe manufacturers were Mr. Amos

Rhodes and Colonel Samuel Brimblecom. (History of Lynn by Alonzo Lewis and James R. Newhall, 1865, pp. 90-1)

Although John Adam Dagyr was very prominent and talented and prospered greatly from his industry, he shared his talent with others for their benefit and in his later years he became indigent and it was necessary for him to live out his final days at the Lynn Poor House. He was finally laid to rest in a pauper's grave. He d. "an aged person at the Poor House." (Lynn VR)

Elizabeth was only 16 when she m. the first time and is reported to have had children by her first husband;

however, he d. and she m. a second time the Reverend Peter Thacher, one of a family of numerous persons who had graduated from Harvard College and who became ministers. Sibley's Harvard Graduates by Shipton for the Class of 1769 devotes over ten pages to the Reverend Peter Thacher; p. 237 to 247. The following biographical material is taken directly from that. Peter was b. at Milton where his family was taking refuge from the Boston smallpox in 1752. His father d. when he was only 13 and friends joined together to provide for his education. When he graduated in 1769 it was he who made the salutatory oration. The second commencement was held at Cambridge July 8, 1772, when he was moderator. After receiving his first degree he kept school at Chelsea for six pounds a quarter with board. He delivered his first sermon at Malden on 28 Jan. 1770, receiving one pound, eight shillings in return. After supplying the pulpit of the Old South Church in Boston he was recalled to Malden where he was ordained over the First Congregational Parish 19 Sept. 1770. Three weeks later he m. Elizabeth Hawkes Poole, widow of Zachariah Poole of Medford. She was 8 years older than he and a friend of his wrote, "She was without wealth or accomplishments and encumbered with children." She then bore him 10 children, the names of most of these he scratched with a diamond on a pane of glass in the parsonage which still stands at 145 Main St. The parson was an ardent Whig and in May 1774 the Provincial Congress ordered him to raise a military company to defend the coasts of Malden. He served on several other committees appointed to further the Whig cause and the war effort particularly on the committee of correspondence. He was a member of the Malden Minute Man Company but when he appeared with his musket on the morning of the 19th of April his Captain ordered him to remain at home and practice his profession, although he did not see the distinction. He witnessed the battle of Bunker Hill from Chelsea and two weeks later wrote an account of it for the Provincial Congress to transmit to England. In Dec. 1775 he was appointed chaplain to the Provincial Council which was sitting at Watertown. The History of Malden, p. 760 refers to a meeting in 1776 held at a time of great excitement "during the succeeding night the heights of Dorchester were occupied by American forces and in the morning the British general saw the commanding hills crowned by earthworks that the haze of early dawn magnified to his astonished eyes. Then began the movements which resulted in the evacuation of Boston. In spite of the general anxiety during the day the inhabitants of Boston who were outside of the British Lines met at the meeting house in Watertown where "an oration to commemorate the Horrid Massacre of the 5th of March 1770 and to impress upon the minds of the citizens the ruinous tendency of standing armies being placed in free and populous cities in time of peace was delivered by The Reverend Peter Thacher to a numerous audience and received by them with the greatest applause. This was from The Boston Town Records, Report of the Record Commissioner, XVIII, 226. The oration of the Malden pastor was printed and considered one of his ablest productions." In 1779 the town of Malden sent the parson to the Constitutional Convention. At this time the needs of his growing family compelled him to give ear to the requests of the wealthier First Church of Cambridge. He considered leaving Malden to go there but decided in the negative. Then on 25 Oct. 1784 The Reverend Thacher heard that the Brattle Street Congregation in Boston had approved his nomination with remarkable unanimity and on the same day he asked Malden to dismiss him. The Brattle Street Congregation was the most distinguished in New England and therefore, although reluctant, they released him. On 4 Jan. 1785 the Thachers moved into the Cooper parsonage and on Jan. 12 the minister was installed at the Brattle Street Church with all the solemn decorum and elegance which could be mustered in a provincial town and a pleasing prospect of mutual happiness. His compensation was seven pounds, four shillings per week with house and wood, making him the best paid minister in Boston. This meant a great change in life for the Thachers. A friend asked, How does it suit Madam - the answer - she admires it, so many new caps, new gowns, stockings, shoes, petticoats, garters, shifts, tuckers, etc. her ladyship not only never wore but never saw before. Harrison Gray Otis, one of the congregation, wrote, ca. the minister "Dr. Thacher was above middle stature, well formed, and moved with a natural ease and gracefulness. His features were regular, his countenance bland though animated and his eyes beamed with a mild lustre through spectacles which he always wore. His manners were those of the finished gentleman and his society was constantly sought by Bowdoin, Harvard College 1745, Hancock, Harvard College 1754 and all the dinner giving gentry of that day. On these occasions he was always found a welcome and cheerful companion, reasonably fond of the rational pleasures of the table but always mindful of the dignity of his person and calling." The diaries of several country parsons tell of being taken from the Thacher parsonage to the mansion of the Governor to bask in the glow of high society and the minister's social skill; one of them recorded he was very popular, as a gentleman he was welcome everywhere and as an orator he was often called in for the first occasions. We love to hear him, see him, and enjoy him. By virtue of his pulpit he was an overseer of Harvard College. He was greatly interested in the Massachusetts Historical Society which he and Jeremy Belknap planned and met with six other gentlemen to organize on 24 Jan. 1791. From 1772 to 1799 he had kept a diary throughout the Rev. War. (New England Diaries 1602-1800 by Harriette Forbes]923, p. 280) It contained many references to various members of the Hawkes family, including Mother Hawkes, bro. Billy, and sister Cheney. The original of part of this diary survives along with photostats of the other parts. His photograph has been reproduced from an original oil painting and is to be found in Records of the Church in Brattle Square, opposite, p. 46 which was taken from an engraving in the periodical Polyanthos. The portrait is believed to have been painted by Savage in July 1785. Benevolence was one of his most marked characteristics. He was incorporator and member of the Council of Massachusetts Congregational Charitable Society for the Relief of Destitute Widows and Children of Deceased Ministers; also charter member and secretary of the society established in Massachusetts for propagating the gospel among the Indians and others in North America. He was a member of the Charitable Fire Society and the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, Trustee of the Massachusetts Humane Society and a proprietor of the town library. From 1785 to 1802 he was chaplain to the General Court. His diary contains early reference to his "good friend and great benefactor, Governor John Hancock and it was he who preached the funeral sermon for John Hancock." After George Washington, who had been awarded an honorary LLD at Harvard College in 1776, became president, when he returned to Boston it was at the Brattle Street Church that he attended Sunday service.

When Peter Thacher received his master's degree from Harvard College in 1769, he was the eighth of his family to graduate from Harvard beginning with his ancestor Peter Thacher who graduated in 1671. In the early years at Harvard the class listings were not alphabetical but according to social standing and in 1769 we find Peter Thacher listed fourth in a class of 39. His STD, a doctor of divinity degree, was conferred by Edinburgh University in 1791. Of the ten children of Peter and Elizabeth Hawkes Thacher, three sons also graduated from Harvard College. Their oldest son Thomas Cushing Thacher received his Master of Arts with the class of 1790. Peter Oxenbridge received his Master of Arts in the Class of 1796 and became a Fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences. Third, Samuel Cooper Thacher who received his Master of Arts degree with the class of 1804. He served the college as librarian from 1808 to 1811 and became a Fellow from 1816 to 1818 when he d. He also was a Fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences. (Quinquennial Catalogue of the Officers and Graduates of Harvard University 1636-1905, pub. by the university 1905, Cambridge, MA, pp. 131, 142, 151, 738)

The Colonial Clergy of New England by Weis, p. 302 provides the following additional dates for Peter Thacher, D.D. Settled Malden 1770-1774. Installed at Brattle Street Church Boston 12 Jan. 1785. Settled Boston 1785-1802. Preached the Artillery Election sermon for the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company of Boston 1793. In May 1802 while he was moderator of the convention of the Massachusetts clergy he showed evidence of failing health while giving his convention sermon. During the summer his pulmonary complaints increased and his physicians suggested a milder climate. His congregation voted to defray the costs of the trip; on 15 Nov. 1802 he sailed for Savannah, arriving 3 Dec. taking up residence with S. Howard, a merchant. There he d. 16 Dec. and all ships in the harbor flew their flags at half mast. Georgia Department of Archives and History Microfilm - Drawer 78, Box 12.

"Died - on Thursday the 16th inst. at the house of Mr. S. Howard, merchant, in this city, of a pulmonary affliction, the Reverend Peter Thacher, Pastor of the Independent Church and Congregation, assembling in Brattle Street in the town of Boston. His death being announced the vessels in the harbor exhibiting from their masts their usual signal of grief, united with the City in expressing respect and sorrow for DEPARTED WORTH. On Sunday the 19th the precious remains of this great and good man, attended by a very numerous procession was entombed in the cemetery of the city, and the solemn rites of interment agreeable to local usage were performed by the Reverend Mr. Holcombe assisted by the Reverend Mr. Cloud. After which a funeral discourse was delivered by the Reverend R. Smith in the Presbyterian Church, in which he recounted some of the leading tracts in the character of the DECEASED and endeavored to improve the detail so as to advance the best interests of his deeply affected audience.

By the death of this venerable servant of the cross, religion and humanity have sustained a heavy loss. A star of the first magnitude is gone. A pillar in the house of God is fallen! A lamp ( ) the temple of science is extinguished! The friends of merit are called, to put on their sable garments, to weep over the dead. Savannah mingles her tears with those of her sister town to the north on the mournful occasion. She tenders her unfeigned sympathy to the amiable family, the affectionate and gracious congregation, the numerous and worthy friends of the DEAR DECEASED. That the compassionate Savior who was ( ) on earth (bed...) the grave of Lazarus with his tears may comfort and support them under the burden of their sorrow is her fervent prayer. Glad would she have been had her milder air been the happy means of restoring health and vigor to an enfeebled father. But the MOST HIGH who holds in his hand the destiny of them had otherwise determined. Far from his (. .) servant of the Lord must die and enter into rest. Governor of the Universe! King supreme! God of our fathers! thy voice crieth of the city "She bows before thy throne - she humbles herself under thy mighty hand - she marks the perfect and upright ( ). His end was peace." The body was returned to Boston for burial. Some years later, following the death of his widow the remains of both were removed to the tomb of Peter Oxenbridge Thacher in Milton, MA.

Commonwealth. They were of the class of 1767 and during their stay old Harvard Hall burned, causing considerable loss to the students. Samuel Cheney carefully listed his losses which included his curling tongs. After receiving his bachelor's degree from Harvard Samuel joined the First Church of Roxbury and taught school at Dorchester and Chelsea where in 1771 he was m. to Hannah Hawkes. They then settled in Walpole, buying a house on Main St. which stood many years after. Samuel practiced medicine for a time but then decided to turn his house into a tavern which throve. The Story of Walpole by Willard DeLue (1925) on p. 210... refers to his tavern as follows:

"With the passing of Robins another taverner appears - Dr. Samuel Cheney, who dwelt in the house still standing on the west side of Main St. opposite Norton Ave., now numbered 841 and occupied by Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Goddard and Mrs. Frederick Guild.

Though first mentioned as a tavern keeper in 1775, Dr. Cheney had been owner of the property since 1771 when he purchased it from Dr. Ebenezer Daggett. Dr. Cheney was of a prominent Roxbury family and was a graduate of Harvard. Cheney sold his house in 1779, the property passing in that same year through Thomas Ruggles to Captain Shubael Downes of Nantucket, mariner. The tavern, however, was still listed as Cheney's in 1782."

From 1773-5 Dr. Cheney served on a number of public committees, then on the 19th of April in 1775 he marched as a private in Seth Bullard's Company, Colonel John Smith's Reg't. and served 5 days. Samuel Hawes, a minute man from the neighboring town of Wrentham wrote in his journal on the 19th of April, "About 1 o'clock the Minute Men were alarmed and met at Landlord Mann's. We marched from there toward Roxbury, etc. He marched toward headens at Walpole and there got a little refreshment and from there we marched to

Dr. Cheney's and there we got some vittles and drink and from thence we marched to Landlord Ellis' at Dedham, etc." Parts of this journal appear in the July 1976 New England Register, p. 208 and following, edited by Richard Brigham Johnson who observes, "Cheney served as a private on April 19th, so perhaps it was Hannah who provided the Minute Men from Wrentham with vittles and drink." The following year he spent six months in the army, then in 1779 he sold the Walpole tavern and moved to Boston where in 1780 he took a course of medical lectures given by Dr. John Warren, Harvard College 1771 and paid for one of the diplomas engraved by Paul Revere. With his medical diploma he joined the army once more and was commissioned a surgeon, serving in Rhode Island in Colonel William Turner's Reg't. three months from 18 Aug. 1781, also Colonel Solomon Lovell's Reg't., three months, 18 days, signed payroll 15 Nov. 1782. Back in Boston in Aug. 1783 he bought a lot on Washington Street. In 1784 he was appointed by the Boston School Committee as Master of the South Writing School. Later some objections were raised due to his so called irregularity and lack of piety. The selectmen visited the school to insist that he open the school in the morning and close in the evening with prayers, that he preserve regularity and good order in the school, that he should not fail to have the children read the scripture each day and instruct them in the catechism once a week. The school was at first on Pleasant St., later at the Sandemanian Meeting House on Middle St. in the North End where he had an assistant, a stove, a salary of 170 pounds a year and 40 pounds for rent allowance. Enrollment then increased from 110 to 250 boys and 174 girls and in 1790 the school was moved to Bennet St. No children were admitted under seven years. He remained in the service of the city in this line for many years. When his wife Hannah d. in 1786 she left him with seven children, the oldest of whom was 18. In four years he m. a second time and in 1798 the family lived on Charter St. but later removed to Cambridgeport where he d. in 1820. His funeral took place at the house of Captain Robert Gray, then the body was returned to Boston for burial at the Granary Burying Ground. His widow survived him by 17 years.

13. ELKANAH[4] (Thomas[3], John[2], Adam[1])
Son of Thomas and Sarah (Haven) Hawkes
b. 17 Feb. 1715 Lynn (JMH ms.), bap. 20 Sept. 1719 in Wakefield (First Church Records, Wakefield VR)
d. 18 June 1778 Saugus (Gravestone, Old Burying Ground Saugus; Essex County Probate #12918)
m. 14 May 1742 at Saugus Church, Third Parish Lynn (Nathan Mortimer Hawkes in Hearths and Homes of Old Lynn. Lynn VR gives m. 4 May 1742) EUNICE NEWHALL, dau. of Ebenezer and Elizabeth (Breed) Newhall, b. 6 Oct. 1720 (Lynn VR), d. after 18 June 1778 (not in Lynn VR). No file for her at Essex County Probate.

Elkanah is said to have been named for one of his mother's Haven relatives. (Boston Transcript 26 Aug. 1907, #9341) He is named among the partners of the Land of Bank of 1740, as are John Hawkes, John, Jr., John 3d and Moses, all of Lynn (N.E. Reg. 50:197).

He was very active in church affairs and greatly involved in the early years of the newly established church of the Third Parish at Saugus. In 1738 he was one of those granted land upon which to set a stable. In those days sheds were erected for the protection during church services and town meetings of the horses of those living at a distance. In 1742 he was m. by The Reverend Edward Cheever, first minister of this newly organized church. In 1745, "Elkanah Hawkes was empowered to erect three more pews in the church; two on the men's side and one in the women's Fore Seats. Men then sat on one side of the church and women on the other. (Saugus, MA by Elijah P. Robinson, 1869) In 1750 he was one of three to serve on a committee for the purchase of a parsonage for the minister, along with John Wayt and Daniel Hitchings.

In 1743 Elkanah built his home and ca. it Nathan Mortimer Hawkes in Hearths and Homes of Old Lynn, p. 29 says the following, "On the crest of Oakland Vale Plain or the Plough Plain of Colonial Days stands the venerable mansion built by Elkanah Hawkes. In farming days its windows commanded a sweep of the whole domain. Today (1907) stately trees cut off the view and give perfect seclusion to the occupants. The solid oak summer beam of this house cut upon the hill nearby was elaborately carved. The improvers of the house however have concealed it by plastering below it. The same iconoclasts removed from the front door, a massive iron latch surmounted by an arch which bore the inscription Completed Nov. 17, 1743. This latch was the handiwork of the builder of the house who was a keep sportsman and cunning artificer an iron. His grandson Thomas Hawkes of Boston secured the relic of his ancestor's skill and it may yet be among his family heirlooms.

In 1771 the Massachusetts Bay Colony took a survey of all its inhabitants for tax purposes and the details of this shed some light upon the farming activities of Elkanah Hawkes. The Tax Value List of 1771 Mass. (by Pruitt, pub. 1978, pp. 86, 87 under #0215-0233) lists him as Elkreg Hawkes of Lynn. He listed one poll (head tax), one house and shop, value 18 pounds, 10 shillings. Livestock included one horse, four cattle, one swine, 70 acres pasture land which would keep 11 cows, six acres of tillage to produce 72 bushels of grain per year, two barrels of cider per year. He had 12 acres of salt marsh producing ten tons of salt marsh hay per year; six acres of English hay producing two and a half tons per year; ten acres of fresh hay producing five tons of fresh meadow hay.

The grantee records of Essex County Registry of Deeds show that in addition to his own farm Elkanah also acquired numerous properties between the years 1737 and 1772 including lands from John Parrish, Jacob Burrill, Samuel Newhall, Benjamin Wiley, Abraham Burrill, Jonathan Wayt, Jr., et ux, Thomas Baker, Ebenezer Newhall, Jr., Jonathan Hawkes, Elkanah Hitchings, Moses Newhall, Joseph Barnard et al executors, and Stephen Hall. These lands were almost entirely in Lynn but some in Boston, Rumney Marsh, and Chelsea. During the same period he also sold numerous parcels of property including those to Moses Hawkes, Benjamin Wiley et al, Robert Edmonds, Ebenezer Newhall, Jr., Jonathan Wayt, Jr., Timothy Wiley, Samuel Bernard, Stephen Hall, Jonathan Hawks, John Batts, William Clark, as well as several pieces disposed of by his executor following his death.

It was in 1769 that Elkanah was out hunting with his son Elkanah, Jr., and the reported accidental firing of the gun occured. The consequent loss of an arm has been attributed to Elkanah, Sr.,; however, in the Common Place Book of Richard Pratt written at the time, Mr. Pratt specifies definitely that Elkanah, Jr., was shot and subsequently lost his arm. See # 28.

Elkanah was 60 years old when the Rev. War broke out in 1775. He had reportedly fought in the Old French and Indian War. An old unsigned paper in the AHFA files obviously written by a descendant of Nathan Hawkes of Saugus gives the following report. Four members of the Hawkes family of Saugus served our country in the Rev. War; namely Adam, Elkanah, Nathan, and Thomas Hawkes. They were in the First Company which went from Lynn, the largest of five Lynn companies. This company was made up entirely of Saugus men, that is one from the third parish of Lynn and was commanded by Captain David Parker. It consisted of 63 men and they met for drill at Jacob Newhall's tavern in East Saugus. A Mr. Horace Atherton, one of the historians of our family, says that at 9 o'clock at night on the 19th of April, 1775 a cousin bearing the news of the fight at Lexington reached Saugus from Malden. The word spread rapidly throughout the town; it having first been known at Cliftondale. A horseman flew to the tavern and the alarm was sounded throughout the country. Elkanah's name appears in the list of David Parker's men in Horace H. Atherton, Jr.'s, History of Saugus, MA, p. 36. In Massachusetts Soldiers and Sailors of the Revolutionary War, p. 560 the name is erroneously spelled Alehony, where he is called private in Captain David Parker's First Lynn Company of Minute Men which marched probably on the alarm of 19 Apr. 1775 to Concord, service two days. His son Thomas was a Sergeant in the same company while his son Ezra, also a private, marched as a Minute Man from Malden. The son Elkanah,

Jr., did not go, undoubtedly because of his hunting accident and loss of his arm resulting in his inability to carry weapons. Following his death in 1778 Elkanah was buried in the old cemetery at Saugus, Section B, row 1, grave 6, and subsequently the Sons of the American Revolution recognized his service by making the grave as that of a Revolutionary soldier. (See SAR Register of 1904, p. 273 and following)

Some 14 years later on 12 July 1792 Elkanah's two unm. daughters, Miss Grace and Miss Elizabeth Hawkes went to court to bring complaint against their bro. Thomas Hawkes executor for his handling of the estate as follows. "That he hath wasted the estate of the said Elkanah Hawkes deceased and continues to waste the same to the great damage of his heirs that the said Thomas hath long neglected and refused and still neglects and refuses to settle the accounts of his executorship as by law he ought to do and further that the said Thomas hath become wholly incapable of and evidently unsuitable to discharge the said trust reposed in him and for particulars of their complaint the said Elizabeth and Grace say that the said Thomas, Executor as aforesaid hath neglected to put into the inventory of the said Elkanah Hawkes ..... unreadable .... and blacksmith's tools all the property of the said Elkanah at the time of his decease and of the value. Secondly that the said Elkanah owed at the time of his decease debts not exceeding 140 pounds lawful money and that by his will the said Thomas was empowered to sell so much of said Elkanah's real estate only as with the personal estate should be to that amount and that the said Thomas at certain times at said Lynn as executor as aforesaid hath sold lands and trees growing, parts of the real estate of the said Elkanah at the time of his decease to the amount of 250 pounds and hath neglected therewith and with the personal estate to pay said debts and by his said neglect hath left the same real estate liable to be taken possession of by mortgagees and or executions thereof and hath misspent and wasted the moneys for which the personal estate and the said parts of the real estate sold. Signed Grace Hawks, Elizabeth Hawks. 12 July 1792 the sisters appear and agree to attend to the subject of this complaint on the first Monday in Sept. at 11 o'clock a.m. Thomas finally made settlement with his sisters on 1 June 1796. Ebenezer grew up in what is now North Saugus but ca. 1720 he removed from the ancestral lands to Marblehead, Essex County, MA along with his father and having learned his father's trade of blacksmith, became a blacksmith and anchor maker. Then on the 8th day, 2nd month (April) 1725 he and Anna Breed appeared at the meeting of the Society of Friends and "declared their intentions of marriage." (Microfilm #83, New England Yearly Meeting 1677 and on at RI Historical Society Library, Providence, RI) Ebenezer's older sister Elizabeth Hawkes had m. in that faith two years earlier and the Breeds had been devout members of The Society of Friends for many years in Lynn where she was a direct descendant of Allen Breed who had received 200 acres in the first division of land there.

Together with his father, Ebenezer became much interested in the setting up of a town to be called New Marblehead in order to relieve the congestion which had arisen in the seaside town. There were 63 original proprietors and Ebenezer had an interest in two 100 acre lots which he left to his sons Benjamin and Amos to choose by drawing lots which was witnessed by their bro. Nathaniel. The records of the Registry of Deeds for Essex County, MA show several transactions attributed to Ebenezer Hawkes, Jr., including: Deed Book 77, p. 222 Ebenezer, Jr., to Samuel King, 31 Jan. 1738, Marblehead; 81-141,142

Ebenezer, Jr., et al, an indenture 3 Apr. 1741 Marblehead; 77-222 Ebenezer, Jr., from John White, 31 Jan. 1738 Marblehead; 82-46 Ebenezer, Jr., from John Willson et ux, 3 Feb. 1741 Marblehead; 81-140 Ebenezer, Jr., from Ebenezer Hawkes 3 Apr. 1741, Marblehead.

Ebenezer, Jr., was only 39 when he d. and his estate was probated at Essex County Probate #12912. He was called Ebenezer Hawkes, Jr., of Lynn, and then late of Marblehead. Bond was signed by his father, Ebenezer Hawkes, blacksmith, his widow Anna Hawkes, also Nathan Bowen, gentleman, Joseph Buffum, all of Marblehead. Committee to prepare the inventory included above with exception of Joseph Buffum and substitution of Joseph Griffin. In the inventory the real estate included his mansion house and ca. 70 feet adjoining, 550 pounds; a small house and barn and land adjoining, 120 pounds; and one common right on Marblehead Neck, 70 pounds. The household inventory was rather small as one might suspect since Ebenezer, Jr., d. young, predeceasing his father and having had many mouths to feed with his growing family. His father was the administrator and guardian of his sons. He was found to be insolvent. A search for the burial place of Ebenezer, Jr., has not revealed one, however this is not surprising as he was a member of the Society of Friends and was probably buried in their burial ground either at Salem or at Lynn. It is known that the Quakers did not customarily use grave stones until a later period following the Rev. War. After his death his one son Benjamin remained on the family lands in Marblehead while the other four sons, Ebenezer, Amos, James, and Nathaniel, together with the widow Anna and the dau. Rachel whose husband Nicholas Anthoine had d., all left Marblehead for New Marblehead, later called Windham, in Cumberland County, ME. Dr. John Milton Hawks in his manuscript of the family writes, "Winslow Hall of Waterville, ME writing to the editor in 1876 says that the four sons of Ebenezer, Jr., went to Windham, ME, and inherited the rights of their father and grandfather. They were members of the Society of Friends. Mr. Hall remembered them as old men when he was a boy - say ca. 1812. They used to walk together past his father's house in Windham to attend the Quaker meetings on the first and fifth days. The descendants of these sons of Ebenezer have been quite numerous in the vicinity of Windham, ME. About the year 1837 the names of Hawkes were the most numerous of any on the voting list in Windham." And in the following generation Joshua, a son of Benjamin and grandson of Ebenezer, Jr., also migrated to ME to settle at Narragansett #1 or Buxton, the town adjoining Windham where his cousins had gone.

Elizabeth is said to have been the child of Ebenezer, Jr. As he d. intestate no mention is made of her inheriting from him and she d. before Ebenezer, Sr., therefore did not inherit from him nor did her children who would have been grandchildren: also there is no mention in Essex County Registry of Deeds of either Elizabeth or Ebenezer Foster receiving a property settlement from either Ebenezer, Sr., or Ebenezer, Jr.

Samuel's wife Philadelphia was a member of the Estes family which had been very actively involved in the Society of Friends. These people, called Quakers, had started arriving in the Massachusetts Bay Colony as early as 1656 and had been very severely persecuted in the early days. They were condemned, kept in confinement, banished, even when there was no law against them. Afterwards stringent laws were made to keep them out of the colony. Masters of vessels were fined 100 pounds if they brought a Quaker into the Massachusetts Bay. Quakers were sent to the House of Correction and whipped 20 stripes. Those who became their friends or entertained them were to be fined 40 shillings per hour for their friendship or entertainment. If he persisted, one of his ears might be cut off. Then in 1660 when Charles II became King of England, he sent a letter to the New England Governors ordering them to suspend proceedings against the Quakers and send those already in prison to England for trial. Later the Quakers came to be better tolerated although they were penalized because they were unwilling to serve in the military train bands or to take arms and and also some refused to pay their tax money for the support of the minister of the town's parish church. The New England Yearly Meetings of the Society of Friends started in 1677 and at Salem groups met at the houses of various interested persons. In 1682 the Salem Yearly Meeting was held at the house of Mathew Estes. He was the grandfather of Philadelphia Estes and he had been b. in Dover, England 1645, came to America and m. in 1676 Philadelphia Jenkins, the widow Hayes, dau. of Reginald and Ann Jenkins of Kittery, ME who removed to Dover, NH. Their son John b. 1684, and husband of Hannah Bassett of Lynn was also very actively involved in the Society of Friends. In 1707 it is noted Mathew and John Estes were on a voyage at sea and therefore alternates for them were appointed to serve at the meeting. On 11 Mar. 1727 Samuel Hawkes and Philadelphia Estes appeared at the meeting of the Salem Friends and announced their continued intentions of marriage. No objections being found, Robert Buffum, William Bassett, Jr., and Samuel Pope were appointed to attend the marriage to see that it was properly conducted. The usual comment following this assignment was a notation that they had attended the marriage and that "nothing appeared but that it was carried on orderly." Following this it was customary that visitors be appointed to go to the homes of the newly m. and to report periodically "if they are living in Love and Unity." By 1707 Quarterly Meetings of the Friends were being held at Salem, Dartmouth, Scituate, and Sandwich, MA. Each year a representative of the local Society was paid for travel to Philadelphia, PA for the Yearly Meeting. Also, the yearly message from London was read at each local gathering. (References: The Beginnings of New England by John Fiske 1898, pp. 217-19; Microfilm #83, New England Yearly Meetings, at RI Historical Society Library, Providence, RI).

Samuel was called blacksmith and yeoman. He lived all his life in North Saugus where he inherited from his father all of his property in Lynn, including the ancestral acres at Close Hill where his great grandfather Adam had first built. Essex County Registry of Deeds includes record of a few transactions: 3 Nov. 1737, Sam et ux et al sold to John Archer et al, book 74, p. 65, Salem; 6 May 1738 Sam et ux sold to Richard Estes 74-136 Lynn; 25 Apr. 1757 Samuel bought from John Newhall et al 104-99 Lynn. In 1765 Samuel sold part of his lands to his son Ebenezer for a home for his bride. Apparently he distributed lands to all of his sons for in the 1771 tax list of Massachusetts (Pruitt, 1978) under 0213-0302 Samuel is listed under Lynn as paying one poll while his sons Ebenezer, Joseph, John and Mathew are listed with varying amounts of property. This tax value list was taken only a year before Samuel's death and since no probate record is found for him in Essex, Middlesex or Suffolk Counties, Massachusetts, it appears that he took this method of distributing his estate to his heirs.

Children: (Note - as documented birth records have not been found for most of the following children, their chronological order is very likely incorrect, however all with the exception of Samuel, Jr., and Hannah, who both predeceased their grandfather, are mentioned in the grandfather Ebenezer's will in 1761.)

i. SAMUEL, JR., b. perhaps ca. 1728, d. Dec. 1756 (Essex County Probate #12940), m. probably not, as he left his estate to his sisters Philadelphia and Hannah Hawkes.

Samuel apparently left the non-military doctrines of his Quaker family when he went to fight in the French and Indian Wars. On 4 May 1756 he wrote his last will and testament and on 7 May of the same year he was mustered into the forces commanded by William Flint of Reading in the regiment of Ichobod Plaisted, as Corporal Samuel Hawkes. This war which had started in 1754 was the last and most important conflict over French and British possessions in North America. Unlike the three earlier wars which began in Europe and spread to America, this one started in this country. Its European counterpart was the Seven Years War. As British and French settlements had expanded over the years, territorial rivalries increased and the two mother countries failed to agree on various boundaries. Disputes arose in the Great Lakes region, and the land around Lakes George and Champlain in New York; also both countries were claiming the great area from the Allegheny Mountains to the Mississippi River. George Washington, later to become Commander in Chief of of the Army during the Rev. War, was leader of troops during this war. In 1756 the Marquis de Montcalm became commander of the French forces, leading attacks against Ft. Oswego and Ft. William Henry. In both places the English were defeated. A graphic description of the fighting at Ft. Edward is given in a History of the United States, Vol. 1, p. 170, pub. Boston 1850 by John Howard Hinton A.M. This is summarized by the statement that the French permitted the fury of the Indians to rage without restraint until 1500 English were killed, and describes the demolition of the fort, the burning of the barracks, and buildings, the dead bodies mangled with tomahawks, and scalping knives, etc. So were Lake Champlain and Lake George lost to the French forces.

Samuel, Jr., was a casualty of this war and on 30 Dec. 1756 his estate was probated at Essex County, File 12940. He was called felt maker of Lynn where he had a dwelling and ca. one acre of land. The inventory lists also ca. 60 acres in Douglass Town, Worcester County. The inventory reflects his occupation as it included "seven hatts and one hatt, one hamper, an iron, five fur skins, nine muskraph skins, wool, four felt hatts, a hatt block, hatt stuff, old hogsheads, feather beds, camblet coat, jacket, hatt trimming, iron kettle, frying pan, pine chest, three chairs, pine table and an old mair." John Hawkes affirmed on the pains and penalty of perjury that this was a true inventory and if more appear, he would cause it to be added. The will bequeathed property to Samuel's sister Philadelphia and to his sister Hannah Hawkes. He named his brother John executor. In various legal documents, Moses was called yeoman, junior, husbandman, and laborer. The eldest of several sons of Moses[4], he resided in Lynn where he raised his family. In 1760, his father made a new will, revoking all previous wills, naming Moses' mother Susannah and his uncle Adam Hawkes executors, directing that Moses have but an equal part with the rest of his children, to be paid to him by the other four sons each year until his share was equal to theirs, "and no more, the reason why I gave him not a double share out of my estate is what I have given and done for him will make equal to a double share, and if he brings any attempt against my estate, then he is to have but 20 shillings out of all my estate." The following year, 1761 Moses and Mary were "Heirs of Benjamin and Sarah Raddin Eaton who were m. 5 July 1759 in Lynn (VR), according to Essex County Deed #109-132; 447-35.

In 1770 Moses called laborer and husbandman, d. intestate, leaving a widow and seven minor children, and was found to be insolvent. (Essex County Probate #12934). Administration and bond 5 Aug. 1771 to Thomas Riddan (his father-in-law) and Richard Shute. Abner Cheever, Joseph Gray and Samuel Sweetser, Committee to appraise. An inventory was presented 2 Nov. 1771, which included books, clothing, wig, bed and bedding, a silver case, clock, snuff bottles, 20 bundles of flax, household equipment, farm tools, 1 horse, 1 hog, etc. Also included were a redcoat, a red jacket, bearskin breeches, boots, a sword, housing pistols, and cutlass, which indicate possible service in the French and Indian Wars. At any rate, the distribution of his estate was not made until 15 July 1790, ca. 20 years after his death. There was a long list of creditors including his mother, brothers Abijah and Nathan, and many other relatives and friends. Dr. Tufts and Dr. Flagg: items for last sickness; brothers Nathan and Daniel Hawkes: funeral charges. To Adam Hawkes, Constable, for tax for 1771, 0-7-7. The last item probably accounts for the listing of #0215-6235 in the MA Tax List of 1771. (See #21)

Abijah was a blacksmith. The Massachusetts Tax Value List of 1771 by Pruitt, 1978, shows Abijah #0215-0234 at Lynn, one poll, house and shop. He signed a deed in Lynn in 1772; removed to Lancaster, Worcester County, MA where he served in the Rev. War: he was a private in Captain Benjamin Houghton's Co. of Minutemen, Colonel John Whitcomb's Reg't., which marched on the alarm of 19 Apr. 1775 to Cambridge; service 11 1/2 days (Massachusetts Soldiers and Sailors in the War of the Rev.) p. 577. He was "of Concord, Middlesex County, MA in 1779" where he signed a deed with "Spinster Hannah Hawkes." In 1784 he lived in Petersham, Worcester County, MA, where the "bounds of road to his house" were recorded in the town records. Worcester County Deeds 122:348. Abijah Hawkes of Petersham, blacksmith, for 30 pounds paid by Anna Hawkes of Petersham, conveys land in south part of Petersham, bounds given but no abutters named. 17 June 1785. Signed by Abijah Hawkes and Hannah Hawkes. Witnesses: John Hitchings, Abijah Hawkes. On 1 Feb. 1786 sworn to before Paul Mandell, Justice of the Peace and 13 Aug. 1794 entered and examined by Daniel Clap, Registrar.

He was listed in the first US Census, 1790, in Petersham: 1 male over 16, 1 male under 16, 4 females. In 1792 his son Abijah, Jr., was m. in Petersham. Then in 1808 we find the family listed as residing in Ward 2 of Richfield, Otsego County, NY (near Cooperstown). His bro. Daniel had preceded him there in 1789. Besides Abijah, there were listed: Daniel Hawkes, Ward 1; Abijah, Jr., Nathan, James, Ward 6; as well as Moses Frizzel (Abijah, Jr.'s, wife was Lois Frizzel or Fraser). After the Rev. War the power of the Iroquois Confederacy had so weakened that settlement became possible in that area, and many went from New England. The year 1808 marked the opening of the 3d Great Western Turnpike, which extended from Cherry Valley to Brighton.

In 1808, Abijah wrote, then in his 70th year, to his younger brother Nathan, in Lynn, as follows:

Dear Brother,

I take this opportunity to write you a a few lines to inform you that we are all well at present, and hope that through divine favor these will find you and yours abundantly enjoying the same blessing. It is a long time since we have seen each other's faces, and time slides insensibly along, and a few more rolling suns will land us in the world of spirits where our state will be forever fixed by the unalterable decrees of him who is the Governor of the Universe, and he only knows whether we shall ever see each other again, in this vale of tears, but it is the distance that has deterred me from going to see my friends in that part of the world, but misfortunes by fire and sickness that has laid me under such indigent circumstances that I have not been able to go, but I find that my glass is almost run, and old age comes on so fast that I do not expect to ever go there again, but as for you, God has placed you in affluent circumstances, and your age is not so great but that it appears to me you can come here and see us, if you have a very great desire. I wish you to write to me by the bearer of this letter and inform me of Anna's circumstances and let me know how much is due her from bro. James' estate, and from bro. Daniel, and whether there is anything there, that belongs to my wife left her by her mother that is worth attending to, and what it is. Bro. John Hitchings' Family is well except for sister Lois and her dau. Susanna. Sister is very low, and it is not probable that she will live to see another spring, and if you ever intend to see her again you must come up this fall. I wish you to assist Mr. Brewster the bearer of this letter in collecting a sum of money due him from Daniel Hitchings, for whom I have given my security or it will make me trouble, fir I can never pay it- no more- but

I remain,
Your affectionate brother,

Abijah Hawks

Nathan was a husbandman and "upon him fell the mantle of his father, in church and civil affairs." His mother and his wife were both descendants of Daniel Hitchings who fought in King Philip's

THE HITCHINGS-DRAPER-HAWKES HOUSE

War, and who, in 1676, purchased from the Indians the lot on the west side of the Irons Works Pond, which abutted that of Adam Hawkes. It stretched from what became the Newburyport Turnpike to Melrose.

The Massachusetts Tax Value List of 1771, by Pruitt, 1978, #0215-0304 lists Nathan Hawkes of Lynn, one ratable poll, one dwelling house, real estate value 13 pounds, 15 shillings; livestock one horse, two oxen, eight cattle, 30 goats and sheep, three swine, 30 acres pasture producing 15 bushels of corn, eight acres tillage producing 100 bushels of grain per year, eight barrels of cider per year, ten acres English meadow producing four tons of English hay, 15 acres fresh meadow land producing 14 tons of fresh hay.

Of his service in the Rev. War, "Massachusetts Soldiers and Sailors in the Rev. War", p. 558 and 562 gives the following. Ensign, Captain David Parker's 1st Lynn Co. of Minutemen which marched probably on the alarm of 19 Apr. 1775 to Concord; service two days. First Lieut., Captain John Pool's second Co., First Essex Reg't. of Mass. militia; list of officers chosen by the several companies in said reg't., as returned by John Flagg, Lieut. Colonel, and David Parker, second Major, dated Lynn, 24 Apr. 1776; ordered in Council 26 Apr. 1776 that said officers be commissioned; reported commissioned 26 Apr. 1776. Later, his great grandson, Nathan Mortimer Hawkes wrote of his service as follows: "He was in the first company which went from Lynn, the largest of five Lynn companies. This company was made up entirely of Saugus men, that is, men from the Third Parish of Lynn, and was commanded by Captain David Parker. It consisted of 63 men, four of whom were Hawkes (Nathan, Thomas, Elkanah, and Adam), and they met for drill at Jacob Newhall's Tavern in East Saugus. As Mr. Atherton, one of the Historians of the Hawkes family said: At nine o'clock at night on the 19th of April in 1775, a cousin bearing the news of the fight at Lexington reached Saugus from Malden. The word spread rapidly through the town, it having been known first at Cliftondale. A horseman flew to the Tavern and the alarm was sounded throughout the country.' The commission of Nathan as first Lieut. has been carefully preserved by descendants. It reads:

Seal of the Colony of the Massachusetts Bay	The Major Part of the COUNCIL of the Mass. Bay, in New England

To Nathan Hawkes, Gentleman, Greeting. You being appointed first Lieut. of the Second Company whereof John Pool is Captain, of the First Reg't. of Militia in the County of Essex whereof Timothy Pickering, Jr., Esq. is Colonel --

By virtue of the power vested in us, WE do by these presents, (reposing special trust and Confidence in your Loyalty, Courage, and good Conduct,) Commission you accordingly. - You are therefore diligently to discharge the duty of a First Lieut. in leading, ordering, and exercising said Company in Arms, both Inferior Officers and Soldiers; and to keep them in good Order and Discipline: - And they are hereby commanded to obey you as their First Lieut. and you are yourself to observe and follow such Orders and Instructions as you shall from Time to Time receive from the major part of the COUNCIL of your superior Officers.

Given under our Hands and the Seal of the said Colony at Watertown the Twenty Sixth Day of April In the year of our Lord, One Thousand Seven hundred and Seventy Six.

By the Command of the Major Part of the Council

Petez Morton, D. Secry.

The above Commission contained also the names of fifteen prominent Revolutionary men, members of the Council. This document and his sword became treasured possessions of his great grandson, Nathan Mortimer Hawkes.

Over the years Nathan acquired considerable land in Saugus. He inherited his equal share of his father's property which included the dwelling house and barn and over 200 acres of land. Then as his brothers left, he bought out their shares. On Aug. 9, 1797 Grace, the "spinster" dau. of Elkanah Hawkes, deceased, conveyed his farm to Nathan Hawkes of the West Parish (Lynn), whose son, Nathan Junior occupied it.

Nathan served as Parish Clerk, and for a long time maintained a very close friendship with the Reverend Joseph Roby, affectionately known as Parson Roby. In 1783 it was decided that pews in the meeting house should by drafted for three years and Lieut. Nathan Hawkes and Thomas Mansfield to occupy pew #27; widows Anne Cheever and Hannah Hawkes #24; Thomas Hawkes #12. Then "It was voted that the pews in the meeting house shall be drawn by the rents and the highest taxed in the rates to choose first and so on til they are all drawn, and voted that they shall hold their pews as chosen during the parish pleasure. Landlord Jacob Newhall was highest on the list. This record was signed 1790, Nathan Hawkes, Parish Clerk. In 1805 the system was once again changed. In 1779 he was Constable of Lynn and on 18 Jan. 1781 he became one of the committee for raising men for the Continental Army. (MA Town Officials 1775-83, Vol. 3, p. 222, 227). He served as Selectman of Lynn in 1805, 1806, 1807; and 1811 he and James Gardiner were named a Committee to build the Downing Road. Before the building of the first schoolhouse, the first detached school of the Third Parish was established in an apartment of Nathan's house. The first school report made to the Town of Lynn mentioned the school at North Saugus: "also the school at Nathan Hawkes"; present, twelve. All the schools visited were in good order". This report was dated 14 Apr. 1812.

In 1814, Nathan was active in the presentation of a petition at Lynn Town Meeting which resulted in Lynnfield becoming a separate town, rather than a parish of Lynn. Then, the following year, came his greatest achievement, the establishment by the Legislature of the Town of Saugus. Nathan Mortimer Hawkes writes of this in "Hearths and Homes of Old Lynn": He was the principal petitioner for this act, and for the contest, his ripe experience in town affairs, and the recognition by the people of both parts of the town of his ability and fairness, amply qualified him to win the legislative battle which added Saugus to the list of Massachusetts towns in 1815.

No probate record for Nathan or Sarah found.

Daniel dropped the "e" from the Hawkes name as did others who left the family homestead and migrated westward into New York State. Early in life he left Saugus, making his way west by way of Groton, near Pepperell where he was m., then Fitchburg, Hubbardston, and later Petersham, all in Worcester County, MA. His wife Rhoda was the dau. of William[4] Perham who "resided in Ashby, Middlesex County, and several other towns in that vicinity, changing his abode frequently and finally moving to the interior of NY state where he d. in 1793. His wife's name not given. Dau. Rhoda m. Daniel Hawks, her older sister m. Ebenezer Eaton (probably the Eaton family living next to the Daniel Hawks family in Richfield, Otsego County, NY in 1790 census), and younger sister m. Benjamin Whitney. All of these daughters moved to the Mohawk River in NY. (From an old letter, no date, and no name, in AHFA files.)

Following their marriage Daniel and Rhoda settled in the district of Hubbardston which had been formed from Rutland and was in Worcester County, directly east of the town of Petersham. Apparently their church connections were in Petersham as the town records there in 1775 record, "Daniel Hawks is on the Committee to see ca. public worship on the Lord's Day and worship not to be disturbed by anyone going into the desk."

When the Rev. War broke out David Hawks of Hubbardston, most likely Daniel, is listed with the following service in Massachusetts Soldiers and Sailors in the War of the Revolution, p. 561. Private, list of men returned as serving on picket guard under Major Loammi Baldwin, dated 11 May 1775. Also Captain Adam Wheeler's Company, Colonel Ephraim Doolittle's Reg't.; receipt for advance pay signed by said Hawks and others, dated Charlestown Camp, 13 July 1775; also private, same company and reg't.; company return dated Camp at Winter Hill, 6 Oct. 1775; reported deserted.

It is likely from this record that he was a participant at the Battle of Bunker Hill. Comparing the last date of service with the birth of his first son ca. two months later, it seems reasonable to believe that he found it necessary to return to his home and wife to prepare for the birth of the child and to make the family secure for the winter months. Enlistments were of short and varying duration in Rev. War times and desertions are not to be interpreted as in the modern sense. There is an additional record of service in Massachusetts Soldiers and Sailors of the Revolutionary War, p. 560, for Daniel of Petersham, private, Captain Wing Spooner's Company, Colonel Nathan Sparhawk's Reg't. Enlisted 21 Aug. 1777, travel to camp and home, 180 miles, service at 20 miles per day, 9 days, mileage home 90 miles also allowed. Company also marched from Petersham to Bennington 21 Aug. 1777 to reinforce the army under General Stark. Private in Massachusetts Militia of Petersham 1783. A descendant, Edward Allerton Hawks, wrote in 1952 of having Daniel's silver watch, mirror, and other items including the old flintlock fowling piece which he carried from Saugus and used later as a Minute Man in the Rev. War.

The home in Petersham to which the family moved was reported still standing and occupied in 1968 and marked by the Petersham Historical Society. In A History of Petersham, MA by Mabel Cook Coolidge, 1848, "A tract of land on the east side of the Hardwick Road owned by Whitney, later by Dickison, Daniel Hawks, and Joshua Pillsbury: Daniel Hawks was living there in 1781. Prior to this in 1778 the town had voted to allow Daniel Hawks 7 pounds, 10 shillings for his apprentice's services. In 1783 Daniel served as selectman in Petersham. (Massachusetts Town Officials, Vol. 4, p. 168) Again he was selectman in 1784 and bounds of road to his house were mentioned. In 1785 a list of Court of Common Pleas includes name of Daniel Hawks.

Between the years of 1775 and 1789 Daniel signed a number of deeds, both as grantor and grantee which have been recorded at Worcester County Registry of Deeds as follows:

145:215 Daniel Hawks of Petersham, yeoman, for 333 pounds, 6 shillings, 8 pence paid by Benjamin Whitney of Petersham, yeoman, 75 acres on town road, abutters John Stoals, Joseph Negus, John Wording, Benjamin Chandler, together with all buildings. 12 Mar. 1789. Daniel Hawks. Witnesses: Jeremiah Gallond and Jesse Dimick, 7 Feb. 1803, personally appeared before me Jedediah Peck, one of the judges for the Common Court of Pleas for the County of Otsego, NY. Daniel Hawks, a person well-known to me who acknowledged he signed the above, etc. Examined and recorded Worcester County, 5 Mar. 1803. Daniel Clap, Registrar. This last deed is proof that the Daniel Hawks of Petersham is the Daniel Hawks who migrated to Otsego County, NY.

By the late 1780's the family removed to Vermont, (family tradition) and then on to New York State, settling at Richfield in Otsego County, then part of Montgomery County. It was in the highlands at the head of the Susquehanna River, southeast of the center of the state. The first settlement had been at Cherry Valley in 1740, then the extreme outpost of the advance of civilization west. Growth was extremely slow due to fear of Indian hostilities; during the Revolution it was still a frontier outpost, and in 1778 there was an attack by tories and Indians and a horrible massacre ensued. However, at the close of the war, settlements progressed rapidly and the fertile lands were taken up for agricultural purposes. Otsego County, called "The Far West", was an eagerly sought goal. Land patents were cut up into farm-sized lots and sold. (Yester Years, Vol. 3, No. 9, p. 35) Richfield, near Schuyler Lake, with hills on either side, was formed in 1792. Daniel Hawks settled at or near Richfield Springs in 1789 (French's Gazeteer of New York, pp. 530-1, 537). In the 1790 United States census the family was listed at German Flats, Montgomery County, (undoubtedly the same location, due to division of county boundaries) There were 4 males above 16; 2 males under 16; and 5 females. The census shows them living between the Eaton Family and that of John Hitchings, brother-in-law, who m. Daniel Hawks' sister Lois.

In those early days the settlers had no sugar, tea or coffee; they drank sassafras tea, made from the root of the native sassafras tree. Daniel became a prominent member of the town: he served as a member of the Assembly in 1802, 1805 and 1811 (Dr. Henry A. Ward "Annals of Richfield" Pierstine Printing House, 1898, p. 25 35, 36). In 1801 he was Delegate from Otsego County to the Constitutional Convention when Aaron Burr served as its President. The Convention was held in Albany, Oct. 13 to 27, 1801 to settle the controversy regarding the relative powers of the Governor and Council's appointments, respecting nominations for office and making alterations in the Constitution.

On 22 May 1805 Daniel wrote from Richfield to his brother Nathan in Lynn as follows:

Dear Brother,

Having an opportunity to write to you today I wish to inform you that we are all well, hoping that these lines will find you so, and all your family, and all the rest of our friends. Give my love to sister, and all my friends, and in a nice manner thank Moses Mansfield for his trouble in coming to see me. I have not got anything in special to write, but want to see you. I have not had one line from you since I lived in this town. I sent you several letters but I had no returns and I thought you had forgotten you had a brother, but my son that was to see you last year, he gives me information of the kind treatment he received from you and from all my friends which gives me much pleasure. I should be glad to see you up in this country that we might converse together. We grow old and I think you might come and see me. I have thought of coming down to see you all these many years but something would always turn up so that I could not come and I don't know when I can. I am chosen a member of the Legislature this year, which will require my attendance this winter, and if I live and am well and my family, I hope to come and see you and the rest of my friends in ca. one year from this date. You will read this by my son. He has not been able to work for two years, and the Doctors think it will be best for his health to go to the salt water. I hope you will advise him what you think will be for the best. If he should want to get into any business, you may recommend him as honest and faithful. Give my love to my sisters and tell them that I want to see them all, and I pray God to keep you all in his holy keeping. This from your brother. Daniel Hawks.

By 1829 Nathan had d. and Daniel, being elderly, had his dau., Anna Hawks Hewes write for him to the widow Sarah Hawkes or her dau. Hannah, on Aug. 20, to the care of Mr. Field: Respected Aunt and Cousins: At the particular request of my father and my mother together with my own anxiety to hear from you I now take my pen to write to you again although my letter that I wrote to you two years ago remains unanswered. That letter I wrote in answer to one you wrote giving an account of your father's death but my friends if you received that letter do not treat this with similar neglect, for father is very anxious to hear from you, do write soon and be very particular in giving an account of all your family, and whether you have heard from your bro. James. Your friends in this place enjoy a comfortable state of health except father and mother. Father for this ten years past has been subject to sick distress turns, many times when I have been to see him I have thought we should soon be deprived of the counsel and tender affection of one of the best of parents, but thanks to an over ruling providence that he is yet permitted to be with us a little longer. Mother has had very good health until a year and a half ago, she fell and broke her limb near the ankle joint from which she suffered the most extreme pain through the winter and she still remains weak and feeble. Your Uncle Hitchings, the last time I heard from him possessed good health and cheerfulness of mind, more than is common for his age but his family are not commonly healthy, more subject to sickness and debility. Susanna in particular. My family is the same it was when I saw you except the growth of my children. Mr. Hewes and brothers and sisters wish to be remembered to you, and accept from me dear friends my best wishes of health, peace and happiness from yours, Anna Hewes.

Finally, a letter to Sarah Hawks, Lynn, County of Essex, State of MA, posted at E Richfield, 22 Feb. 1831, for 18 1/4 cents reads: Dear Aunt: Although I have not the pleasure of being personally acquainted with you, believing that affection exists even between those who have never formed an acquaintance except by way of written communication. Our much respected and esteemed father is no more, he continued along until the 8th of May 1830. When he fell asleep in Jesus without moving a hand or foot. He was professedly Universalist and believed in final restitution of all things. Mother and the rest of our friends are well as usual. Uncle John Hitchings is dead and Moses, William and Thomas. Mr. Hewes that m. Anna moved into Chatauqua County, we heard from them that they are all well. Rhode who m. Judge Woodbury is dead and has left four children. Give my love to all our friends and accept for yourself my best wishes. Moses Hawks. Sally Hawks.

"Know all men by these presents, that I James Hawkes of Petersham, in the County of Worcester and Province of Massachusetts Bay in New England, cordwinder, one of the sons of Moses Hawkes late of Lynn, yeoman, deceased, for good causes and considerations, more especially of the sum of

In the History of Petersham by Mabel Cook Coolidge 1948, p. 183: "James was paid for 120 miles of travel," ca. the distance to and from Cambridge.

His marriage and the births of his older children occurred in Petersham, then through the following deeds we find the family living in nearby New Braintree, Worcester County, MA.

James and Olive Hawks were recommended to the "Church in Woodstock" in 1789; however, the 1790 census lists them at New Braintree, Worcester County, MA. No record has been found for them either in Woodstock, VT or Woodstock, CT.

m. at Lynn, Essex County, MA, 10 July 1765 (Lynn VR) HANNAH NEWHALL, dau. of Moses and Susannah Bowden Newhall, b. 26 June 1746 Saugus (Lynn VR); d. 10 May 1827 ae 82 at Boston, MA (Columbian Centinel), buried Copp's Hill Burying Ground. (Lynn in the Revolution, by Howard Kendall Sanderson, 1909, p. 299). (Mayflower Index)

Adam was b. in Saugus, then still a parish of Lynn, MA., the sixth of eight children of John Hawkes "the smith." The five older children were all girls; the next younger than Adam was likewise a girl. When he was six, his younger bro. John was b, shortly after the death of their father. When Adam was ten, his mother m. a second time: on 1 Nov. 1753 at Lynn to Thomas Fuller. (Lynn VR)

On 10 July 1765 Adam was m. by Parson Roby to Hannah Newhall, dau. of an old and prominent family of Lynn. That summer the fine old house which later became known as the Hitchings-Draper-Hawkes house was conveyed to Adam by Joseph Hitchings. It is pictured and fully described by Nathan Mortimer Hawkes in his book "Hearths and Homes of Old Lynn" in a chapter entitled "A homestead by Grace of the Indians", pp. 33-43). It stood on the intervale west of the Ironworks, known as the Plough Plains, a large saltbox house with a center chimney, near the west side of the Newburyport Turnpike, facing south as was customary, until the mid-1960s when, surrounded by the commercialism of the 20th century and now a derelict and vacant, it was completely demolished by fire. But here eight children were b. to Adam and Hannah Hawkes. While the family increased, Adam farmed the land and carried on his trade of Cordwainer, making shoes during the winter months and then traveling as far away as Providence to sell them.

Massachusetts Tax Value List of 1771 by Pruitt, 1978, #0215-1240 lists Adam paying two polls; owning a house and shop; real estate value 7 pounds, 10 shillings. Included in property is one servant for life. Value of money lent on interest; 20 pounds. Livestock included two horses, two oxen, six cattle, four goats and sheep, two swine. Land included 14 acres of pasture which would keep four cows; four acres for tillage; sixty bushels grain produced per year; six barrels of cider per year; six acres of English hay and upland, mowed land, three tons of hay; six acres fresh meadow producing four tons of fresh hay. Note: also listed in the Pruitt Tax List of 1771 is a second Adam, #0215-0235. His listing was one poll; real estate, four pounds, 10 shillings, at Lynn; livestock - one horse, three cows, one goat, one swine, eight acres pasture to keep two cows; acres for tillage 1.50; bushels of grain, 12 per year; acres of English and upland mowing land, two; tons of English and upland hay per year; one; acres of fresh meadow, two; tons of fresh meadow hay per year, two. Although the listing is in Adam's name, it undoubtedly refers to Moses, deceased (see #16) whose tax was paid by Adam Hawkes, Constable.

When the Rev. War started, on the 19th of April in 1775, Adam was a private in Captain David Parker's 1st Lynn Company of Minutemen, which marched probably on the alarm to Concord; service 2 days. (MA Soldiers and Sailors in the Rev. War) In the summer of 1777 he enlisted for 3 months; went to Boston; was taken sick; returned to Lynn and procured his nephew Daniel Fuller of Lynn as his substitute. Daniel went to Boston and was employed principally in guarding ships in which prisoners were confined, and guarding military stores; while he was there, word came re the surrender of General Burgoyne and 'there was a general time of rejoycing and guns firing constantly from the batteries and ships lying in port, and in the evening the houses were illuminated' and at the expiration of the 3 months he was discharged and returned home to Lynn (New Hampshire Pension Records, Vol. 21, p. 125) In the Old Family Bible there appears a statement of Adam's final action in the Revolution: He entered into privateer service, and was on the "Greybow" commanded by Captain Hammon (?Hammond) 9 May 1778 and was taken by the enemy and carried to Halifax Nova Scotia to prison, where he remained until the last of Sept., when he was exchanged and on the 16th of October he arrived at Boston, and got home on Friday the 19th of October sick with the yellow fever, which continued till the 20th when he dyed." (Lynn in the Revolution by H. K. Sanderson, p. 299) (Known Military Dead During the Revolutionary War, by C. S. Peterson, 1959, p. 83) (DAR Patriot Index, 1966, p. 134) (History of Saugus, by H. H. Atherton, 1916, p. 36)

In 1785 his widow sold the farm and moved first to Wakefield and later to Boston (Essex Inst. Col., Vol. 25, p. 69), with the children. Adam d. intestate; on 3 Feb. 1784 his estate was probated (Essex County Probate #12903) and administration granted to Thomas Hawkes; The Committee to Appraise included Daniel Hitchings, Benjamin Mansfield, and Ebenezer Hawkes. Bondsmen were Thomas Hawkes, blacksmith, Daniel Hitchins, blacksmith, and Nathan Hawkes, gentleman, all of Lynn. Thomas Hawkes was called bro. by the widow: it will be noted that actually he was brother-in-law, as he had m. Hannah's sister, Esther Newhall. The estate was found to include the dwellinghouse and barn, and 25 acres of land adjoining as well as a woodlot of 3 acres; 2 cows, and the furnishings of the home. The house, barn and land were sold to Elkanah Hawkes for 115 pounds. Among the debts was one to Dr. Tufts who undoubtedly attended Adam in his last illness. Also to Hannah Fuller, his mother. Nine shillings was paid to Nathan Hawkes for his journey to Ipswich as bondsman. Hannah signed her mark to the following statement: "This is to desire you to appoint my bro. Thomas Hawkes to be administrator on my late husband, Adam Hawkes' estate." Later, on 12 July 1792, when her younger son became 14 years of age, Essex County Probate #12904 states: Hannah Hawkes widow, bro. Thomas Hawkes blacksmith, and Joseph Haven Hawkes blacksmith, bonded 300 pounds; Hannah nominated and allowed to be guardian of Adam Hawkes minor, age 14, son of Adam Hawkes.

Adam was a blacksmith. The Massachusetts Tax Value List of 1771 by Pruitt, 1978, lists Adam in Reading, #0333-0831. At this time he had two ratable polls, property valued at 1 pound, 10 shillings. He owned two acres of pasture and 4/10 of one cow, five acres of fresh meadow producing three tons of fresh hay.

According to Middlesex County Probate records #10822, Lydia Hawkes and Josiah Walton, yeoman, and Nathaniel Wyley, treasurer, all of Reading, MA made administrators. Adam 17 pounds, 7 shillings, also Benjamin shall pay to brother Adam 11 pounds, 17 shillings. (As Huldah Hawkes Brown was a dau. by the first wife and Benjamin son by the second wife is here omitted it seems reasonable that the Master referred to Benjamin) Further Probate Records 10823 - 6 show that Lydia Hawkes was appointed guardian for Adam Hawkes, minor, in the tenth year of his age 4 Jan. 1774, Reading, MA, son of Adam Hawkes; also Lydia was appointed guardian of Benjamin in his thirteenth year, same date. "Helen and Mary Hawkes have chosen their mother to be their guardian." (Comment: Helen undoubtedly refers to the Sarah of the Wakefield Vital Records) Also Lydia Hawkes to be guardian of John Hawkes in his twentieth year and Mary Hawkes guardian of Mary in the eighteenth year of her age.

William's mother was widowed when he was only 6. His older sister Elizabeth m. the Reverend Peter Thatcher, Harvard graduate and Rector of the Brattle Street Church (Congregational), Boston. Reverend Thatcher kept a Journal in which William, called "Brother Billy" was frequently mentioned. It tells us that when Billy was 16, he was badly burned by gunpowder in Boston. "Brother Billy drove me to Charlestown in ye slay; I preached there all day"... Brother Billy and Mr. Ruggles dined with us (1772). 1784 Nov. 25 General Thanksgiving: Mr. Sprague and his wife and children, and Brother Billy dined with us. 1794: Jan 25-Heard this morning of the death of Sister Hawkes at Philadelphia. God sanctify it! And, during the Rev. War, while the Reverend Thatcher was visiting troops near Valley Forge, he wrote a letter to his wife mentioning Brother Billy who was a soldier there. (from J. M. Hawks ms)

William first saw duty in the Revolution at nearby Charlestown and Cambridge. On the 30th of May 1775 he enlisted in Colonel John Glover's 21st Reg't. Colonel Glover had gathered ten companies, mostly from Marblehead, three-fourths of whom had workable firearms. The town had voted blankets and provisions, and four days after the Battle of Bunker Hill, 405 strong, the Company marched from Marblehead Training Field to Cambridge, "confident and colorful in their blue pants and jackets with leather buttons." It seems probable that William joined them in Cambridge where his relatives, the Thatchers lived. He was ca. 18 at the time. On the first of January 1776 most of the men of the 21st or Marine Reg't. re-enlisted for the War and formed the 14th Continental Reg't. of the Army. Col. Glover was commissioned Colonel of the new Reg't., and William Hawkes was among those who re-enlisted for the year. The list of Officers included him as Ensign, third company. On July 20 they march marched from Beverly, MA to New York where on August 9 they joined General Sullivan's Brigade. Two fireships set sail up the Hudson River to try to set fire to two British men-of-war, the Phoenix and the Rose, at Tarrytown; these ships retreated back to the Fleet. On Aug. 27, the 14th Reg't. was stationed on New York Island during the Battle of Long Island. When Washington decided on the perilous plan to evacuate the Army from LI to the NY side, Glover's men manned the vessels and flatbottomed boats to transport them across. General Washington himself was there encouraging the men in their arduous efforts. At first the weather prevented either sailing or rowing across; later the wind abated and a thick fog gave them cover to transport the retreating army. It is said that this event, called one of the most remarkable of the war, did much toward establishing the fame of Washington; and that it would have been impossible but for the skill and activity of Glover and his Marblehead Reg't. Later they participated in the evacuation of New York, and on the 18th of October there was a skirmish in which Glover and his Reg't. played a conspicuous part, and "behaved with such gallantry as to receive the special thanks of both General Lee who recommended the Division, and General George Washington himself."

Having earlier been listed as Sergeant of Co. 5, William was raised to the rank of Lieut. 1 Jan. 1777. He continued to serve under Glover, and fought at battles of Trenton, Monmouth, Rhode Island; was a prisoner for 15 weeks, and was at Valley Forge through the long "Winter of Despair", 1777-1778. Valley Forge is a small village on the Schuykill River, ca. 27 miles northwest of Philadelphia. Here General Washington and his Continental Army encamped during those long cold months of suffering and discouragement for the American cause. They had little food and inadequate clothing. Some 11,000 of them lived in crude huts they built. Many were barefoot and over 3,000 d., partly due to conditions and partly because of a smallpox epidemic. Many began to criticize Washington and to wish him removed. However, with spring and the news of the alliance with France, things began to take a turn for the better. By September 1778 William was back in New England, at Pawtuxet. Then, on 17 Nov. of that year, came the most disastrous event for William; he was discharged by sentence of court-martial.

The "Massachusetts Soldiers and Sailors in the Rev. War" lists the following service: William, Marblehead- Sergeant Captain Francis Symond's 9th Co., Colonel Glover's 21 Reg't.; muster roll dated 1 Aug. 1775; enlisted 30 May 1775; service, 2 months, 7 days; also, company return (probably October 1775); also, order for bounty coat or its equivalent in money, dated Danvers 13 Feb. 1776. William: Lieut. Colonel Henry Jackson's (late William R. Lee's) Reg't.; Continental Army pay accounts for service from 1 Jan. 1777 to 17 Nov. 1778; reported discharged by general court-martial 17 Nov. 1778. Also 1st Lieut., Captain Jonathan Drown's co., Colonel Lee's Reg't.; pay abstract for Sept. 1777; engaged 1 Jan. 1777. Also, (late) Colonel Lee's 13th Reg't. commanded by Lieut. Colonel William S. Smith; return of officers dated Pawtuxet 19 Sept. 1778. William: Ensign, 14th Continental Infantry 1 Jan. - 31 Dec. 1776. William P. Boston: rank, Lieut.; residence Boston; appointed 1 Jan. 1777 ------ etc.

Francis B. Heitman in Historical Register of Officers of the Continental Army during the War of the Revolution, Washington, D.C., 1914, p. 280 lists Hawks, William (Mass), Ensign, 14th Continental Infantry, 1st Jan. to 31st Dec. 1776; First Lieut. of Lee's Additional Continental Reg't., 1st Jan. 1777; cashiered, 17th Nov. 1778. Apparently undaunted by his court martial in the army, William now turned his attention to the Merchant Service where he became a Captain and fought on for a number of years. Much more information ca. his army service and service and service at sea is found in the following notes from the widow's pension record. During the war William kept a book headed "Francis Symonds, Captain; William Russell, First Lieut.; George Sincross, Second Lieut. , He was the Second Sergeant of Captain Francis Symond's Company from July to Sept. 1775 inclusive. This book was found among his papers by his widow after his decease and was used by her as evidence of his Rev. War service. The first date in the book was 29 July 1775. It confirmed his engagement in the battles in and

ca. New York, Long Island, Trenton, Monmouth, Rhode Island, and elsewhere and that he was twice wounded. Its present whereabouts is unknown.

In a letter dated 16 Dec. 1817, William Hawks, then Harbour Master of Philadelphia, wrote to the Governor of that Commonwealth. "I am a native of Boston and at the time when the first Blood was spilled in the American Revolution I received an Ensign's Commission in the 14th Continental Reg't. commanded by Colonel Glover and am one amongst the few that remain alive who were first on the lines at Charlestown and Cambridge when our great Washington took command of the Army. I remained in actual service in the regular army of the United States the whole of the first four years of the Glorious Contest for Independence in which time we were in all the Battles in and ca. New York and Long Island, at Trenton, Monmouth, Rhode Island, etc. I was wounded in the right arm and also in the left breast, the effects of which speak loudly for themselves at this day. I also received a Bayonet Wound on board the old Jersey prison ship by the ferocious guards--which nearly put an end to my very existence.

Having been brought up to the Sea I was all the rest of the War constantly employed on board Armed Vessels except when a Prisoner with the Enemy at St. Eustatia at New York 15 weeks on board the old Jersey."

In 1786 William, now a sea captain, m. Hannah Blaney of Malden, MA. She was ca. ten years his junior and was the dau. of Captain Benjamin Blaney of Rev. War fame. He had been elected Captain of the Malden Militia as had his father before him and he served under General Washington at Cambridge and environs.

Although the 1790 census does not show William either in MA or PA, the pension record indicates that he and Hannah removed to Philadelphia by 1787. In 1794 Hannah d. there as indicated both by Peter Thacher's Journal and St. Peter's Church records and she was buried in the graveyard surrounding St. Peter's Church where they attended. This fine old red brick church with the traditional tall white spire still stands at Third and Pine Streets, Philadelphia, where its first services were held 4 Sept. 1761. George and Martha Washington frequently attended services there and it was not far from the home of William Hawks. It is today an historic building open to the public. The interior is original with high back box pews; a unique feature is the separation of altar and pulpit and the unique two-tiered reading desk and wine glass pulpit. The old graveyard surrounding St. Peter's has changed little in more than two centuries. There, in addition to Hannah, are the graves of his second wife and William himself.

Although the date of his second marriage is unknown, the 1800 census places William at Philadelphia and in his household are 2 females ages 16-25. Ten years later he is found at 193 Walnut Street, Philadelphia. At this time there are three females: a child, undoubtedly his second wife Abigail, and another adult. In 1817, five years following William's appointment as Harbour Master for the port of Philadelphia, his second wife Abigail d. In that year he wrote to the Governor of the Commonwealth seeking reappointment as follows: "Sir, the enclosed recommendation of my fellow citizens to Your Excellency consisting of all the wardens of the port, all those who are affected by the conduct of the harbour master in his official capacity and many of the respectable leading characters of our democratic family will apologize for the freedom I take in soliciting my reappointment as Harbour Master for the city and port of Philadelphia to which station I was appointed on the death of Captain Samuel Young in the year of 1812. The late war commencing soon after my present appointment and Commerce became in consequence reduced to such a low ebb that for three years' attendance to the duties, the whole amount of my fees did not amount to $60 per annum and now, being advanced in years and having been more than thirty a citizen and ship master of this port in all which time I have so conducted as to meet with the approbation of all my employers and of my fellow citizens in general.

I trust your Excellency will consider my situation and be pleased to continue me in the office of Harbour Master whereby a strict attention to the faithful discharge of its duties I can best certify the great respect with which I am sir, your most humble servant, William Hawks, Harbour Master, Philadelphia, 16 Dec. 1817.

On the following year he was m. for a third time, to Sarah Hufty at the Second Presbyterian Church. William was now ca. 60 and his young bride ca. 20. The marriage was recorded on the church register and also Sarah preserved a certificate given to her. In 1820 the census locates tham at 6 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia. No one else is listed in the household. They continued to reside there until his death in 1829. She stated that he left a will which was proved at Philadelphia naming her executrix and that letters testamentary were granted. A recent search shows no record found at Probate Court, Philadelphia. Sarah remained a widow. Thirty years later the United States census shows her as Sarah H. Hawks, age 50, b. PA, property value $5,000 on 17 Aug. 1850 at Moyamensing, Philadelphia Co. PA, reel 809, in the household of John W. Eldridge, age 34, real estate agent, b. NJ; Sarah A. Eldridge, age 28, b. PA; James Eldridge, age 7, b. PA. A relationship between Sarah Hawks and Sarah Eldridge is suspected but undocumented. In 1859 Sarah applied for a widow's pension based on her deceased husband's Rev. War service under the act of 3 Feb. 1853. Substantial inquiry then ensued as no Rev. War officer's widow had previously applied for a pension following court-martial of the officer. Sarah had not known any relatives of her late husband. He apparently had cut off all ties with the New England relatives and had dropped the "e" from his surname; however, the attorney wrote, "I can find a number of most respectable citizens who knew Captain Hawks personally in his latter years, etc." And finally the pension was granted on 22 Oct. 1859, retroactive to 1853. The widow received $308.11 annually. Copy of pension file is in the AHFA files.

On 10 July 1873 Sarah Hufty Hawks of the City of Philadelphia, widow, made her will bequeathing all her estate to her beloved grand niece Mary D. Sterling, the wife of John Sterling, M.D. and appointed said Mary executrix. The will was signed by Sarah Hawks, her signature matching those in pension application above. The will was witnessed by T. Herbert Ja_(?), George H. Van Zant and F. Elwood Potts. Note - no probate number or date of death was given on copy of will provided by Division of Probate, City Hall, Philadelphia, PA.

The Massachusetts Tax Value List of 1771 by Pruitt, 1978, lists Thomas at Lynn, #0215-0301. At that time he had two ratable polls, one ox, two cattle and two swine.

Thomas and Esther had seven children whom they raised in a house built by his father Elkanah, in Oaklandvale (part of Saugus), a few rods west of Forest Street. When the Rev. War started, he and his father both answered the call as Minutemen; he was a Sergeant in Captain David Parker's (1st Lynn) company who probably marched on the alarm of 19 Apr. 1775 to Concord; service 2 days. (Ref.: MA Soldiers and Sailors in the Rev. War; DAR Patriot Index; Lynn in the Rev., p. 302). He held the following Town positions; 1775 Town Collector and Constable; 1776-8 Constable; 1783 Fence Viewer (MA Town Officials 1775-83, Vol. 3, p. 218-21). In 1780 he was listed as a blacksmith. In 1796 he was "of Boston". In 1790 as in 1800 US Census, he was not listed as head of a household, so he was most likely then living with one of his children. No record in Essex County Probate.

b. ca. 1753 Lynn, Essex County, MA (Richard Pratt's Common Place Book, p. 65)
d. after 2 June 1796 (Essex County Deed 159-281)
No known record of any marriage.

Elkanah grew up on his father's farm. The first record we have of him is in Richard Pratt's Common Place Book; p. 65. He was in a hunting accident at the age of 16 in 1769 resulting in the loss of an arm. Copy of this book is in the NEHGS Library, 101 Newbury Street, Boston, MA. "Sept. 21, 1769 Elkanah Hawkes, Jr., shot throw his arm taken of the 22nd day of the same month." (Spelling as in original) Undoubtedly it was due to this hunting accident that he did not serve in the American Revolution as did his father and two brothers. He became a school teacher, first in Lynn and later in Boston. His name does not appear in Essex County, Middlesex or Suffolk County probate records, however he was named in his father Elkanah, Sr.'s, will of 1778. "I give and devise unto my son Elkanah Hawkes and to his heirs 3/18ths part of my real estate. I also give and bequeath unto him my desk." It is noted that the phrase "and to his heirs" was written in rather as an afterthought signifying that he probably was not m. at that time.

Apparently Elkanah became interested in public service ca. 1790 Suffolk County. The 31st Report, Boston Records 1784-1796, p. 244 shows a count of votes for a Registrar of Deeds for the County of Suffolk brought in and counted by the selectmen when it appeared that the whole number was 1119 and Elkanah Hawkes came in 4th in the voting; "all the above being suitable persons and freeholders." Again ibid, p. 286, Elkanah was unsuccessful in an effort to become senator "persons voted for a senator from County of Suffolk in 1792." He received a very small number of votes.

As Elkanah, Jr.'s name does not appear in the 1790 or 1800 census for MA, either in the Boston area or the Lynn area, it is assumed that he was probably living in Boston in the household of someone else. The last mention found of him in Essex County Deeds: 159-281 when he bought property from his bro. Thomas Hawks. Thomas Hawks of Lynn, County of Essex, State of Massachusetts in New England, blacksmith, in consideration of 100 pounds paid by Elkanah Hawks of Lynn, gentleman, sells to said Elkanah 22 acres of land being all the real estate and interest "which my deceased father, Elkanah Hawks of Lynn" aforesaid gave me by his last will and testament and being two/ninths part of sundry pieces of land and buildings all situate and lying in said Lynn as may fully appear by said will and testament. Thomas's wife Esther relinquishes right of dower. Signed and sealed this 17th day of April 1783. Thomas Hawks, Esther Hawks. Witnesses Elizabeth Hawks, Grace Hawks. Note: this deed was not finally recorded until 2 June 1796, some 13 years later. On that day Thomas Hawks acknowledged the within instrument to be his voluntary deed.

Ezra was just coming of age when the Rev. War broke out. He was a Minuteman, and saw further service, which is recorded both in "Massachusetts Soldiers and Sailors in the Rev. War", Vol. 7, p. 536, and the Hist. of Malden, MA by D. P. Corey 1899, p. 744 and 817. "Private, Captain Benjamin Blaney's Co., which marched on the alarm of 19 Apr. 1775 to Watertown by order of (late) Colonel Gardner; service, 1 day also, Lieut. Caleb Brook's (late) Captain Isaac Hall's Co., Lieut. William Bond's (late) Colonel Gardner's 37 Reg't.; order for bounty coat or its equivalent in money dated Prospect Hill 29 Dec. 1775. Private in a company commanded by Captain Benjamin Blaney of Malden, service 3 days; company marched to Point Shirley 13 June 1776, by order of Gen. Lincoln." (This was General Benjamin Lincoln of Hingham, MA who later received the sword of British General Cornwallis in surrender at Yorktown). According to the MA Archives: Rev. Rolls xi 209, the Minutemen of Malden who were privates were paid 1 s 4d for the day's service and allowed 34 miles travel "out and home." Captain Blaney's company was Co. 4 of the 1st Reg't. of the Middlesex militia.

In 1778 Ezra's father Elkanah's will was probated and Ezra inherited a portion of his real estate.

No further record. No listing in Lynn or Malden VR. Not found in 1790 US Census.

b. 1730 Marblehead (from grave record)

d. 17 June 1805 age 75 Windham, Cumberland County, ME, buried Anderson Cemetery, Windham, Cumberland, ME

Ebenezer, who was b. in Marblehead, the oldest of eight children, was only 15 when his father d. His grandfather, Ebenezer Senior, assumed responsibility for the family and guardianship of the sons and in 1757 Ebenezer was m. in Marblehead to his cousin Sarah Griffin, the dau. of his father's sister Elizabeth who had m. Joseph Griffin. They migrated from Marblehead to "New Marblehead", ME which became Windham in Cumberland County in 1764, together with his brothers Amos, James, and Nathaniel, their widowed mother and their widowed sister Rachel Hawkes Anthoine. Their bro. Benjamin remained behind in Marblehead, taking over the family properties and business. Following the tradition set by his father and grandfather, Ebenezer became a blacksmith and he was a member of the Society of Friends. He settled his family on the River Road in Windham where he was one of the proprietors. On 19 Mar. 1762 he had received 100 acre lot #19 (Vol. 4, pp. 459-60 Cumberland County Deeds) Indenture of partition. This was part of the original right laid out to his father now deceased. Additional property in Windham was conveyed to him by his grandfather Ebenezer for which he paid 30 pounds. "Know all men that I, Ebenezer Hawkes of Marblehead in the County of Essex in the Province of Massachusetts Bay in New England, blacksmith, in consideration of the sum of 30 pounds to me in hand paid by Ebenezer Hawkes of Windham in the County of Cumberland in said province, blacksmith, my grandson, the receipt whereof I do hereby acknowledge and my self fully satisfied and paid, have given, granted, bargained, and sold and do by these presents give, grant, bargain, sell, aliene enfeoffe and freely and absolutely convey and confirm unto him the said Ebenezer Hawkes." Ebenezer and his brothers Amos, James and Nathaniel appear on the 1795 tax list for Windham, along with Amos, Jr., Ebenezer, Jr., and Joseph of the ext. generation.

According to records from their descendants in Maine, Ebenezer and Sarah were buried in the Smith Anderson Cemetery on the River Road, Windham, not far from where they lived. (See picture in Hawkes Talks, Vol. 11)

Only three of their children are known to us, however the census records seem to indicate more. In 1790 in addition to Ebenezer and Sarah, there were two males over 16; also four females. In 1800 there was a male 16-26 and a male 26-45 as well as 2 females 16-26.

Children:

i. ELIZABETH, b. ca. 1760, probably at Marblehead, d. n.f., m. 28 Nov. 1781 Falmouth, ME (Windham in the Past by Dole, p. 437) PETER MORRILL of Falmouth, son of John and Sarah Morrill.

71- ii. EBENEZER, b. ca. 1765 (1810 Census Windham shows him as over 45)

72-iii. JOSEPH, b. 25 July 1768 Windham, ME (Friends Records)

This information above seems to be confirmed by the Morrell Manuscript by Ethel Morrell McCollisky 1936, at ME Hist. Society although she calls Elizabeth the dau. of Benjamin and Sarah Hawkes; however, the Morrell Family, a typescript at NEHGS Library indicates that Peter, son of John and Sarah m-1 -- Winslow at Falmouth Friends Meeting, and m-2 Marion Meader, the widow Hoag. Further, the Morrell Kindred in America by Annie Morrell Smith 1914 lists Peter-4, Peter-3, John 2-1 as b. 1753 and m. Hannah Winslow. Further investigation in primary records is needed.

Reference for marriage of Deborah Kimball to Benjamin Hawkes: Kimball Genealogy by Morrison and Sharples, p. 82

Benjamin became a cordwainer. Roads in History and Traditions of Marblehead pub. in 1881, p. 261, describes the early beginnings of the shoe business in Marblehead, stating that Benjamin Hawkes, Thomas Garney and Adoniram Orne were the first to engage in the business as a firm, all others prior to this having been in business only on an individual basis.

Benjamin engaged in a goodly number of transactions of property. An interesting deed recorded at Cumberland County, MA (now ME) shows that he purchased from his grandfather Ebenezer Hawkes of Marblehead, blacksmith, for 17 pounds, 15 shillings, 7 pence the southernmost half or 50 acres of a certain 100 acre lot in the town of Windham in the County of Cumberland, it being the lot #40 and drawn in the first division of 100 acre lots to Joseph Gallison from whom Ebenezer purchased it. The whole bounded as follows: southerly on the hard road or highway from Presumscot River, westerly on lot 39 drawn to Joseph Blaney, Esquire, northerly on the 4th road or highway from said river and westerly on lot 41 drawn to Benjamin Dodge. This was signed and sealed on the 30th day of November in the fifth year of his Majesty's reign, A.D. 1764. Signed by Ebenezer Hawkes and witnessed by Joseph Griffin. (Cumberland Deeds, Vol. 3, p. 117) Also he inherited from his father Ebenezer Hawkes, Jr., a 200 acre lot undivided with his bro. Amos, the original right of his father. (Vol. 4, #459-60 12 Mar. 1762) He sold on 3 Feb. 1769 to Thomas Proctor of Marblehead, gentleman, a 10 acre lot called #60 in the houselots in the town of Windham, ME. This recorded deed 134-130 and witnessed by Nathan Bowen and Sarah Johnson. Also there were numerous deeds recorded at the registry of deeds, Essex County, MA including as grantor:

Essex County Probate #12907 gives the following information: Benjamin was called cordwainer and shoreman. He d. intestate and administration was granted to his widow Deborah. b. 12 Apr. 1733 Marblehead (JMH ms.) (1 mo., 12 da. 1733 - Friends Records)

d. 4 Sept. 1826, age 93 Windham, Cumberland County, ME (Dole, p. 439) (Friends Records)
m. 31 Dec. 1761 (Marblehead VR) DEBORAH FLINT, dau. of David and Hannah Holman Flint of Salem, bap. 13 Feb. 1739 (Marblehead VR) (Friends Records), d. 24 Feb. 1822 Windham, ME, age 83 (ibid)

Amos spent his early years in Marblehead. When he was eight, his father d., age 39, leaving his widowed mother with eight children, of whom he was the third son. He m. in Marblehead and then in the spring of 1764 he removed to Windham, Cumberland County, ME along with his brothers, Ebenezer, James, and Nathaniel, their mother and his widowed sister Rachel. There he settled and commenced farming near Duck Pond on part of the ancestral acres.

Deed Vol. 3, p. 152, Cumberland County Registry of Deeds shows Amos paid 15 pounds to his grandfather for 50 acres lot #23, the remaining 50 acres of said lot bought by his bro. James. Benjamin, his older brother, cordwainer and Amos, fisherman were to have the 200 acre lot laid out to the original right of their deceased father Ebenezer by indenture of partition 19 Mar. 1762. (Essex County Deed: Vol. 4, p. 459-60) " To all people to whom these presents shall come, greeting, know ye that I Ebenezer Hawks of Marblehead in the County of Essex and province of the Massachusetts Bay in New England, blacksmith, for and in consideration of the sum of 15 pounds lawful money to me in hand before the ensealing thereof well and truly paid by my grandson Amos Hawks of Windham in the County of Cumberland in the aforesaid province, yeoman or farmer," etc., etc. Again " in willingness whereof I the said Ebenezer Hawks have hereunto set my hand and seal this 13th day of June in the 5th year of his Majesty's reign, A.D. 1765. Signed, sealed and delivered in the presence of us the subscribers, signed Ebenezer Hawkes, witness Ward Chapman and Nathan Bowen, Jr." In 1772 he bought of his bro. Ebenezer the house, barn and 100 acre lot #17 in the first division of lots, later selling the northwest share to his nephew Joseph Hawkes.

Amos and his family continued to be staunch supporters of the Windham Society of Friends and the record of marriages for this family may be found on microfilm of Quaker records for the New England Yearly Meeting #114, pp. 26 and 27, at the Rhode Island Historical Library, Providence, RI. Records from descendants in ME state that Amos and his wife Deborah had 10 children, however only nine of these have been found, possibly another d. young.

The record on microfilm states Amos, father of the above Amos (Jr.) b. 1st month, 12th day, 1733, d. 9th month, 4th day, 1826; Deborah, his wife, b. 2nd month, 13th day 1739, d. 2nd month, 24th day, 1822. The microfilm further adds Amos Hawkes m. Deborah Flint. They came from Marblehead to Windham. Children: Benjamin m. Lydia Winslow (this is erroneous; it must have been added later and it confuses this Benjamin who m. Ruth Roberts with Amos, Jr., who m. Lydia Winslow.) David m. Anna Hawkes, Rebecca m. Timothy Hanson, Betsy m. Stephen Hustin, Phoebe m. Heugh Craig, Hannah m. Ebenezer Leighton, Deborah m. Lemuel Jones.

Apparently members of this family occasionally revisited their homeland of Marblehead, MA. (See Essex Institute Collections, Vol. 91, p. 356, 361. Interleaved almanacs of Nathan Bowen.) "Amos Hawkes' son and dau. came June 1787." Apparently they made the trip by sea on the coasting schooner of their cousin, Benjamin Hawkes, mariner, of Marblehead.

Amos lived to be 93. He is one of the three Hawkes brothers, Ebenezer, Nathaniel, and Amos, who were recalled by a young man later to report and be recorded in JMH ms as "the three old men who walked down the road together every First and Fourth day to the old Quaker Meeting House."

m. 2nd 8 May 1781 (Windham VR) MARGARET ESTES, dau. of Benjamin and Keturah Perkins Estes of Wells, York County, ME, b. ca. 1759 Wells, York County, ME, d. n.f.

Born a Quaker in Marblehead, MA James spent his early years there and became a blacksmith. He was of Windham when he bought land from his grandfather, Ebenezer Hawkes. Fifty acres. Windham. 29 Aug. 1764. "To all people to whom these presents shall come, greetings, know ye that I, Ebenezer Hawks of Marblehead in this County of Essex and Province of the Massachusetts Bay in New England, blacksmith, for and in consideration of the sum of fifty Spanish milled dollars to be well and truly paid or allowed by my grandson James Hawkes of Windham in the County of Cumberland and province aforesaid, joyner, out of his proportion of my estate according to my will which shall fall to him at my decease....bounds given....in witness whereof I, the said Ebenezer Hawks have hereunto set my hand and seal this 29th day of August in the fourth year of his Majesty's reign, A.D. 1764."

James moved to Windham, ME along with his three brothers, Ebenezer, Amos, and Nathaniel, also his widowed mother and widowed sister, Mrs. Anthoine. When he became 31, 11 May 1766, he left the family faith to be bap. by Parson Smith. He was the beloved Reverend Thacher

Smith of the Congregational faith. Services were held in the local fort, due to Indian troubles.

He was m. and had three children prior to the Rev. War. His branch of the family settled around Windham Hill and Windham Center. Apparently he returned to Marblehead at the outbreak of the Rev. War, enlisting in the cavalry and participating in the famous Battle of Bunker Hill. We find in Massachusetts Soldiers and Sailors in the Revolutionary War, p. 557; James Hawkes, Marblehead, matross, Captain Samuel Russell Trevett's Company, Colonel Richard Gridley's Reg't., muster roll dated 21 June 1775, enlisted 15 May 1775, service 1 month, 9 days. His last child by his first wife was b. in 1774 and he had not yet m. a second time. We find no other "James of Marblehead" of military age and it might well be expected that a young man, having grown up in Marblehead would return there because of patriotic fervor. Although his name does appear on the Windham, ME tax list for the year 1775 the short time service of 1 month, 9 days would not have made a difference there. We do know that in later years he did return from time to time to his native town of Marblehead, MA. See Interleaved Almanacs of Nathan Bowen in Essex Institute Collections, Vol. 91 under date Nov. 12, 1779. "James Hawkes came and went home." Also Nov. 8, 1780 "James Hawkes came." The following year he m. a second time and had more children. The 1790 Census for Windham, Cumberland County, ME shows the family having 2 males over 16, 5 under 16 and 3 females.

m. at a Friends' Meeting at bride's father's house at Harpswell, ME 27 July 1771 Harpswell Cumberland, ME, MERCY JONES, dau. of Lemuel and Waite Estes Jones of Harpswell, b. 15 May 1752 North Yarmouth, ME; d. 22 Oct. 1821 Windham, Cumberland, ME (Old Bible Record). She was descended through her mother's side from three Colonial Governors of Rhode Island: John Coggeshall, Nicholas Easton, and Caleb Carr. Her father came from Hanover, Plymouth County, MA, was m. at Falmouth, ME, Friends' Meeting, and later in 1795 bought lot #9 on River Road, North Yarmouth, founding the home which remained for generations in possession of his family. (Sketches of Brooks History by Seth Norwood, p. 328)

Nathaniel was a cordwainer and a farmer. He moved from Marblehead, MA to New Marblehead, or Windham, Cumberland, ME in the spring of 1764 with other members of his family. In May 1765 he was "of Falmouth" Cumberland County, when he bought two parcels of land in Windham from his grandfather, Ebenezer Hawkes, totaling 150 acres. (Deed, Vol. 3, p. 146) Ebenezer Hawkes of Marblehead in the County of Essex, Province of Massachusetts Bay in New England, blacksmith, for 45 pounds paid by grandson Nathaniel Hawkes of Falmouth in the County of Cumberland of the aforesaid province, cordwainer, do convey 50 acres of land at south eastern most end of lot #36 as drawn in the first division of hundred acre lots in the township of Windham in County of Cumberland to Abraham Howard to his right as grantee in said township together with 100 acre lot in said township #22 in the second division of hundred acre lots as drawn to Joseph Gallison to his right as grantee in said township. Signed by Ebenezer Hawkes the 10th day of May in the 5th year of his Majesty's reign, A.D. 1765.

Witness William Goodwin, Benjamin Hawkes. He sold 50 acres of it to Eleazer Chase of Windham in 1765. According to J M Hawks MS, he bought one-half of lot 57 in the second division in 1765 there buil his house, on the Highland Cliff Road in Windham, where he lived and raised his large family. By 1795 he was one of the largest taxpayers in Windham. Dole wrote, in "Windham in the Past", that the remains of his cellar are yet to be seen nearly opposite the present residence of Mr. Eugene Sawyer.

Born a Quaker, he continued in that faith, attending services three times weekly, along with his brothers Ebenezer and Amos. On 13 June 1821 he sold his farm in Windham; both he and his wife signed the deed. Later that same year she d., and he then bought another farm, in China, Kennebec County, ME, giving it to his youngest son Ezra for caring for him for the remainder of his life. (Dole: p. 436 and ff)

Two deeds regarding the same piece of property are recorded at Kennebec County Deeds. The first, 13 Aug. 1821, Vol. 41, pp. 47 and 48; the second 23 Aug. 1821, Vol. 55, p. 134. In the first Ezra Hawkes of China for the sum of $800 paid by Nathaniel Hawkes of China conveyed the southerly half of lot 76 containing 100 acres to Nathaniel Hawkes of China for the sum of $800. Then, signed by Nathaniel on the 16th day of Aug. 23 is the conveyance of the same tract of land back to Ezra Hawkes of China for the same sum of $800. Both are called yeoman. This is obviously a conveyance between father and son as Nathaniel, Jr., the bro. of Ezra Hawkes, was deceased by this time.

In 1808 he bought one-half of his grandfather's farm in Durham, for which he paid the sum of two hundred dollars. It was that half of Elijah Douglas' homestead now owned by Thomas Philbrook, where he resided several years laboring on his farm and making bricks.

In 1809 he bought a farm in Brunswick of Caleb Estes, for which he paid nine hundred dollars. On this farm he had a windmill where he ground corn. The farm is now owned by James H. Cox. He lived at one time in a schoolhouse that stood near his father's farm, which was afterwards owned by Jesse Crosman. On April 10, 1765 the Salem Monthly Meeting Society of Friends recorded "Ebenezer Hawkes and Rebecca Alley appeared a second time regarding their intentions of marriage there. On the 17th day of the 4th month called April in the year of our Lord 1765 Ebenezer and Rebecca appeared in public assembly of the people called Quakers and were m. according to the quaint traditional way which is spelled out in detail in Hearths and Homes of Old Lynn, p. 66 and following by Nathan Mortimer Hawkes. Among the 35 persons who signed the certificate of marriage were Ebenezer and Rebecca Hawkes, the bride and groom, also her relatives, Samuel, Hugh, Sally, and Deborah Alley and Mathew, Philadelphia, and Sarah Hawkes.

Information on Ebenezer's farming operations is to be found in Massachusetts Tax Value List of 1771 by Pruitt, pub. 1978 #0215-0231 as follows: Ebenezer Hawkes of Lynn, one poll, one poll not ratable, one house and shop Town M. District 1. Real estate value 14 pounds, one horse, 4 oxen, 4 cattle, 25 goats and sheep, 3 swine, 30 acres pasture land will keep 10 cows, 8 acres tillage, 100 bushels grain per year, 6 barrels cider per year, 12 acres salt marsh, 8 bushels salt marsh hay, 8 acres English upland, mowing land, 3 tons English hay, 14 acres fresh meadow, 12 bushels fresh meadow hay."

During the 1700's there was a small amount of slavery existing in Massachusetts. In 1776, 26 negro slaves were owned in Lynn and one of these was Phoebe, the slave of Ebenezer Hawkes. She was eventually purchased from her master by her husband Hannibal, the faithful sexton of the Old Tunnel Meeting House on Lynn Common who rang the bell there for so many years. Of him Alonzo Lewis, historian of Lynn writes, "Hannibal, a slave of John Lewis was an example of the good effects which education and good treatment may produce in the colored people. He was brought from Africa when a boy and was treated rather as a servant than a slave. He m. Phoebe, a slave of Ebenezer Hawkes. By the indulgence of his master and by working extra hours, he earned enough to purchase the freedom of three children at $40 each, but Phoebe, being a faithful slave, her master would not part for her short of 40 pounds, yet with a motive of hope before him Hannibal was not to be discouraged and in a few years her purchase was accomplished and his own freedom was given to him. He m. in 1762 and had three sons and six daughters. I have seldom known a more worthy family." James R. Newhall in Lynn, Her First 250 Years wrote, "nearly opposite the Carnes house was the habitation of the negro Hannibal who though once an untutored slave rose to be highly regarded for manliness of character and useful industry. He was brought from Africa when a small boy and became the property of John Lewis, who owned the Carnes house. Hannibal's master generously gave him his freedom and the town gave him the little lot on which his modest habitation was placed. He was sexton of the Old Tunnel Meeting House for many years and ever prompt in warning the people of their Sunday and lecture day duties and as he tolled the bell for the funerals of departed neighbors, by his solemn countenance and measured movement, showed his tender sympathy. In after days with his wife Phoebe, who had been a slave to Ebenezer Hawkes but whom he had redeemed by forty hard earned pounds, he retired to the northern side of Walnut Street, nearly opposite the head of Robinson and there lived encircled by a large and affectionate family till the services of another were required to toll the bell for him. Phoebe collected herbs and distilled rose and mint waters and the ladies of the parish used occasionally of a pleasant afternoon to visit her and take a cup of tea. A worthy son succeeded to the little estate and the humble traffic still went on. Your informant well remembers having gone there when a little lad with the basket of wild rose leaves gathered from the roadside, seeing them deposited in the huge iron pot with its long tin nozzle and returning after a few days for the promised bottle of rose water."

Returning to the family of Ebenezer, he and Rebecca had first three sons and then six daughters and the census for Lynn, Essex County, MA in 1790 indicates there were four males over 16 and six females in the household at that time, one year prior to Ebenezer's death at the age of 55.

Ebenezer left a detailed will which was probated 4 Oct. 1791 at Essex County, #12914, as follows: "Whereas I, Ebenezer Hawkes of Lynn in the county of Essex and commonwealth of Massachusetts, yeoman, being at present in weak state of body but of sound and well disposing mind and memory, thanks be given unto God, calling with my mind the mortality of my body and knowing that it is appointed for all men once to Die, do make and ordain this my last will and testament: that is to say principally and first of all I give and recommend my soul into the hand of God who gave it and my body to the dust to be buried in a decent Christian burial at the discretion of my executor.

Joseph was a birthright member of the Society of Friends. When his grandfather Ebenezer Hawkes of Lynn and Marblehead d., his will was probated in 1767 at Essex County, #12913. This mentioned "my grandsons Ebenezer and Joseph Hawkes, sons of Samuel" and left to them "all my farm with buildings and land in Lynn."

In 1770 just above the site of the Old Iron Works on the Saugus River Joseph built a dam and a grist mill and a saw mill where the present Pranker's Dam stands. This is mentioned on p. 77 of Hearths and Homes of Old Lynn by Nathan Mortimer Hawkes, however in the History of Saugus, MA by Horace Atherton, 1915, pub. by Newcomb and Gauss printers, Salem, MA, erroneously attributes this to Joseph's bro. Ebenezer Hawkes as follows: "At Pranker's Mills ca. 1770 Ebenezer Hawkes made a rude dam and excavated in part the present canal upon the banks of which he built a grist mill and saw mill. In 1794 Benjamin Sweetser bought the property and made chocolate there, becoming famous thereby."

Joseph Hawkes is listed in the Massachusetts Tax Value List of 1771 by Pruitt (1978) 0213-0306 Joseph Hawkes, Lynn, one poll, one house and shop value six pounds, five shillings, live-stock: one horse, four oxen, two cattle, six goats and sheep, two swine. Acreage: 20 acres pasture will keep five cows, four acres tillage, 50 bushels of grain per year, three barrels of cider per year, three acres salt marsh producing two tons of salt marsh hay, four acres English meadow producing two tons English hay per year and six acres fresh meadow producing four tons of fresh hay.

Having m. in 1774, Joseph did not see military service; however during the Rev. War he held the following official town positions: 1778 fish committee, 1779, 1780, 1781 fence viewer. (Massachusetts Town Officials 1775-83, Vol. 3, pp. 221-4.)

According to the Essex County Deed Book, Joseph sold a number of pieces of property between 1772 and 1783. He also made certain purchases during that same interval. On 2 Sept. 1783 he signed an indenture or agreement #141-78 and 79 with Ebenezer Hawkes, his bro.

Essex County Probate #12929 states that on 4 Dec. 1783 there was a request of friends and relatives of Joseph Hawkes of Lynn as follows: "Joseph Hawkes of Lynn, miller, is a distracted person and incapable of taking care of himself, his family or estate and we would therefore pray your honor to issue ye warrant to the selectmen of Lynn town to make inquisition as to the state of mind of said Joseph as the law directs. Salem, 4 Dec. 1783, signed Abner Cheever, Ebenezer Hawkes, Matthew Hawkes. On 5 Dec. 1783 judgment was made that Joseph was indeed a distracted person and that Mr. Ebenezer Hawkes of Lynn, his bro., was appointed guardian. A committee was appointed to appraise his estate. This included Abner Cheever, Esquire, Mr. Thomas Hawkes and Mr. Samuel Mansfield. Their return showed real estate totaling 213 pounds and personal property 78 pounds, 8 shillings, 3 pence. An account made 6 Apr. 1784 included repairs to the mill, supplies, etc. and was attested by Mr. Ebenezer Hawkes, guardian, "being of the People called Quakers solemnly affirmed and declared the account to be true."

Inventory included the dwelling house, two mills and privilege of stream, 8 acres pasture, 12 and a half acres meadow and pasture, six and a half acres by mills, one half acre on the Saugus River. Personal inventory included the household contents with 13 chairs and two spinning wheels; also live stock: two swine, one heifer, one calf. On 27 Apr. 1784 the whole of said Joseph's Real estate was sold by order of the Supreme Judicial Court for 185 pounds. Other expenses included: to Grimes Tufts for boarding: three pounds, seven shillings, seven pence; for shoes and necessities for the family, 14 shillings, 8 pence; to Louis Bruce for tending the mills, clothing for Joseph, total 98 pounds. A later lawsuit was brought by Ebenezer Griffin; costs paid to Samuel Boardman for boarding Joseph, to Dr. Aaron Lummis for medicines and attendance, to Mary Newhall for mending. The Essex County Deed Book indicates on 10 Aug. 1784 property in Lynn was sold by his guardian to Moody Follansbee Essex Deed 141-197.

Nothing further appears in the record ca. the wife, Mary Burrill Hawkes, except an old record stating she d. on 8 Apr. 1835. The vital records of Lynn offer nothing further, nor do the census records for Essex County. There is no record of children; however, it is to be assumed that there were some inasmuch as the probate records refer to Joseph's family rather than just his wife on two occasions.

37. JOHN[5] (Samuel[4], Ebenezer[3], John[2], Adam[1])
Son of Samuel and Philadelphia Estes Hawkes

Trask of Danvers, MA stated in a letter to Dr. John Milton Hawks dated Feb. 1904 that when John d., the widow Jerusha Hawkes and her daughters removed to Hartford, CT. One sister m. there and had a family. Mary never m. and after the death of her mother, she returned to Lynn and spent the rest of her days with her sister Esther Hawkes Shillaber.

John was a birthright member of the Society of Friends. Although the exact date of his birth is not known to us he was named in the will of his grandfather Ebenezer, probated in 1767, as my grandson John, the son of my son Samuel. He became a cordwainer and in the Massachusetts Tax List for 1771, he gave the following information under 0215-0232. John Hawkes of Lynn, two polls, one house and shop, real property value five pounds, two shillings, six pence. Livestock: one horse, two cattle, 20 goats and sheep, two swine. Land: four acres pasture land to accomodate one cow, five acres tillage, 60 bushels grain per year, one barrel cider per year, one acre salt marsh producing one ton of salt marsh hay, three acres English pasture land producing two and a half tons English hay, and one acre fresh pasture producing one ton of fresh hay.

Because of his religious convictions John did not volunteer for service during the Rev. War; however, during that period in 1779 and again in 1782 he served the town officially as hog reeve. (Massachusetts Town Officials 1775-1783, Vol. 3, p. 222 and 225)

m. 14 Aug. 1791 Salem, Essex County, MA (VR) ABIGAIL, called Nabby, BECKETT, dau. of William, Jr., and Mary Murray Beckett, b. 1772 Salem (Hawkes-Raddin manuscript), d. 14 Mar. 1838 age 75 Salem (Hawkes-Raddin manuscript). Notice of her death appeared in the Columbian Centinel as Abigail (Mrs.) wife of Benjamin Hawkes, d. at Salem age 75 in the 21st of Mar. 1838 issue. Also Salem VR and Salem Gazette.

The marriage of Benjamin and Abigail Hawkes was pub. in the Columbian Centinel of Boston on 3 Sept. 1791. They raised their family in the mansion house on Derby Street.

Benjamin was called shipwright and gentleman, resident of Salem. He purchased for his family home at $3,000, one half of a large storage house. The other half was moved away and Benjamin converted the building to a fine three story frame mansion with several chimneys and a widow's walk. Located close to Derby Wharf where Salem's China trade flourished, it is easily identified today (1980) by the ample sign attached to its fence saying "Hawkes House 1780 - a privateer warehouse, a captain's home 1801" It stands on Derby Street between the customs house, Salem's Maritime National Historic Site where Nathaniel Hawthorne once worked as surveyor of the port and Derby House, oldest brick house in Salem, built in 1762 for Elias Hasket Derby, called Merchant Prince and America's first millionaire. Designed by the famous architect Samuel McIntire, it was built by Derby ca. 1774 and was used as a warehouse until ca. 1800. It is now owned and operated by the National Park Service.

Benjamin Hawkes and John Babbidge, whose wives were both of the Beckett family of Salem, set up a ship yard nearly opposite the customs house and became successful ship builders of the firm Hawkes and Babbidge. "John Babbidge boat builder in connection with Benjamin Hawkes ship builder lived at 106 Essex Street., wife Sarah Beckett. He d. 1861 age 93 and three quarters." was made in Essex Institute Collection of 1795: mast and spars for merchant ship John by Hawkes and Babbidge: 75 feet keel, 25 feet beam, 9 1/2 feet hold. The Essex Institute Historical Collections offers considerable information regarding the business of Hawkes and Babbidge. Finally on 30 May 1815 she was sold to Thomas Webb and William Gray of Boston as owners and became a merchantman.

Essex Institute Collections, Vol. 65:519: On 1 June 1816 a ship was built by a number of subscribers and owned in company. Mention is made of Tucker's Wharf, sometimes called "New Dublin" which was once the property of Benjamin Hawkes who had a coal and wood wharf there; Mr. Hawkes being among the earliest dealers in anthracite coal. The writer states the earliest advertisement found in Salem newspapers for this type of coal was 1826. Dealers frequently had to go to houses of customers to show them how to build a coal fire. There were few if any furnaces in houses then and at first the Lehigh coal was used for grates, hard to kindle for those inexperienced. Coal apparently did not come into general use either for warming rooms or for cooking purposes before ca. 1837.

Essex Institute Collection, Vol. 26:271 Benjamin, Jr., became a member of the Salem Light Infantry 20 Aug. 1810. Vol. 31:258-261 describes the formation and activities of the light infantry company formed in the year 1805, two years before the embargo which inflicted the first deadly blow upon the commerce of Salem. Originally made up entirely of Federalists who lived in the upper part of town. The company was under command of Captain James C. King from 1810-1815. "The uniform was the characteristic helmet with pantaloons tight as the skin and half boots outside of the pantaloons laced with red trimmings. It was a trying dress for spindle shanked youngsters but the whole combination has ever since remained as a glory in my memory" - the writer.

When war was declared in 1812 the light infantry company set an example of patriotic devotion. They marched to Boston offering their services to the Commander in Chief, Governor Strong. The infantry company then formed an artillery company made up mostly of masters and mates of vessels thrown out of work by embargoes and war. During the war the British ships constantly cruised off Cape Anne and were at most times in Salem Bay. It was the home guard that was in full charge of defending the home towns.

Benjamin Hawkes, Jr., is credited with service in the War of 1812 as follows: Captain J. C. King's Company, Lieutenant Colonel J. White's Reg't. from 10 June - 1 Aug. 1814. Service at Salem. This service was for military instruction only, for 2 to 10 days. (Records of the Massachusetts Militia in the War of 1812-14 pub. by Adjutant General of Massachusetts, Brigadeer General Gardner W. Pearson, 1913. Also 1812 Pension Records, National Archives, File #SC34617. Private, Captain James C. King's Company, Massachusetts Militia.)

This family lived in Salem but removed to Charlestown, MA where we find them in the 1850 census: Benjamin age 50, clerk; Hannah 47, Abbie B. 19, Jessie D. E. 13; and Sarah Skilton age 67; all b. MA. (Note discrepancy is given age of Benjamin F.)

Their fourth child, Benjamin F. Hawkes 3rd of Washington was b. on Derby St. Salem in the house next to the custom house in 1824 but later lived on Bridge St. He was educated in Salem schools. In 1840 on the recommendation of Ebenezer Putnam, postmaster of Salem, he was appointed by the Honorable Leverett

Saltonstall to the United States Military Academy at West Point. After graduating he served in the Mexican War, resigned from the army, entered the navy and served with the United States Fleet in the Mediterranean. His father and grandfather were called "among the noted merchants of Salem." (see Biographical clippings 41, p. 68) Benjamin Franklin 3rd was in the Civil War, became a Colonel, and later resided in Washington where he worked as clerk in the pension bureau.

Children:

i. ALONZO (note: it appears that Alonzo may come in another line, as his birth is listed in Richfield while the others were mostly in Volney, and also his listed birth is only six months before that of Giles. However the family records place him here, and it may be that there is an error in the birth date, which should be further investigated). b. 8 Oct. 1819 Richfield Otsego Co., NY, d. 1907 (gs), m. 19 Sept. 1841 DORCAS VANT, b. 27 Aug. 1821 at East Kent, England, d. 1912

(gs record)

From JMS ms, Alonzo was a man of great strength and remarkable powers of endurance. He removed from New York state and settled in Illinois in 1847 when Chicago was a mere hamlet. He worked on his farm until he was 81 years of age when an accident with a moving machine deprived him of his right leg below the knee. He was still hale and hearty at the age of 84. It was said by the inhabitants of that section that no man was ever known to throw him on his back in a test of strength and that at 65 no young man was found in his community that dared attempt it. He was as well-known and popular as any man in a wide section of that part of the state. He was a man of great integrity of character, clear-headed, forceful, kind-hearted, sociable and approachable. He had four children.

The 1860 census for Wheeling (PO Dunton) Illinois lists Alonzo Hawks 40, farmer, born New York; Dorcas 39, born England; Frederick 12, born New York; Matthew 9, born Illinois; and Ida 7, born Illinois. iv. HANNAH, b. 13 Mar. 1815 Saugus (VR), d. unm., 28 July 1907 Saugus (State VR). Her obituary, in the files of the AHFA, follows:

Miss Hannah Hawkes, the oldest female resident of Saugus died at her home on Forrest St. on Sunday morning at 2:30 after a 6 week severe illness. In Dec. 1906 she was stricken with a slight shock from which she rallied. Six weeks ago she was obliged to take to her bed from which she never rose. In addition to being the oldest member of this old Saugus family, Miss Hawkes had the proud distinction of being the first white girl born in Saugus after it was set apart from Lynn in 1815. She was born March 13, 1815, in the house now occupied by PATRICK SKEIN and was the daughter of NATHAN & ELIZABETH TARBELL HAWKES. Her father was born in 1775, the year that his father was serving in the War of the Revolution. All Miss Hawkes' years have been spent in the pleasant section of the town where she was born and her education was in the town schools where she afterwards became a teacher herself. She was engaged in teaching in the town schools so long that she was called "the school marm." In her religious faith she was a Universalist, having tried as she often said, several of the other churches and was not satisfied until she joined the Universalists. She was one of the early teachers in the Sunday School of the church known as the First Parish and served also as superindendent.

Daniel was a cordwainer and farmer. His wife, Rachel was a granddaughter of the first minister of the Saugus Church after Saugus became a separate town, the much beloved Parson Roby. In 1808 Daniel was administrator for Lemuel Allen's estate.

During the War of 1812 he served as Sergeant in Brimblecom's Reg't., Massachusetts Militia, along with his brother Nathan, Jr. and John, Matthew, Jr. and Thomas Hawkes. "Congress declared war against England on 18 June 1812. This was called the War of Impressments, because England claimed the right to search American vessels for her sailors. The conflict was chiefly conducted by battleships on the water, but people were much affected by it in the depression of commerce.... On June first, 1813 the English frigate Shannon fought the American frigate Chesapeake in Boston Harbor. The Chesapeake, commanded by Captain James Lawrence sailed out by Nahant while the hills and housetops of Lynn were crowded with spectators who looked on with intense solicitude. Lawrence, wounded, cried out his now famous words, "Don't give up the ship!" (Hist. of Lynn, by Lewis Newhall, p. 372-3)

Daniel is listed as Sergeant in Sergeant T. Mansfield's Guard, detached from D. Capen's Co., Lt. Col. S. Brimblecom's Reg't.: three to nine days from 29 June to 15 Aug, 1814. Service at Lynn. Night guards. (Records of the MA Militia in the War of 1812-14, as pub. by Adj. Gen'l of Massachusetts- Brig. Gen'l Gardner W. Pearson, 1913, p. 118). During a considerable part of the season, guards were stationed in Lynn, on Long Wharf and Saugus Bridge. The town, with its accustomed generosity, allowed to each of its soldiers who went into the service $30 in addition to the pay of the government, which was only $8 per month. (History of Lynn by Lewis and Newhall 1865, p. 377)

In 1833 Daniel sold property in Boston. According to his death, record, he died of "consumption", as did so many of his time.

Son of Nathan and Sarah Hitchings Hawkes
b. 29 Jan. 1779 Saugus (Lynn VR)
d. unm. 2 Nov. 1823 or 1828 (JMHawks ms)

It appears that James was a frail young man who became a cordwainer. He did not participate in the War of 1812 as did his brothers. In May of 1817 he journeyed west to visit his Uncle Daniel Hawks at Richfield, New York. The following year his father wrote to Daniel for a report on James' well being, and Daniel replied as follows: "You requested me to write concerning James. I believe it was the last of May or the first of June that he came here-staid with me about ten months- when he first came his health appeared to be very poor, but before he went away he told me that his health had not been so good in several years as it was then. Concerning his property I must acknowledge that I know but little about it except what came under my observation. He brought several trunks and boxes of shoes and sold out a considerable share of them (as I believe) to a very great profit. He went from here the 11th of March with a good horse and wagon and the remainder of his shoes and other property to a considerable amount. He said he was going to New York and from thence to Lynn where he calculated to stay a few weeks and then his object was to go into some of the southern states." Again, on 25 January 1825, Daniel wrote to James' mother, as his father was now deceased, as follows: "As respects your son James, I have received no information from him since he went away. William Withings says that he told him that he was going to New York and from there into the State of Mississippi- by your not receiving any account from him I fear that the climate has been unfavorable to his constitution."

A search of US Census records for 1820 has not revealed his whereabouts.

m. 2nd, as James Hawks Esquire, of Richfield 3 Mar. 1830 Warren, Herkimer County, NY (Otsego Co. Marriages 1795-1840, 1:56) CHARLOTTE SEELYE, b. ca. 1793 (1850 census Rochester, NY) in CT, d. after 1870 (census)

James spent his early years in Petersham, Massachusetts, migrating to Richfield, New York in 1789 with his family at the age of 14. He taught school, first at Richfield and then at nearby Burlington, both in Otsego County. He may be the James Hawkes mentioned in National Archives Index, War of 1812, who was 2nd Lieut. Artillery (Metcalf's) New York Militia.

In 1815 he returned to Richfield and became Sheriff of Otsego County until 1819. In 1820 he had a home next to his father's, was married and had five sons, three under ten and two between ten and sixteen (US Census). That same year he became a member of the New York Assembly, following in the footsteps of his father who had been elected a member in 1805. The following year he went to Washington, for he was elected a member of the Seventeenth Congress (March 4, 1821 to March 3, 1823). This was during the presidency of James Monroe; the Secretary of State was John Quincy Adams, who was also a descendant of Adam Hawkes, and a fourth cousin of James. These were the days when the Czar of Russia had announced that his claims in Alaska stretched into western Canada. As a result, the Monroe Doctrine was formulated, and Monroe announced to the world that the United States would resist any attempt by European nations to colonize or dominate any part of the Western Hemisphere. Also the problem of Slavery became a center of national alarm when Missouri sought to enter the Union as a slave state, with the result that Congress passed the Missouri Compromise, providing that the northern part of the Louisiana Territory would eventually become free states.

Returning to New York State, James and his family were living once again in Richfield in 1830 with five sons, ranging in age from five to thirty, and one girl between fifteen and twenty. (US Census) Then in 1840 he had moved to Rochester, Monroe County, New York. With him were two sons, one girl 15-20 and his wife.

The 1850 census for Rochester, Monroe County, New York shows James 72 living in the 7th ward, property valued at $7,500, born, Massachusetts with wife Charlotte 57, born, Connecticut, and Michael Oliver 13, attending school, born Scotland. Living nearby were sons Thomas and Daniel and their families. In 1860 James and Charlotte were listed in the household of his brother Thomas at Columbia, Herkimer County, New York, James now 83 and Charlotte 70. In 1870, following his death, Charlotte is listed on the farm at Columbia.

Daniel migrated from Massachusetts to Richfield, New York with his family when a child and grew up there on his father's farm. He served as a private in the War of 1812, in the 159th Reg't. (Hecox's) New York Militia. The NY Council of Appointment, Military Records 1783-1821 lists Daniel, Jr., quarter master, Onondaga Co. 172nd Reg't. James Adams Col. 1816 (p. 1727) and also 172nd Reg't. Job Green, Major, Onondaga Co. Capt., quarter master, vice Daniel Hawkes, Jr., 1817 (p. 1788) Following the War of 1812 according to the treaty between the United States and Great Britain the boundary of the United States was set along the St. Lawrence River to Lake of the Woods. At Oswego immigration which had ceased was now revived. In 1816 was a year of great suffering due to extreme cold. In March of that year the legislature created Oswego County, setting up two jury districts with a court in each at Oswego and Pulaski. This was ten years after Robert Fulton had steamed up the Hudson River. The population of the new county was about six or seven thousand. Daniel and Edmund Hawkes were born among the first county officers there. Appointed by the Governor and Council, Daniel Hawkes of Hannibal was appointed assistant judge of Common Pleas 1816-1817. (Landmarks of Oswego Co. edited by John Churchill, 1895, pp. 146-8, 249) The first courts were held in school houses starting 1816 until the completion of the court houses in 1820. (French's Gazeteer, p. 518) Daniel later moved to Onondaga County, New York where he died and is buried.

Moses grew up on his father's farm, married and continued to live there, caring for his parents in their old age until his father died at 81 and his mother at 90. The J. M. Hawks ms suggests that he married a second wife, Sally, since a letter shortly after his death was signed by Moses Hawks, and Sally Hawks; however, as his first wife was still living and recorded in the 1850 Census, Sally was perhaps the unmarried daughter of his deceased Uncle James, and would logically sign a letter to relatives back in Saugus. By 1850, Moses, age 69 farmer, and Catherine 58 remained, while the three sons had evidently married and left the farm, leaving their three younger sisters still there. Also listed are two young men, Renselear Phillips, 22, and Eugene Vibber, 16, probably hired hands.

Regarding Catherine Stryker, William N. Stryker, author of "The Stryker Family in America," places her as above, adding that she is mentioned in the will of her father, Joseph Striker of Richfield, New York in 1800, and no other Stryker family in that area; she was baptized at Dutch Church, Harlingen, New Jersey 3 April 1791. Descended from immigrant ancestor Jan Stryker from Ruinen, Holland.

The New York Council of Appointments Military Records 1783-1821 shows the following record for Moses: 1811 Otsego County, 7th Reg't. of Cavalry, Jonathan Thayer 2nd Lieut., Moses Hawkes, Cornet (moved): 1st squadron John Badger Capt. (p. 1256) also p. 1374 Moses, Otsego County, Gershom Palmer Lieut. Col. 1812, 11th Reg't., 1st Brigade of Cavalry, Roswell Starr Lieut. Col., Moses Hawkes quarter master. Note: Col. Roswell Starr had married Moses Hawkes' sister Lois - see #19 i. Note: Cornet is an archaic term for an army officer of lesser rank.

(Mayflower Index #13,155)

Thomas was appointed Lieutenant Light Infantry, in Lieutenant Colonel Daniel Petrie's Reg't. Herkimer County 1811. (New York Council of Appointments, Military Records 1783-1821, p. 1197). In 1811 Thomas was administrator of the estate of Nathan Hawkes, Herkimer County. Thomas bought a farm in Columbia, Herkimer County, New York in 1817, cleared it and built a house and a fulling mill and later a saw mill. Some years after, he built a more spacious house upon the site of the first one. The house and farm passed by inheritance to his granddaughter, Mrs. Jennie Hawks Snyder, daughter of Lemuel Fitch Hawkes. An Atlas of Herkimer County, New York by B. Nichols, 1868, shows Columbia on p. 15. Columbia Center is at the center of the township while Elizabethtown is to the north; just north of the center of Elizabethtown on the left side of the road is the home of Lemuel Fitch Hawkes and on the right side of the road is that of Thomas Hawkes, this map being made two years before his death. His property abuts the Columbia town line and adjoining is the town of German Flats. (Atlas seen at manuscript room, New York State Library, Albany, New York) Thomas was a member of the 59th session of the New York State Assembly representing Mohawk in Herkimer County in 1836. He was a Justice of the Peace. (AHFA records)

The 1860 census Columbia, Herkimer County, New York shows Thomas Hawks, age 73,

In 1880 only Bianca M., 55 and Jennie, 17, born New York.

There is a probate proceeding dated 29 May 1871 in connection with the probate of a will of Thomas Hawks. Nothing earlier either in Book of Wills or Book of Administration. Heirs listed: Thomas Hawks, Jr., of Buffalo, Daniel Hawks of Cleveland, Ohio, Andrew J. Hawks of Clarksville, New Jersey, and John F. Hawks of Soda Creek, British Columbia, Lemuel F. 54. EDMUND[6], HAWKES (James[5], Moses[4-3], John[2], Adam[1]) Son of James and Olive (Willis) Hawkes was born Petersham, Worcester County, Massachusetts, 9 Oct. 1780 (John Milton Hawks ms.), d. 31 Mar. 1850. He married probably in Richfield, Otsego County, New York circa 1803, POLLY EATON, who was born 29 Dec. 1782 and died 18 Aug. 1849.

Edmund migrated from Worcester County, Massachusetts to Richfield, Otsego County, New York with his family when in his teens. His father appears to have died soon after as his mother is listed as head of the family in the 1800 census for Richfield. Edmund's Uncle Daniel Hawkes and Ebenezer Eaton were pioneer settlers at Richfield. Soon after his marriage, Edmund moved his young family to Oswego then Onondaga County, New York where he too became a pioneer, operating a tannery on the West side of the Oswego River. In 1810 his tannery is listed as being the first in the village, near the corner of West 1st and Bridge Streets.

Situated near the foot of Lake Ontario navigation, and nearer New York City than any other lake port, Oswego had commercial facilities superior to those of most Western cities and manufacturing began to prosper greatly. However, the breaking out of the War of 1812 ended this and Oswego became the scene of stirring military events. Both Edmund and Daniel Hawkes, Jr., served as privates in the 159th Regiment (Hecox's) of the New York Militia. The fort at Oswego was garrisoned but fell to the British. Finally the enemy was overcome, the war was over, commerce was resumed and Edmund returned to civilian life. When the Governor and legislature created Oswego County in 1816, he was appointed a judge. On the 17th of April that year he and two others were appointed to "lay out the road from Lysander to Hannibal and Oswego." On 17 April 1817 the Oswego Bridge Company was incorporated with Edmund Hawkes one of the first directors. When District 12, township Oswego, West Oswego held its first meeting to organize a school, Edmund Hawkes was elected a trustee. The Oswego Observer was started in February 1835 by Bailey and Hawkes and continued until the latter part of 1836.

The Honorable Mr. Hawkes continued to live in Oswego and to serve his community until his death, 21 Mar. 1850 (John Milton Hawks ms.) He became a prominent and useful leading citizen and was much respected.

John Jr. was born in Bolton, lived and died in Lancaster where he was a farmer and where he raised his large family of whom nine children survived him. On the 30th of April 1838 John and Alice, Cynthia K (?A) and Sally

H. Hawkes all signed their names to the constitution of the First Universalist Church, as adopted (Lancaster VR), p. 395.

The property originally owned by John Hawkes and subsequently by B. F. Farnsworth (his son-in-law, see xiii) is described in 1898 Atlas of Surveys, County of Worcester, Massachusetts, p. 22 Lancaster. Published by I. J. Richards and Company, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. "J. E. Farnsworth is the present owner of 107 acres of land located on the Harvard Road overlooking the hills of Bolton from which a view of Wachusett Mountain can be had and distant one mile from the Lancaster Post Office and four miles from Clinton. In addition to cultivating and supplying vegetables and small fruits to the home markets, the place is noted for its supply of Fuller's Earth, two woolen mills and for other manufacturing purposes. It is sold extensively through out the country and is said to be the only supply of Fuller's Earth in the United States excepting the earth beds at Rome, New York. (Fuller's Earth, an impure clay containing much fine sand and limey material originally used in finely powdered form to remove grease from cloth and wool) In 1898 shipments of Fuller's Earth were made from the nearby railroad station, F. E. Atteaux and Company sole agents, Boston, Massachusetts. Location of this place is clearly shown on a copy of an old map supplied by Lancaster, Massachusetts Library. Date not given. Number 35 showing nearby Worcester and Nashua Railroad and the Nashua River, the town lines of Bolton and of Harvard, Massachusetts being close by. Map shows B. F. Farnsworth as resident; also insert gives North Village of Lancaster and shows residence of his brother-in-law Benjamin Hawkes near the North Branch of the Nashua River.

John's will was filed 7 December 1847 at Worcester County Probate, #28424 and was as follows:

Item 1: I give and bequeath to my beloved wife Alice, to her and heirs, all my personal estate after the payment of my just debts.

Second: I give and bequeath to my said wife the use and improvement of all my real estate during her natural life provided she remain single, but if she should marry, then the improvement of one-third only, and should the improvement and use of the whole of my said real estate be insufficient for the comfort of my said wife during her widowhood, I hereby order and direct my executor herein after named to sell and dispose of so much of said real estate as may be necessary for her said support.

Third: I give and bequeath and devise the whole of my said real estate to be equally divided among my nine children after the decease of my said wife, and the income of the two-thirds should she marry again to them and their heirs forever, viz: Alice Houghton, wife of Phineas Houghton, John Hawkes, Sally Richards, wife of John Richards, Daniel A. Hawkes, James Hawkes, Harriet Whitney, wife of William D. Whitney, Benjamin Hawkes, Rebecca Parker, wife of Edmond Parker, and Cynthia A. Farnsworth, wife of Benjamin F. Farnsworth.

Lastly, I hereby constitute and appoint my said son Benjamin Hawkes sole executor of this my last will and testament, and should my said executor after the decease of my said wife in the settlement of the estate deem it necessary to sell a part or the whole of the real estate I hereby authorize and empower him to do the same and to make and execute all deeds and instruments necessary to accomplish the same. In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and seal this 25th day of March in the year of our Lord 1844. John Hawkes. Witnesses: S. W. Hastings, E. D. Nurse, and James Ruggles.

This will was presented for probate at Worcester on the 7th day of December 1847, and allowed 4 January 1848. Administration of the estate of the widow Alice Hawkes was granted to her son Benjamin, Docket #28418 Worcester County Probate and was allowed 2 December 1856.

Cynthia was mentioned in her father's will in 1847. The 1850 census for Lancaster, Massachusetts lists the family including Benjamin Franklin and Cynthia, and the four sons: Franklin H., John E., George W., and Frederick. The 1860 census for the family shows Benjamin Franklin, age 43, farmer, $2,000, with wife Mary E. age 38, and children George W., 13, Frederick 11, Mary W. 9, and Richard 3. The following year a daughter was born: Lizzie Francis, child of Benjamin Franklin and Mary Elizabeth.

60. NATHAN[6] (John[5-4], Moses[3], John[2], Adam[1])
Son of John and Hannah James Hawkes
b. 1774 Bolton Worcester County, MA
d. 10 Oct. 1810 Richfield Otsego County, NY
m. before 1800 MISS CUNNINGHAM who was perhaps the daughter of David Cunningham listed in the 1800 census for Richfield, Otsego Co., NY on the same page as Nathan Hawkes and having a family which included six female children, three of whom were between 16 and 26. Her birth and death dates are unknown.

Nathan left Massachusetts as a young adult removing to Richfield in Otsego County, New York where several of his cousins had gone earlier, perhaps because of the medicinal properties of the famous mineral springs there. In "Richfield, New York" by Ward 1898, p. 17 he appears along with his relatives Abijah Hawkes, Abijah, Jr., and Moses Frizzel as living in Ward 2 of that town. In the 1800 census of Richfield he and his wife are listed as male 26-45 and female 16-26. He died a young man aged about 36 in 1810. It is probable that his young family is that listed in the census for Richfield 1810 under V. Hawkes and including 3 males under 10, 1 female 26-45, 2 females under 10 and a female 26-45. In the 1820 census for Richfield there is a Betsey Hawkes age 26-45 with one son and 2 daughters. It seems likely this is the widow of Nathan and that the given name of Miss Cunningham above was Elizabeth. In the 1830 census there is listed Elizabeth with 2 sons and 1 daughter. She is between 50-60, 1 son 20-30 and a daughter 20-30. There is no Elizabeth or Betsey in the census for Richfield, New York in 1840. In the administration book for the Otsego County Probate Records there is a record of the death of Nathan Hawkes, no date given, and notice that letters of administration were granted to Thomas Hawkes of Herkimer County on 29 March 1811.

James and Ruth Arnold Liswell, b. ca. 1784, d. _____

Joseph removed from Lancaster to Boston and later to Harvard, Worcester County, Massachusetts where several of his children were born. Following his marriage in 1805, the 1810 census for Boston shows him and his wife living on Warren Street with 1 male child under 10 and 3 female children under 10, also a female over 45. He was a brick mason. His marriage to Hannah Liswell was published in the Columbian Centinel on Sunday, 27 March 1805. The 1820 census for Worcester County, Harvard, Massachusetts, shows the family with 2 males under 10, 1 male 10-16, 1 male 26-45, also 2 females under 10, 2 females 10-16 and 1 female 26-45. In 1830 they were recorded again in the census for Suffolk County Boston, Ward 5, as 1 male 10-15, 1 male 15-20, 1 male 20-30, 1 male 40-50, also 1 female 10-15, 2 females 15-20, 1 female 20-30 and 1 female 50-60. In 1840 once again they were at Suffolk County Boston, Ward 5: 1 male 60-70, 1 female 15-20 and 1 female 50-60. During the next decade Joseph died. It is unknown what became of his widow Hannah as no record of her has been found in the 1850 census.

Concerning Joseph's death, it was recorded under Joseph Hocks "of Boston" in the Walpole, Norfolk County, Massachusetts VR, (p. 205) and listed as a suicide. An investigation of tombs 107 and 108 at the Old Granary Burial Ground in Boston reveals that tomb 107 carries the names Johnson and Jackson with the date 1810 while tomb 108 has the names Joseph Tilden and Luddington and neither of these appears to have any relationship to the said Joseph Hawkes.

A James Liswell Hawkes has long been thought to have been the son of Joseph and Hannah Liswell Hawkes who married in 1805, however he was an adult in 1818 when he bought property in Harvard, Worcester County, Massachusetts. He later sold this property to Joseph Hawkes in 1828 and is said to have left the country. He was a brick layer of Boston in 1831. In 1870 he was supposed deceased as he had not been heard from in over 20 years.

The deeds include the following information: Jeremiah Dyar to James L. Hawkes. Know all men by these presents that I, Jeremiah Dyar of Lancaster, in the County of Worcester and Commonwealth of Massachusetts, yeoman, in consideration of $360 paid me by James Liswell Hawkes of Harvard in the County of Worcester and Commonwealth aforesaid, the receipt whereof I do hereby acknowledge, do hereby give, grant, sell and convey unto the said James, his heirs and assigns forever, a certain part of dwelling house, a small barn and land adjoining the same as they are occupied and improved by the Reverend Abisha Lamson, situated in that part of Harvard called Still River, a little northerly of the Baptist Meeting House, reference being had to a deed given to me of said premises by Robert Dawes dated the 24th day of July in the year of our Lord 1802 as the bounds of said premises will appear, to have and to hold the same to the said James Liswell Hawkes, his heirs and assigns to his and their use and behoof forever with all the privileges and appurtenances to the same belonging and I do covenant with the said James, his heirs and assigns that I am lawfully seized in fee of the premises, that they are free of all encumbrances, that I have good right to sell and convey the same to the said James, that I will covenant and defend the same to the said James, his heirs and assigns forever against the lawful claims and demands of all persons, in witness whereof I have here unto set my hand and seal together with Sukey, wife of the said Jeremiah in token of her relinquishing her right of dower in the said premises this 28th day of November in the year of our Lord 1818. Witnesses: Lydia Parker and Susan W. Dyar. Worcester County Deed Book 213, p. 323.

Then on 18 January 1828, Worcester County Deed Book 259, p. 294: James Liswell Hawkes, mason, late of Harvard, Worcester County, Massachusetts and now of Boston to Joseph Hawkes of Boston, mason, as follows: Know Know all men by these presents that I James Liswell Hawkes, late of Harvard in the County of Worcester but now of the city of Boston in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, mason, in consideration of $360 paid by Joseph Hawkes of said city of Boston, mason, the receipt whereof I do hereby acknowledge do hereby give and grant, sell and convey unto the said Joseph Hawkes, his heirs and assigns, a certain part of a dwelling house, the small barn with the land under and adjoining the same situated in that part of the town of Harvard aforesaid called Still River, a little northerly of the Baptist Meeting House, being the same premises which were conveyed to me by Jeremiah Dyar by deed dated the 28th day of November Anno Domini 1818 and recorded in Worcester Register of Deeds, Book 213, p. 323, etc., etc. In witness whereof I the said James Liswell Hawkes have here unto set my hand this 18th day of January in the year of our Lord 1828. James L. Hawks (no e) and a seal, witnessed by T. W. Andrews and William Parker, Suffolk County, 18 January 1828. Then the above James Liswell Hawkes acknowledges the above instrument to be his free act and so forth.

Of additional note is the birth of a child, James Liswell Hawkes Clapp, on 1 January 1848 as follows: From Branches and Twigs, newsletter of the Genealogical Society of Vermont, April 1979, p. 11, contains a Bible record of Nancy Motley, born 1782, married (2) Zebulon Clapp in 1807. The first child of Nancy and Zebulon was George Pickering Clapp, born 2 December 1808 and he married Mary A. Hawks of Boston. Among their children is the said James Liswell Hawks Clapp, born 1848. James Liswell Hawks Clapp is also listed p. 120 The Clapp Memorial also in the index of the Clapp Memorial is a listing for Marilla Clapp. Records of the Adam Hawkes family show that John and Hannah James Hawkes had a son Benjamin W. (see #62 i) who married Polly Ballard and they had Thomas Ballard Hawkes, born 1809 Lancaster, who married Marilla Clapp "of South Hampton" intentions 5 December 1835 (Templeton, Massachusetts VR)

The connection between Joseph and James Liswell Hawks remains unsolved and needs further investigation. He was probably born about 1792. Three alternatives present themselves: was he a younger brother of Joseph? Census records appear to rule this out. Was Joseph married earlier, and James L. a son by a first marriage? There is not enough difference between their ages for this to be a possibility if presumed ages are correct. Did Hannah Liswell have a brother who lived with her family and took the name of Hawks? An extensive search of the Liswell family of Boston has not yet substantiated this theory. A review of Boston vital records, Massachusetts census records, etc. indicates that Hannah was of the fourth generation of the family in Boston and that her father, James, served in the Revolutionary Army. No James, son of James yet found.

Joseph and Hannah L. had several children born in Boston between 1805 and 1815 when son Joseph was born in Harvard, Massachusetts and further study is needed on records of these.

Rachel Winslow Simmons (Winslow Memorial by David Parsons Holton, 1877, p. 869), b. 8 September 1834, Mechanics Falls, Cumberland now Androscoggin County, Maine, d. 8 August 1875, age 50 (Records of Maine Old Cemetery Association) buried Maple Grove Cemetery, Bath, Maine. He married second MARIA M. MILLER, wife of Charles W. (Cambridge, Massachusetts VR, Vol. 1, p. 338), b. 1825 (ibid) date estimated from grave record. Same record gives his date of birth 1815 from grave record. She died 25 August 1900, age 76-0-0. (grave record)

Joseph Jr. became a minister of the Methodist Episcopal Church. At the time of his marriage in 1842 he was called "of Boston" and elsewhere "of Richmond Hill, Maine." In 1867-9 he was pastor at the Wesley Methodist Episcopal Church in Bath, Maine. Present church records there show only that he was pastor and that he voted in January 1869. The Winslow Memorial shows that on 28 December 1869 he performed the marriage of his daughter Elizabeth, born 9 December 1844 at Falmouth, Maine, to Henry Robinson, born 31 July 1840, Bath, Maine, son of James D. and Mary Elizabeth Robinson of Bath. At this time he was The Reverend Joseph Hawkes of Mechanics Falls, Maine. In 1872 and 3 The Reverend Joseph was minister at the Methodist Episcopal Church at Conway, New Hampshire (Carroll Co. History) and her widowed mother went there to live with them. Also living in Conway at that time was the daughter Elizabeth Hawkes Robinson and her family as her daughter Mary Elizabeth was born 29 October 1871 at Conway, Carroll County, New Hampshire. The Reverend Joseph and family do not appear in 1870 census for Conway, New Hampshire.

Records at the town clerks office, Bath, Maine, give the death date for Mary Winslow Simmons Hawkes as above, calling her the widow of Joseph and indicate the tombstone is in Maple Grove Cemetery, however the listing of widow is apparently in error as the Vital Records of Cambridge, Massachusetts indicate. Although The Reverend Joseph and his second wife were buried at Cambridge, Massachusetts, there seems to be no probate record for him at the Middlesex County Courthouse at Cambridge for the year 1898. The Winslow Memorial published in 1877 states that The Reverend Joseph was a member of the Maine Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church and that in 1872 he had been engaged in preaching for 32 years and that his residence was then Conway, New Hampshire.

Benjamin was a carpenter and a cabinetmaker. He and Polly were married by the Reverend Nathaniel Thayer S.T.D. (Doctor of Sacred Theology), Minister of the First Church of Lancaster and their first son Thomas Ballard Hawkes and Benjamin were baptized at the same time at the First Church on 5 August 1810, the same day that Benjamin and his wife Polly became members of the church. The following year on 9 June 1811, Benjamin and Polly were recommended to the church in Templeton, Massachusetts by the Reverend Nathaniel Thayer. (Lancaster VR) There Benjamin became a deacon in the Congregational Church. Five more children were born to them as they lived in their fine large colonial type frame house. (Pictured in Hawkes Talks 1979) However tragedy struck when their young unmarried son Josiah who was a cabinetmaker died on 8 September 1842 "of consumption", the dread disease of the day.

In 1850 Benjamin, then 61, was a miller, property value $1,000. His wife was still living and the household included their youngest son George Perkins Hawkes, 25, a clerk whose first wife had died leaving him with a son George H., age 3 years. Also in the household was Elvira Hale, age 45, born Massachusetts. Next to them was the home of their son Edwin and his family and beyond them was the son Benjamin James and his family, both cabinetmakers. (1850 census Templeton, Massachusetts)

On 23 April 1857 Benjamin made his will which was filed 6 February 1860 and recorded on 17 May 1860 following his death in January of that year as follows: Worcester County Probate #28420. Know all men by these presents that I, Benjamin Hawks of Templeton in the County of Worcester and Commonwealth of Massachusetts, cabinetmaker, being of a sound and disposing mind and memory, do make, publish and declare this instrument to be my last will and testament. First I direct my executor here after named to pay all my just debts and funeral expenses. Second after the payment of debts and funeral expenses and charges of administration, I give and bequeath to my beloved wife, Mary B. Hawks the use, improvement and occupancy of the three south lower rooms in my present dwelling house. Also the chamber over the same with equal privileges with other occupants of the remaining part of the house. In the pump room, wood house, cellar, entry way and stairs, I also give and bequeath to her the income arising from all the residue and remainder of my estate whether real, personal or mixed, for and during the time she remains my widow and unmarried and in the event that the income or interest arising from said real, personal, or mixed estates shall be insufficient for her decent, comfortable and proper support and maintenance the capital or principal may be used for that purpose, first using the personal property expecting the household furniture which I shall dispose of in the following article and should the personal property be insufficient for that purpose, she may then sell such part of the real estate as may be deemed most for hers and the interest of all concerned and I hereby authorize, empower and require my executors here after named to give and execute a good and sufficient deed or deeds of the same. The provision in this article for the occupancy of the rooms specified by and the support and maintenance of my beloved wife Mary B. Hawks is to be and continue so long as she shall remain my widow and unmarried but should she think proper to reside with any of her children she may have the benefit of the rents of the rooms specified. Third a small toy bureau made by my son Josiah, deceased, I give and bequeath to my daughter Abigail Sophia Marshall. At the decease of my said beloved wife it is my will and direction that my household furniture and silver spoons be equally divided among my five children viz: Thomas B. Hawks, Benjamin J. Hawks, Edwin Hawks, George P. Hawks and Abigail Sophia Marshall. Fourth at the decease or marriage of my aforesaid beloved wife Mary B. Hawks it is my will and direction that all the property that may be left at the time of such decease or marriage shall be distributed among my five children as follows: To my son Thomas B. Hawks the sum of $5.00; to my son Benjamin J. Hawks the sum of $50.00 and to my daughter Abigail Sophia Marshall the sum of $5.00 to them and their heirs and hereby cancelling and making null and void all accounts and demands I now hold against them or either of them for any articles or money advanced or paid to and for them up to the 20th day of March 1857. To my other two sons, Edwin Hawkes and George P. Hawks, the rest and residue of my estate whether real, personal or mixed, to them and their heirs forever and I hereby constitute, nominate and appoint the said Edwin Hawks and George P. Hawks executors of this my last will and testament, hereby revoking and making null and void all former wills and testaments heretofore made. In testimony whereof I have here unto set my hand and seal and publish and declare this to be my last will and testament in the presence of the witnesses named below this 23rd day of April in the year 1857. Benjamin Hawkes signed, sealed, published and declared by the said Benjamin Hawks (no e) and as and for his last will and testament in the presence of us who in his presence and in the presence of each other and at his request have here unto subscribed all our names as witnesses. Both during and after the Civil War Thomas Ballard Hawkes held a responsible position at the armory at Springfield, Massachusetts covering a period of 25 years according to JMH ms. By trade he was a cabinetmaker. The administration of the estate of his third wife, Laura A. Hawkes, was granted to Varanus P. Parkhurst on the second day of February 1869. Her next of kin were listed by him as Sarah R. Whitney, sister of the deceased whose residence is Fitchburg, Massachusetts; also Josephine B. Dwinell, wife of Henry D. Benjamin is reputed to have had an earlier wife Hannah C., about whom nothing further is known. This is undoubtedly an error; all family records of his descendants show only the one marriage. The VR of Templeton call Albert King Hawkes, son of Benjamin and Hannah C.; however, the birth is after the marriage of Benjamin and Harriet, and in the obituary for Harriet, Albert King is called her son. This discredits the idea of a first marriage for Benjamin.

Benjamin James Hawkes and his family removed from Templeton, Massachusetts to Fitzwilliam, New Hampshire and in 1856 to Quincy, Adams County, Illinois on the Mississippi River in the central part of Illinois. (JMH ms) According to his granddaughter Mrs. Bryson, "He and his wife Harriet had a very happy marriage. He was very musical, playing the cello and singing and very active in church work. Their daughter Gertrude died young. Their son James Benjamin enlisted in the Civil War as a Sergeant and became a captain, was killed by a stray bullet at the close of the war, buried grave numver 123, National Cemetery, Raleigh, North Carolina, died 25 March 1865, was in Company H, 50th Regiment Illinois volunteer infantry. The second son never married but became a noted optician and philanthropist in the south. He founded the optical company bearing his name in 1870 in Austin, Texas. This company spread throughout the entire country although it was most prominently developed in the southern states. The headquarters for the company was in Atlanta, Georgia where he resided in 1904 (JMH ms) The daughter Harriet E., third child, became one of the leading contralto singers in Chicago before her marriage to Solomon Orient Cundy.

George Perkins was called mechanic and his first wife dressmaker when they married in 1847. Her death the following year was caused by "dropsy in the chest." His second wife appears to have died in childbirth; his third wife outlived him. 1860 Census Worcester County, Templeton, Massachusetts lists George P. Hawks, 36, furniture manufacturer $2,000-$1,500, born Massachusetts Abigail E., 31, born Pennsylvania, Abbie, 7, Adeline, 4, Mary L., 1, all born Massachusetts. Also George A. Hitchock, 15, farmer, Otis Brigham, 21, carpenter, George Parminter, 24, carpenter and John Green, 26, carpenter, all born Massachusetts.

When he enlisted in the Civil War, he was called painter and furniture manufacturer. His son Herbert Edwin wrote the following account of him.

"Military History of George Perkins Hawkes written by his son Herbert Edwin Hawkes. George P. lived in Fitchburg three years as a young man and became a member of a military company called the Fitchburg Fusileers. He returned to Templeton in 1847 and engaged in the furniture business until the outbreak of the war. He was elected Captain of Company A, 21st Regiment Volunteers. He left Templeton 19 July 1861. His first active service was at Roanoke Island 9 February 1862. He was with General Burnside throughout the entire Burnside expedition. He was later in the second Bull Run after which he was appointed major. Captured at Chantilly and so was not with his regiment at Antietam. He served in the siege of Knoxville after which he commanded the 21st Massachusetts Regiment for the remainder of the war with the rank of Lieut. Colonel. He took part in the Wilderness, Spotsylvania when he commanded a brigade, Shady Grove, Bethesda Church and Petersburg. He was discharged for disabilities the 16th June 1864. For gallant service made Brevet Brigadier General by President Lincoln. He represented Templeton in the state legislature 1867 and served 3 years from 1870-1873 as grand worthy secretary of the I.O.G.T. of Massachusetts. Was head of the order in Massachusetts 1873-5. Presided at international conference of the order 1875. His activities since have been largely in serving his town in capacities of assessor, tax collector and so on. He has for many years been auditor of Templeton Savings Bank, Notary Public and Justice of the Peace. He retained to a remarkable degree his activity and human interest in his later years and died 21 Sept. 1903. Mourned and honored by the community in which he lived in a manner that is given but few."

The official Civil War record in Massachusetts Soldiers in the Civil War, Vol. 2, p. 599: Captain, Resident Templeton, age 37, furniture manufacturer, commissioned 21 August 1861, mustered 23 August 1861, prisoner 1 September 1862 Chantilly, Virginia, paroled, date not shown, commissioned Major 2 September 1862. Discharged for disabilities 1 July 1864 with field and staff. Brevitt Brig. Gen. U. S. Volunteers to date 13 March 1865.

John, who was called gentleman, was the son of Adam Hawkes and his second wife, Lydia Wiley. (Erroneously given by early writers as Huldah, Adam's first wife who had died in childbirth.) He lived in Lynnfield on a part of the farm belonging to his ancestors near the Wakefield line, later owned by George Hawkes. He enlisted in a Reading Company, that of Captain John Walton in Colonel David Green's Regiment which marched on the alarm of 19 April 1775. His commission as 1st Lieut. in the 6th Company commanded by Captain John Burnham, 1st Essex County Regiment and signed by Governor John Hancock in 1784 was headed down to his granddaughter Mary B. Hawkes and was still in existence in 1900. In 1777 John married Rachel Bancroft and they raised a large family of twelve children. John became town treasurer of Lynnfield in 1790-91 and 1805. He was elected and served as selectman 1784, 1785, 1788, 1793 through 1802, 1807 and 1808. He was a member of the Congregational Church of Lynnfield. His grave is in the old ground (Center) of the Lynnfield Center Cemetery. The stone is described as an immense one nearly six feet high inscribed: In Memory Of Mr. John Hawkes who died May 3rd, 1811, age 57. Blessed are the dead who live in the Lord. They rest from there labours and there works do follow them. (Original spelling) His grave has been marked by the Sons of the American Revolution with a bronze marker which holds the American flag. Beside it is the smaller stone of the widow Rachel who died 1814, age 55. These graves were visited and photographed for AHFA in 1873 by direct descendant Julia Brooks Needham Fischer in her 90th year.

Although mention is made in earlier records of a probated will of John, we have been unable to locate it; however, the widow Rachel made a will which was probated at

Essex County on 19 April 1814, Probate #12938 as follows: In the name of God, Amen! I Rachel Hawks, widow of Lynnfield, in the County of Essex, being weak in body but of sound mind and memory, do this 9th day of July 1812 make and publish this my last will and testament in manner following, that is to say:

Item: I give to my son John Hawks one dollar to him, his heirs and assigns forever.

Item: I give to my daughter Rachel Lakeman one dollar to her, her heirs and assigns forever.

Item: I give to my son Joshua Hawks the use of my bed on which he now sleeps on with the bedding, being the bed which was appraised and #5 in the inventory of my late husband John Hawks (deceased) estate and when my son Adam Hawks shall arrive at the age of 21 years, I order my son Joshua Hawks to deliver to my son Adam Hawks the above mentioned bed and bedding for his use forever, also all the wooden ware and earthenware which I now make use of about my dairy to him his heirs and assigns forever.

Item: I give to my son Timothy Hawks one dollar, to him, his heirs and assigns forever.

Item: I give to my daughters Lydia Hawks, Eliza Hawks, Narcissa Hawks, and Pamelia Hawks all my husband's estate not herein before bequeathed and devised whereever the same may be found, to be equally divided between them, their heirs and their assigns forever.

And lastly I do constitute and ordain my said daughter Lydia Hawks sole executor of this my last will and testament in witness whereof I do here unto set my hand and seal this the day and year above written.

Signed Rachel Hawks

Signed, sealed and published and declared by the said Rachel Hawks for her last will in the presence of us who at her request and in her presence here unto set our names as witnesses to the same.

Daniel Needham
Adam Hawks
Joseph H. Hawkes

On the 19th day of April Anno Domini 1814 the instrument afore written purporting the last will and testament of Rachel Hawks, late of Lynnfield in said county, widow, deceased, was presented for probate by Lydia Hawks, the executrix therein named. Then present Daniel Needham, Esquire, Adam Hawks and Joseph H. Hawkes, the witnesses thereto inscribed who made oath that they saw the said testatrix sign and seal and heard her declare that said instrument to be her last will and testament. The inventory for the estate was approved 18 October 1814 and is on file as part of the probate docket. Notable is the final item which is for wearing apparel of the deceased and amounts to about one-sixth of the entire estate.

Essex Probate #12946 dated 1 April 1828 calls Timothy mariner of Salem. He leaves wife Elizabeth, daughter Elizabeth and son Timothy. He made his will 7 December 1824 and it was witnessed by Samuel Hodges, Stephen Webb and Jonathan P. Saunders. On 1 April 1828 John Hawkes, (Timothy's older brother) certifies willingness to be guardian of Elizabeth and Timothy, minor children of Timothy, late of Salem. Elizabeth, widow, executor of Timothy Hawkes of Salem, mariner, deceased. After Timothy was lost at sea, Betsey kept a small shop in order to earn her living. She was the first person in Danvers to sell candy for tuppence. Rumor has it that if a child came in with only a penny to spend, Betsey would reduce it to the proper size in order to accomodate the child!

Betsey appears in the 1830 census, also Timothy, both at Danvers, also Betsey at Salem with male 10-15 and female 20-30, Betsey 50-60. According to the 1850 census for Danvers she was living there alone, her son Timothy was married and had six children and was living nearby, was a shoemaker.

This family spelled the name Hawks without the e. Born in Lynn, Benjamin early followed the move westward to Lancaster in Worcester County as did several of the Hawkes families. He became a tanner. From the History of Leominister by Wilder, p. 109 "tannery owned by Oliver Carter 1/2 mile west of the Meeting House. Oliver Carter sold this business to Benjamin Hawks about the year 1780. Benjamin continued in business for approximately 20 years. There he and his second wife Mary had their large family of 13 or more children, several of the older ones dying in infancy or early childhood. They are listed in the Leominster census of 1790 and 1810. Their daughter Seve was married in Leominster 1815. By 1820 they apparently had moved to Ashburnham. After Mary's death he married again, Phoebe, a widow, then 66.

Following his death in 1839 his will was probated at Worcester County Court #28419. In the name of God, Amen. I, Benjamin Hawks, of Ashburnham, in the couty of Worcester and commonwealth of MA, tanner, being weak in body but of sound mind and memory, blessed be God for the same, do this 13th day of July in the year of our Lord 1837 make and publish this my last will and testament in manner following, that is to say firstly I order all my just debts and funeral expenses to be paid by my executor hereinafter named. Secondly I give and bequeath unto Phoebe my beloved wife one half of all I possess after paying for settling my estate, paying my funeral charges and my just debts, to be hers and at her disposal to do with as she shall see fit. Thirdly the other one half after paying as above I order my executor to sell and convert into money and pay over the same to my children within one year from my decease to each one equally, Lydia Burditt, Achsah Hawks, Seve Austin, Dolly Gibson, and Benjamin Hawks. Fourthly and lastly I ordain Ebenezer Frost sole executor of this my last will and testament hereby revoking all other wills by me made. Signed, sealed, pronounced and delivered by the said Benjamin Hawks as and for his last will and testament in presence of us who at his request and in his presence here hereunto set our names as witnesses to the same. Signed Benjamin Hawks. Witnesses Kenneth Lawrence, Harry Lawrence, Sally S. Frost.

A few years later in 1846 Phoebe was found to be incapable of caring for herself and her property and Emory Fairbank was appointed guardian by the judge of probate. (Docket #28426) Phoebe died the following year and in May 1848 her guardian deposed (Worcester Co. Probate Court #28427) I, Emory Fairbank of Ashburnham in the County of Worcester, of lawful age, depose and say that Phoebe Hawks, late of Ashburnham, deceased, was at the time of her decease a Revolutionary pensioner of the United States, that she died at said Ashburnham on the Phoebe's daughter as sole heir at law living in MA petitioned that John Conn be appointed administrator of her estate which was done. Worcester County Probate #28426. Note - the above daughter and missing son were Phoebe's by her first marriage, not the marriage to Benjamin Hawks.

She was the daughter of John Maud, b. ca. 1776, d. 7 Aug. 1806 age 30 yrs, 6 months (family Bible in possession of Ethel F. Smith; also Columbian Centinel 9 Aug. 1806)

Levi left his family home in Saugus to become a tin plate or ternplate worker in Boston. Ternplate is an iron sheet coated with lead, tin alloy used for roofing. Mirrors were sometimes coated with tin foil. Pure tin ingots sent to the rolling mill to be pressed into sheets for sale. A template worker has to do with wood for the support of buildings.

In the 22nd report of the Record Commissioner U. S. Direct Tax of 1798 and U. S. Census Boston only, 1790, p. 167, 198 Levi was listed as the occupier of the house

Besides his wife he had five children, only one of whom lived beyond early childhood. Then in the summer of 1806 his wife, age 30, was killed while riding horseback. (JMH ms.) He married again and had 11 more children, totaling 16.

In 1810 census the family was living at Garden Court St Boston but by 1830 they had moved to Cambridge. (N.E. Register 78:69) Levi Jr. became a tin smith in Boston. No probate has been located for Levi either in Suffolk or Middlesex County.

The birth and death dates for Levi, as well as both marriages and the deaths of both wives are recorded in his Family Bible, and also births and deaths of all children. The death date for Hannah Gray Hawkes in the Bible record coincides with that of the MA VR where she is called Hannah F, it corrects that erroneously given in the JMH ms. The Bible is The Columbian Family and Pulpit Bible, from Poole, Brown et al, First American Edition, publ. by Joseph Teale, Boston, 1822.

From The History of Cambridge by Lucius Paige, 1877, pp. 431-2: "To Cambridge rightfully belongs the honor of organizing the first company of militia in the United States which was enlisted expressly for the defense of the government in the War of the Rebellion in 1861. James P. Richardson, attorney at Cambridgeport issued this notice in the Cambridge Chronicle Jan. 5, 1861. The undersigned proposes to organize a company of volunteers to tender their services to our common country and to do what they can to maintain the integrity of our flag and union. Any citizen of good moral character and sound in body who wishes to join the corps will please call at my office, Main St. Cambridgeport. Ninety seven men enlisted; among them, Levi Hawkes. On April 15th the president of the United States issued a proclamation calling for 75,000 volunteers to serve three months in defense of the Union. On the 16th the governor issued his orders and this company responded on the morning of the 17th. It seems highly proper to preserve the names of those patriotic men who first of all voluntarily offered their services to their country. Among these, Private Levi Hawkes."

The Massachusetts Soldiers, Sailors and Mariners in the Civil War, Index to Army Records (1937), p. 263 gives two enlistments for Levi, Vol. 1, p. 155 and Vol. 2, p. 393. He is listed as private, resident of Cambridge, age 23, plumber. Enlisted Apr. 16, 1861, mustered

She had married first a Mr. Simonds or Symonds (Sandwich Archives and Historical Center, Sandwich, MA 02563)

Simeon was born in Lynn but his family moved to Boston when he was twenty three and he was married there to Deborah Smith Simonds of Sandwich. In 1807 he was proprietor of a shoe store in Boston with house at 57 Middle St.

In 1810 he is listed in the census for Sandwich Barnstable Co., MA and was perhaps visiting during the summer months at his wife's former home. The family group included 2 males under 10, one 26-45 (Simeon); also a female 10-16 and two females over 45; (perhaps Simeon's wife and her mother.) It is possible the younger members of the family were children of his wife by her first marriage although the records of Sandwich Archives do not show that marriage or list children.

In 1836 Simeon was living in Cambridge where he was proprietor of a shoestore and had a house at the corner of Botolph St. In 1827 he was called trader in Suffolk County Probate #28465 for Joseph Haven Hawkes, Jr.

Simeon made his will at Cambridge, MA 23 Oct. 1828. It was filed for probate at Suffolk County and wife Deborah S. Hawkes granted papers of administration as executor on 30 July 1832. Suffolk Probate #29949. He left his entire estate to his widow. The inventory included household contents, a lot with dwelling house at Lechmere Point in Cambridge with mortgage $800, about 2,500 square feet, value $1,900, also pew #105 in the Rev. Mr. Dean's meeting house in Bullfinch St., Boston. There was no mention of any children.

Following the death of Simeon, Deborah married a third time, intentions 23 Mar. 1833 (State VR), certificate 22 Apr. 1833, Henry Brown.

m. unknown

Samuel Merritt Hawkes was named for his uncle, Samuel Merritt, who was town clerk of Malden and who married his father's sister Sarah. Samuel Merritt died of smallpox just three weeks before Samuel Merritt Hawkes was born. The family moved from Saugus to Boston in the 1790's and from the lack of all further record, it may be assumed that he remained in his father's household, unmarried.

An old family record states that he was alive and employed as a tinsmith in Boston in 1849.

He does not appear in probate records of Suffolk County, Middlesex County or Essex County.

There is no marriage or death listed for him in the Columbian Centinel records to 1840.

No census record has been found.

Ezra's family moved to Boston when he was a child in the 1790's. There in 1805 he was married by The Reverend Thomas Baldwin, for whom he named his first child. In 1806 and 7 he lived on Leverett St.; in 1809 on Fish St., and in 1810 at 1813 Prospect St. at "Tucker's Pasture". He operated his own shop in the tin plate business.

In the War of 1812 the governor of Massachusetts, Caleb Strong, called up the MA militia to suppress a threatened invasion by the British and Ezra responded to the call. He is credited with the following service: Sgt. in Capt. M. Ames Company, Lieut. Col. P. Osgood's Reg't. 1 July to 30 July 1814. Company raised at Boston, service at Boston; also Sgt. 12 Sept. through 10 Oct. 1814, service at Boston, Capt. Sam Howe's Company, Lieut. Col. A. (National Archives Index, War of 1812)

Later, on 2 Aug. 1819, he became a member of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company of Boston. He was listed as "Capt. Hawkes, not liable to perform military duty."

Called yeoman in 1826, he is listed at 8 Bowdoin Row, house Sudbury. Ezra and Sally raised their large family of twelve children in Boston and Chelsea. He died at Chelsea 21 Dec. 1868, age 85 and she died just two days later. They were buried together in a common grave. (JMH ms.)

Ezra's will was made 6 Sept. 1866 and proved at Suffolk County Court, #49225, on 7 Jan. 1869. In his will he calls himself yeoman of Wayland, Middlesex County and states "I give and bequeath to my most excellent wife, Sally Hawkes, all real estate and personal estate and at her death, if any part shall remain, then I appoint my son Ezra Hawkes, Jr. as trustee of the said remainder to be appropriated for the maintenance and support of my daughter Elizabeth Clapp and at her decease, if any remains, then to be divided among my heirs, my wife Sally to be the executrix. Signed 6 Sept. 1866. Ezra Hawkes.

Ezra Hawkes Jr. of Chelsea was appointed trustee for Elizabeth B. Clapp. On 25 Jan. 1869 Asa F. Richardson became guardian for E. B. Clapp. Later, on 16 April 1885, the guardian presented a petition to the court stating Elizabeth Beals Clapp of Petersham, Worcester County is the daughter of Ezra Hawkes, late of Chelsea, deceased. Asa Richardson guardian, claims that the estate was devised for the use of Elizabeth Clapp and that the trustee diverted a portion to his own use and neglected for five years or more to appropriate said estate for the benefit of said Elizabeth. He prayed that Ezra be removed as trustee. This petition was dismissed in 1887 and $200 paid to the guardian. Ezra Hawkes of Chelsea and Thomas B. Hawkes, Boston and George E. Sherman of Weston as sureties 25 Jan. 1869. When Ezra's will was filed for probate his death date was given as 21 Dec. 1868 and Sally T. called "widow, now deceased." His heirs were listed as Thomas B. Hawkes, Boston, Ezra of Chelsea, Caroline B. Hawkes and Sarah T.

Hawkes, both of Athol, Elizabeth B. Clapp, Chelsea, Harriet W. Nottage of Chelsea, Susan E. K. Thomas or Thurmas of _____, John Quincy Adams Hawkes of Newton. The above were children. Also grandchildren, all of Newton, Ezra, George W. Hawkes and minor children Frank, Caroline and Ella Hawkes. Sureties 1869 were Ezra Hawkes of Chelsea, Thomas B. Hawkes of Boston and Ezra Hawkes of Newton. Ezra was appointed trustee for Elizabeth Clapp and from 1871 through 1878 he paid board for her; first to J. C. Nottage, then L. C. Fuller, and finally to Asa F. Richardson.

On 15 Sept. 1855 Caroline and her sister Mrs. Sarah Hervey, hoping for a divine revelation, went to a camp meeting at Groton, MA and there heard a "stranger speaking in tongues." This was Frederick T. Howland, Quaker, from New Bedford. They subsequently originated the faith called "Adoni Shomo" meaning The Lord is there. (Ezekiel 48:35) They settled at Athol in 1861 but in 1864 removed to Petersham. See History of Petersham by Mabel Cook Coolidge, published 1948, pp. 200, 201 for more details. Later, on 16 Aug. 1877 at Worcester County Probate Court, 22667 complaint was brought by selectman Joseph W. Upton and George Ayres against Leonard C. Fuller, Nathan G. Briggs, Sarah T. Hervey and Caroline E. Hawkes and others of mental infirmity with petition that a guardian be appointed of the persons and estates. Filed 18 Aug. 1877. Disposition not shown. Old AHFA records state that a guardian was appointed as "she was in a religious, frenzied state, half crazy." Buried Old Chicopee Burial Ground, Buxton, ME Joshua was named for his maternal grandfather, Joshua Kimball who was a peruke maker (wig maker) of Marblehead, MA. Joshua's father had property interests in Windham and Buxton, ME although he did not migrate there as did his four brothers; however, Joshua followed his uncles' lead and left Marblehead, settling after 1790 in the Chicopee section of the town of Buxton York Co., ME. Buxton was originally called Narragansett #1 and was established as land grants to soldiers and their heirs who had fought at Narragansett in the King Phillips War. Joshua's great great grandfather, John Hawkes, served in that war. (See number 2) At Buxton Joshua married Lucy Bryant whose father Jerathmael was a second lieutenant in the MA army during the Rev. War. They located on the south east side of the 5th lot on K range of the 3rd division according to records of Narrangansett #1 by William F. Goodwin 1871, p. 84. The lot was 832 square feet and contained a one story wooden dwelling house with 9 windows, 10 square feet of glass. (Inventory of real estate, about 1798) They had five sons and five daughters and also an infant born in 1814 who died the following day. Joshua engaged in agriculture. The family is listed in every census for Buxton, York Co., ME from 1800 through 1850. In the tradition of the day, Deborah, the eldest daughter helped to bring up the younger children and then cared for her father after the mother's death. Finally, at 61, four years after her father's death, she too was married. The oldest son Benjamin married and lived next door to his father's home. (1840 census) No probate records have been found at York County, ME for Joshua or Lucy Bryant Hawkes.

Children:

i. BENJAMIN, b. 31 January 1795, Buxton, York County, ME, d. 4 December 1861, age 66 years 10 months, (Buxton Record Book by John Eldredge Frost, 1968, p. 68) buried Old Chicopee Burial Ground. "Blessed is that servant whom his Lord when he cometh shall find so doing." (Gravestone epitaph) Married first (published 3 December 1819, Buxton) LUCY M. FOGG, daughter of Daniel and Eunice March Fogg, born 10 April 1790, d. 1 January 1829, Buxton, age 38-3. (gravestone) Buried Old Chicopee Burial Ground, Buxton. Married second, (published March 1830) FANNY KIMBALL of Hollis, b. 23 Dec. 1799 (gravestone record), d. 15 Jan. 1891 age 91 years, 23 days at Buxton. Buried Old Chicopee Burial Ground. Epitaph - "Blessed are the dead who live in the Lord"

Benjamin was in manufacturing and trades according to the 1840 census for Buxton. The fine old homestead farm where he lived still stands although the old barn is gone. The house was sold about 1977 in a most dilapidated condition and is being restored as a family dwelling and place of business. It is on the north side of the Chicopee Rd. near the old cemetery where seven of the family were buried side by side. (Leave route 112 at Kimball's Corner, bearing left on Chicopee Rd. past Pinkham's Saw Mill) From Chicopee Rd. a dirt lane leads some distance through a wooded area, once planted land, to the the main house around which are a number of ancient maple trees. It is said that a former owner had the first crystal radio set in the area, a portion of which may still be seen high in one of these trees and almost entirely surrounded now by the tree's growth. The house is one of three built by Benjamin within the town of Buxton, all identical in architecture. It is a solidly built white 2 story frame building with the traditional center door and stair well and A shaped roof. Until recently it has not had plumbing or electricity. Rooms were heated individually by wood stoves. The wide pegged floor boards reflect the abundance of wood in the area. Some have been replaced, partly due to the ravages of time and partly because of wear from constant traffic in early days when the main room behind the parlor was used as the Chicopee Post Office. (One of nine in the town of Buxton)

Not far from the homestead stands the Methodist-Episcopal Church. Methodism came to the area in 1793 when the Rev. Jesse Lee of Virginia visited Buxton. A society was subsequently formed and in 1802 a meeting house built, later replaced in 1848 by a larger one on the same site. It was undoubtedly due to this influence that Benjamin and Fanny named their youngest son John Wesley Hawkes.

Benjamin's estate was probated #8839 at York County Registry of Probate in Alfred, ME. 7 Jan. 1862. Document 1. NATHAN HAWKES, APPLETON MAINE,
WITH HIS PRIZE-WINNING PLOW
COURTESY ELIZABETH CONNERS

17 Jan. 1858 Durham (State VR) ae. 69-7-0. Buried Lunt Cemetery Durham (State VR).

Nathan's birth has not been found in the vital records of Windham although all evidence points to his being born there. His death certificate gives his place of birth as Windham. (Constance Footman, Clerk of Durham). Stackpole in his History of Durham gives China, ME as the place of birth but this appears erroneous as it refers to the residence of his father Nathaniel in his advanced years. In 1854, the year of Nathan's death, Durham was changed from Cumberland County to Androscoggin County and no probate record has been found in either county.

When very young, Nathan went to Durham, ME to live with the family of Joseph Estes and learn from him the trade of tanner and harness maker. Nearly all the families in the southern part of the town where Joseph Estes lived were members of the Society of Friends, including the Douglas, Jones, Varney, Pinkham and Collins families; all of whom have intermarried with various branches of the Hawkes family. The Friends, oldest religious society in Durham, had been established in the home of Joseph Estes in 1775. This home later became known as the Hawkes house because it was long occupied by Nathan Hawkes. A one story house with a two story porch, it became an historic landmark until it burned in 1894. A Friends Meeting house was built nearby but when it burned in 1829, the Society once again worshipped in the Hawkes house until a new church was built. The church records burned in 1852.

At a town meeting in 1810 Nathan Hawkes was among those named as constituting school district #2. Schools were ungraded, having a summer term and a winter term of ten weeks each. About 1820 John Rogers came from Lynn, MA to begin the manufacture of Morocco shoes. Three firms were established and the town became known as "shoe town" and both men and women were employed. Nathan Hawkes succeeded Joseph Estes at the tannery and harness shop, carrying it on for many years. His store was at South Durham. Meanwhile he married Mary Winslow of nearby Falmouth and they raised a large family of thirteen children.

The United States census records list them as follows for the years 1810 through 1850 in the town of Durham, Cumb. Co., ME:

In 1810 his household consists of one male 26-45 (Nathan), 1 female 16-25 (wife Mary) and 2 females under 10 (Maria and Hannah). (1810 census M252 Reel 11, p. 100).

In 1820 the size of his household has increased from 4 to 10. There is 1 male child under 10 (Joseph) 1 male 16-25 (relationship unknown) and 1 male 26-45 (Nathan). There are four females under the age of 10 (Lucy, Miriam, Lydia, and Sybil), 2 females 10-15 (Hannah and Maria) and 1 female 26-45 (wife Mary). (1820 census M33, Reel 34, p. 414).

By 1830 there are 14 in the household. 1 male is listed as under 5 (Nathan), 1 male 5-10 (Isaiah) 1 male 15-20 (Joseph) 1 male 40-50 (Nathan) and another male 70-80 (perhaps Nathan's father-in-law Job Winslow, b. 1745, widowed 1824, d. 1833). Females in the household number eight. There is one female under 5 (Mary), 2 females 5-10 (Cynthia and Lucy), 2 females 10-15 (Miriam and Lydia), 1 female 15-20 (Sybil), 1 female 40-50 (wife Mary) and another female 70-80 (perhaps Nathan's mother, Mercy Jones Hawkes). (1830 census M 19, Reel 46, p. 51).

Between the censuses of 1820 and 1830 the first two daughters born to Nathan and Mary have married and left home. Maria married John Varney in 1829 and Hannah married Francis Hussey in 1825. Son Job has died, according to Bible record although Stackpole gives Job's death date as 1833.

In 1840 Nathan Hawkes' family numbers 5 males and 4 females. The males include 1 age 5-10 (Jeremiah) 1 age 10-15 (Nathan), another 15-20 (Isaiah) 1 age 20-30 (Joseph) and 1 age 50-60 (Nathan). The females include one 10-15 (Mary) one 15-20 (Cynthia) and one 50-60 (wife Mary) and one 70-80 (relationship unknown). (1840 census M 704, Reel 139, p. 480).

Since the 1830 census four daughters have married - Sybil to Samuel Hussey, Lydia to Amos Varney, Miriam to George Sutherland, and Lucy to Oliver Stoddard.

In 1850 the widow Mary appears age 62, property value $1500 with son Isaiah 26, farmer, property $800, his wife Sarah T. 25 and their daughter Edwina L., also Nathan Varney 16, farmer, attending school, son of Nathan's daughter Lydia, and Nathan's youngest son Jeremiah Hawkes 17, farmer, in school. All born in Maine. The son Joseph was married and living in China, Kennebec Co., ME where the census shows him age 39, farmer, with wife Lydia F. age 36 and Sarah A. 12, all born in ME. Son Nathan also married, was living in Appleton, ME where the census shows him age 24, farmer, wife Charlotte 23, and living with them Ellen Martin, age 15, in school. All born in ME.

He removed to Appleton, Knox Co., ME (not Appleton, Wisc. as stated in History of Durham) where he became a tanner and an inventor. October 16, 1866 he applied for patent of his combined cultivator and ditcher. (Annual Report of the Commissioner of Patents, 1866, p. 1307) A description of the invention appears in the application and a picture is on p. 881. The implement was for hoeing, subsoiling or shallower ploughing or the planting of potatoes or grain. Nathan took this ditching plow to the trial of plows sponsored by the New York State Agricultural Society in Utica, NY in Sept. 1867 where he was awarded "first premium", a gold medal suitably inscribed, which is now one of the most prized possessions of one of his descendants. A detailed account of the trial and description of Nathan's plow may be found in Transaction of the N.Y. State Agricultural Society for the year 1867, Printing House of Charles Van Benthuysen and Sons, Albany. Nathan received Letters Patent for his Door Knob Attachments #311,753 on 3 Feb. 1885. "This invention relates to inside fastenings for knob-spindles in which a sliding plate having a key-hole slot therein is adapted to be moved in and out of position for holding the spindle from turning. The object of this invention is to adapt such locking-plate to be operated by a very slight movement of the hand, and to be held in both locking and unlocking position be either friction or gravity" (Annual Report of the Commissioner of Patents, 1885).

Nathan and Charlotte are buried in the Pine Grove Cemetery in Appleton, located on a grassy hill directly behind the home where they lived and raised their family.

Moses married again in 1825 and had one more child. The births of all of these children were recorded in the records of the Society of Friends at Vassalboro, ME. In 1834 the family moved from Litchfield to St. Albans in Somerset Co., ME. By 1850 one son Albert had died as had the daughter Hannah. Daughters Mary Ann, Mercy, and Sarah Maria had married. Moses is listed in the U.S. census of that year at St. Albans, age 63, farmer, property $500, living with his wife Anna 57, both born ME. Also in the household was Marcene Steward, 18, male. He was perhaps "Stewart" and related to the husband of their daughter Sarah Maria. Caleb was a farmer and a member of the Society of Friends. Born in Windham, Cumberland Co., ME, he removed to Brunswick where his children were born. (1840 census at Brunswick) Between 1840 and 50 he appears to have removed to Richmond in Lincoln Co., ME with his third wife Marcia. The U.S. census for that year shows the family as follows: Caleb 61, farmer, "Mariah" 55, Caroline 23, also Edward C. (or L.) Cook 9, Loring Webber 77 and Sarah C. Webber 76. All were born in Maine except the Webbers who were both born in MA. The 1870 census lists Caleb and Marcia at Manchester, ME. Caleb's death occurred in Manchester, ME on the 60th anniversary of his first marriage.

A few months after the death of Caleb his widow Marcia P. Hawkes made her will on the 30th day of Sept. 1873 as follows: (Kennebec County, ME Probate #5-2200) Marcia P. Hawkes of Manchester, Kennebec County, ME appoints David Lancaster of Farmingdale as executor and authorizes him to sell and convey real estate, being the homestead where she lived. During the period from 1850 through 1863 Charles applied for a number of patents from the United States Patent Offices and these seem to deal mostly with the improvements in printing presses. They included numbers 7413, 7855, 9259, 10670, 12129, 18812, and 39352; the latter being a machine for cutting veneers. "After the death of my wife I give $1000 to my father and his wife Marcia P. Hawkes. If this proves insufficient then my executor may use principal to make them comfortable. After the decease of my wife I give to her sister Mrs. Katie W. Brown, the wife of James T. Brown of Brimfield, $200. After the decease of my wife I give to my brother Rufus P. Hawkes $1000. The residue to the children of said brother who shall be living at the decease of my wife and the issue of any deceased child. Hawkes of Duxbury was appointed to act for the minors; Maria M.

appointed trustee. After the death of Maria M. "we, Francis B., James R., Albert C., and Rufus H. and Mary E. Hawkes, four of the surviving children of Rufus P. received $480 each. Ezra was the ninth child and the youngest son of Nathaniel and Mercy Jones Hawkes. After his mother's death in Windham, ME in 1821, his father bought and gave him a farm in China, ME in return for care for the remainder of his life, until 1825. Ezra had already married and started his large family which was eventually to number 12 children. First of these was born in Gardiner, ME. Ezra was a farmer, blacksmith and stone cutter. Like his parents, he was a member of the Society of Friends whose church records at China record the births of his first 8 children. The United States census shows the family living at China in 1820 and 1830. In 1840, 50 and 60 they are listed at Jackson in Waldo County. Ezra eventually moved to Portland, ME where his wife died in 1871 at the Forrest Ave. home of their son Nathaniel, Jr. Then Ezra went to his married daughter Abby Lane's home in Brooks, ME where he died a few years later. Both buried Portland, ME in Friends' Cemetery.

Ebenezer was born and lived all his life in Saugus. Apparently he left the Quaker faith of his family when he married the daughter of Daniel Hitchings, Revolutionary War soldier, and granddaughter of Elkanah Hawkes who also fought in the Revolution. He was a blacksmith and was called yeoman in an 1822 document. Early Hawkes records show their property abutted those of Caroline Plummer and Ahijah Hawkes, and also refer to administration of estate but this was not found at Essex County Probate Records. The 1800 census shows them with a young man and a young woman living there. The 1810 census for Lynn lists 3 males 26-45 and 1 female 16-26 in addition to Ebenezer and Eunice. The 1820 census places them at Saugus, now a separate town. In 1830 Eunice is recorded, then a widow, at Saugus. The 1850 census shows her at age 84 with real estate $1400, living next to her widowed sister-in-law, Theodate Hawkes and with her was "Asell" or Asahel Hitchings age 73, cordwainer, born MA. Their graves are side by side in the Old Saugus Burial Ground. Ebenezer was probably buried in the Old Burying Ground at Saugus but no stone now marks his grave. She was buried there, the inscription reading Eunice Hawkes died April 26, 1853, age 87. Ebenezer and Eunice had no children.

91. AHIJAH[6] (Ebenezer[5], Samuel[4], Ebenezer[3], John[2], Adam[1])
Son of Ebenezer and Rebecca Alley Hawkes
b. 10 Dec. 1767 (Lynn VR from Records of Society of Friends)
d. 23 Dec. 1838 Saugus
m. 25 Nov. 1807 (Lynn VR, Society of Friends Records) THEODATE PRATT, called Daty, daughter of Richard Jr. and Theodate Alley Pratt, b. 12 July 1787 (Lynn VR), d. 26 Mar. 1862 Saugus (State VR)

Born the second son in a large Quaker family on the ancestral farm, Ahijah grew up at Hawkes Corner, North Saugus. When his father died and older brother married, Ahijah remained for 13 years as head of the family, caring for his widowed mother and six younger sisters along with his younger brother William.

About 1800 he built the house which was to become his home after marriage, a large frame house occupying the land on the south west corner of Hawkes Corner. Ahijah built this house as a consequence of the passing of the Newburyport Turnpike through his ancestral acres in North Saugus. It was not so pretentious as the mansion nearby of Dr. Cheever but like that place it owed its location to the rose colored but unrealized visions of enhanced values of real estate which attended the opening of the turnpike.

Ahijah Hawkes was a single man when he built the house and he did not unduly hurry settling affairs of life. In common with other Yankees, he liked to get a bargain. It is related of him that while still a bachelor, he attended an auction of household furniture and brought home a cradle. Laughed at for his apparently useless purchase, he put it away in the new, unoccupied house.

In 1807 the house was waiting for a tenant. Ahijah Hawkes was 40 years old. In his attendance at Friends' meetings on Wolf Hill, he had frequently tarried at the home of Richard Pratt on Market St. In the year above mentioned, Richard Pratt's daughter Daty or Theodate was 20 years old and on Nov. 25, 1807, Ahijah and Theodate were married and thereafter lived in the new house and she rocked the cradle for 12 children in later years. The cradle is still in the family of one of Ahijah's descendants.

The record of their marriage has been recorded and may be found on microfilm at the RI Historical Society in Providence, RI. It is as follows: Ahijah Hawkes and Daty Pratt, 11th month, 25th day, 1807. Ahijah Hawkes of Lynn in the County of Essex and State of MA, son of Ebenezer Hawkes, late of said Lynn, deceased, and Rebecca, his wife, and Daty Pratt, the daughter of Richard Pratt, Jr. of said Lynn and Theodate his wife, having declared their intentions of taking each other in marriage before several monthly meetings of the people called Quakers in the county aforesaid, according to the good order used among them: their proceedings after due inquiry and deliberate consideration thereof were allowed by the said meetings, they, appearing clear of all others, and having consent of parents and all concerned, now these are to certify all whom it may concern that for the full accomplishments of their said intentions this 25th day of the 11th month 1807, they, the said Ahijah Hawkes and Daty Pratt appeared at a public assembly of the aforesaid people and others in the meeting house in said Lynn and he the said Ahijah Hawkes, taking the said Pratt by the hand, did openly declare that he took her to be his wife, promising through divine assistance to be unto her a true and affectionate husband until it shall please the Lord by death to separate them. And this Daty Pratt did then and there in like manner declare that she took the said Ahijah Hawkes to be her husband promising through divine assistance to be unto him a true and faithful wife until it shall please the Lord by death to separate them or words of like import and the said Ahijah Hawkes and Daty Pratt as a further confirmation thereof have here unto set their hands. She, after the custom of marriage, assuming the name of her husband signed Ahijah Hawkes, Daty Hawkes. And we whose names are here unto subscribed being present with others at the consumation of their said marriage as witnesses thereunto set our hands the day and year above written. And these names include Lydia Johnson, Ebenezer Hawkes, Stephen Smith, Jr., William Hawkes, surnames Gardner, Bulfinch, Dow, Eunice Collins Alley; the surnames Breed, Collins; Richard Holden, Richard Pratt, Theodate Pratt, Rebecca Hawkes, Abigail, Elizabeth and Anna Hawkes, Jonathan Shillaber, Joseph Hawkes, Deliverance, Adam, Rebecca, Nathan, Sarah, Sarah, Eunice and Lydia Hawkes. There were numerous others who signed, bringing the total to 55 plus the bride and groom.

Ahijah's house remained standing and in possession of his family and descendants until there appeared in the Daily Record on Jan. 15, 1969 the following notice: Because Saugus Town Meeting members couldn't agree on a site or come up with $20,000 for expenses, the Ahijah Hawkes homestead, built there about 1800, was sold to the owners of the Kernwood Restaurants in Malden and Lynnfield and will be attached to the latter on Salem St. The homestead is on the grounds of the shopping center on Rt. 1, Saugus and has to go to make way for expansion. Hawkes was a Quaker and the first chairman of the Saugus Board of Selectmen in 1815.

Later it was found unfeasable to remove the house and so it was pulled down about 1970.

An early picture of Ahijah's house may be seen in Hearths and Homes of Old Lynn, p. 334, by Nathan Mortimer Hawkes.

Between 1808 and 1824 twelve children were born to Ahijah and Daty. The vital records for the entire family were recorded in stitches on an old sampler, for many years in possession of their descendant,

Charles Robinson. A photostatic copy of this is to be found in the scrapbooks of the Adam Hawkes Family Association. During this period Ahijah became prominent in town affairs, playing a vigorous role in the separation of Saugus from Lynn. He became chairman of the Board of Selectmen for the first three years of its corporate existence from 1815 - 18, along with Jonathan Makepeace and Richard Mansfield. Apparently family and town responsibilities, together with running the farm, occupied Ahijah's full time. A review of the Essex County deed books does not show any transfer of property either as grantor or grantee. He died intestate in 1838 and although the Essex County Register of Probate does not now include papers of administration, there is a typed copy of same in the old files of the family association including the following information: To Daniel A. White, Esquire, Judge of Probate, County of Essex, as directed by you, we, the subscribers, being sworn and affirmed, have divided the estate of the late Ahijah Hawkes of Saugus among his heirs and do assign them their several proportions - #1 To Rebecca Taylor, daughter of Ahijah and wife of Geo George W. Taylor of the city of New York, a woodlot numbered four on a plan drawn by Jacob Purinton, being a part of the great wood lot so called, bounds and abutters named, containing 10 acres and 8 poles; also the eastern part of Sweetser pasture, bounds and abutters named; 6 acres; also three quarters of the cow barn standing on the home field, together with the right of way to same. #2 To Ahijah Hawkes, Jr., woodlot number three, bounds and abutters named, 10 acres and 127 poles; also the pidgeon stand lot so called, bounds and abutters given, 2 acres; also part of Dexter Marsh, bounds and abutters given, containing 6 acres; also privilege to pass and repass to and from above lot for all necessary purposes in the usual way over land herein set off to Stephen E. Hawkes and to Lewis P. The first lot in said farm contains about 3/4 acre, boundaries and abutters stated; also a lot containing about 2 acres called Neck Marsh on the Saugus River; also 4/7 or 42 feet on the west end of the barn standing on the home field with a privilege for the said 4/7ths to stand, a right in the cow yard and in 2 rods of land on the north side of the barn for a way and the usual and necessary purpose of the barn as set forth in the return of the committee appointed to set off the dower of widow Daty Hawkes. #4 To Richard Hawkes, northerly part of the home field which was occupied by said Richard in the lifetime of Ahijah Hawkes aforesaid and which was conveyed to said Richard by said Ahijah but the consideration therefore not paid, boundaries given, easterly on the road leading from Lowell to Lynn containing 6 acres and 177 poles; also the old orchard so called containing about 1 1/4 acres; also the rye field on the old road running to the town road, description given, containing about 4 1/4 acres; also the pig sty lot situated in the angle made by the Newburyport Turnpike and the Reading Road, description and abutters stated. #5 To Stephen Hawkes the Chelson Hill field so called, containing about 5 acres, bounded easterly on land belonging to the linen factory; also the Bowler field, abutters given, containing about 15 acres; also the Hill Pasture so called, containing about 15 acres, description given; also a part of Dexter's Marsh bounded northerly by a ditch on the land herein set off to Samuel Hawkes, etc., etc. containing about 1 acre. #6 To William Hawkes, the Hussey wood lot, boundaries and abutters stated; also the western part of Sweetser pasture, description given, bounded southerly on land herein set off to Samuel Hawkes containing about 25 acres and including 3 lots, Sweetser Sweetser's Plain, Sweetser's Field and Square Meadow, bounds given. #7 It is to be noted that #7 has been deleted from the report. By referring to the order of children listed it is apparent that this would refer to the son Samuel. It is known that he inherited Close Hill and a considerable amount of property in that vicinity at Hawkes Corner. #8 To Tacy P. Hawkes, woodlot number five on the plan aforesaid in the great woodlot, bounds given and abutters; also a lot of salt marsh in Rumney Marsh so called containing about 3 acres. #9 To Deborah Hawkes, a minor daughter of Ahijah aforesaid deceased, the wood lot number one in the plan drawn by Jacob Purinton, bounds and abutters stated, contains about 14 acres and 115 poles; also 2 acres of salt marsh on Birch Island; also 1/4 of the corn house standing on the home field together with the accustomed right of way to the same. #10 To Lewis P. Hawkes, the close field so called, bounded as follows: beginning at the corner of the county road and Newburyport Turnpike and bounding westerly on the said turnpike, northerly and westerly by Hill Pasture, herein set off to Stephen E. Hawkes as the wall now stands, southerly by the land of Daniel Kidder and the aforesaid county road to the place of beginning; also a part of Long Meadow beginning at the Newburyport Turnpike and bounded northerly on the river separating the same from land herein set off to Samuel Hawkes, extending to the end of a wall lying by the side of the river, etc.; also a lot of salt marsh containing 6 acres.

The whole of the real estate described in the above return is situated in Saugus in the County of Essex aforesaid. Dated at Salem this 21st day of May in the year of our Lord One thousand, eight hundred and thirty nine. Signed Joshua Hawkes, Andrew Mansfield, David Mansfield, committee.

After the death of Ahijah, his widow lived on for more than 30 years. Only five of their twelve children ever married. By 1850 in the census for Saugus we find the widow Theodate age 63, as head of the household with property valued at $2500. Living with her was an unmarried son Stephen, age 35, farmer; Samuel, single, age 33, farmer; and a girl Victoria, age 13, in school. This was undoubtedly the daughter of Ahijah Jr. Also in the home was son Lewis P., farmer, and his bride of a few months, Mary A. born in ME. The son Ebenezer, age 40, unmarried, farmer, property value $1800, was living with Betsey Eveleth, age 65, born MA; Sarah Sarah Eveleth, 30, born MA; Abbie A. Eveleth 27; William Haskell 41, cordwainer, born MA; John Briggs, age 32, trader born ME and Mary A. Briggs 30 born NH and Oscar H. Martin age 2. Living nearby was son Richard, age 36, not yet married, farmer, property valued $3800. In his household were Hartwell, age 20, farmer, born NH; Anna, 64, his unmarried aunt, born MA; and Susan Neale, age 18, born Ireland. Also listed as a part of the widow Daty's family, although he was not actually living at home was son William. He had suffered severe brain damage resulting from a fall from a tree. He was sheltered by the family until after his father's death and had shared in the division of the real estate. In 1839 Estes Newhall was appointed his guardian. In 1845 the family could no longer cope with his problems. In the language of the day, he was labeled "idiotic" and was committed to the "insane asylum" at Ipswich, where he remained until his death in 1852. The continuing concern for his welfare is demonstrated in the wills of his two maiden aunts, Abigail and Elizabeth Hawkes. Miss Abigail, in Essex County Probate 41952 bequeathed cash to William, "said William's part to be used by him or his guardian for his benefit if he should live to need it" Miss Elizabeth, in Essex Probate 41962 bequeathed all her cash to her sisters, Anna and Abigail, requesting them to "contribute what they may think fit and needful to the comfort and support of William Hawkes."

iii. EBENEZER, b. 22 June 1811 (Saugus VR), d. unmarried 6 Aug. 1884 Saugus (State VR). Nathan Hawks, writing "In Lynn Woods," pub. Lynn, MA 1893, p. 61-2 recalled:

"Ebenezer Hawkes was a birthright member of the Society of Friends, whose worthy connection he never abandoned nor dishonored. He belonged to that ancient family who derived their origin from the patriarchal Adam Hawkes, and who, established on the lands of their ancestors, have so long given, the very name to the northern ward of the town of Saugus. Of his early history, we can only meagerly speak; but at some period in his early manhood, he suffered an injury from sunstroke, or something of that nature, from the effects of which he never recovered. So sensitive did he always remain to the rays of the sun, that he could not bear the least beam upon his head, and he was therefore never seen abroad without an umbrella. Indeed, no kind of heat that would fall upon his brain could be endured; though the warmth of a kitchen hearth-fire was said sometimes to prove grateful. Nearly always, therefore, he was compelled to be out of doors, and here his natural tastes conducted him to an asylum of inexhaustible pleasures.

"The Great forest of Lynn Woods lay near his home, and amidst its thick and fragrant shades he soon learned to immure himself. Twice every day, in all weather, save the veriest tempests, did he, in his later days at least, flee from the house and betake him to his accustomed paths and hills. Here he became a keen observer, with eye and ear ever alert, and a heart whose mild and quiet impulses were always ready of response to the thousand delightful ways in which Nature ever challenged his attention. It cannot, perhaps, be said that he became at all a man of science; but he gave abundant evidence of being thoroughly schooled as a pupil of Nature. Probably there is not a living creature, save some kinds of insects, now inhabiting this great forest, with whose habits he had not made himself more or less familiar. He often spoke of having observed, dead or living, every wild animal that he had ever heard of as belonging to this section, and some that may be called very rare. Yet he was no collector. No shot from him ever brought down the innocent wood-bird; he would probably have recoiled from a gun as from a serpent. But he penetrated every nook and by-path. His stepping-stones may be found leading over every brook; his rustic seats are seen under trees and shady spots innumerable.

"Often the sportsman or botanist, striking into some path seemingly all abandoned and forgotten, would almost start at the figure of this venerable son of Nature, pensively meditating over a little brook, or listening with almost inspired look to the sound of the wind in the tree-tops. Yet neither was he a dreamer nor an empty enthusiast. He took good note of men and things; he knew the traditions of boundaries and ownership, and could conduct one to a given property with the certainty of a guide-book.

"It was a matter of admiration, the way in which he was wont to appear when least expected. It might perhaps be said that he could not be followed; he would disappear like a partridge, and leave no sign; or again, come upon your path like something risen from the ground. Still, he inspired no terror, not even to a child. Grave and sober he certainly was, but never unsocial, and so neat and pleasant in his habits that nobody that once knew him could meet one more entertaining.

"Such a life is worth living. He was not indigent; but being prudent and frugal in all his ways, a little, well tended, was enough for him. A faithful disciple, according to his belief, he walked alone indeed, as to men, but who shall say not with the daily companionship of God in His supreme beauty, and of all good spirits that may minister to the devoted and sincere? A short, though it is said, painful illness closed the scene, and led him forth to the full enjoyment, we will hope, of all that beauty of goodness that he had followed so long, as glimpses of sunshine through drifting clouds."

In 1856, Ebenezer called yeoman and farmer, according to Probate #41960 at Salem, Essex County Probate: a petition was presented that "Ebenezer should be put under guardianship." This was signed by Nathan Breed, M.C. Pratt, Estes Newhall and Benajah Purinton. It was so decreed and a distribution was made of his property: 1/3 to Daniel Parker, 1/6 to Leona Robinson, Avis, Theodate and Lewis W., children of his brother Lewis Penn Hawkes.

92. WILLIAM[6] (Ebenezer[5], Samuel[4], Ebenezer[3], John[2], Adam[1])

After the death of his father and the marriage of his older brother Ahijah, 1807, William single, was listed in the 1810 census for Lynn (Saugus) as head of the family. Also included were his mother and four unmarried sisters: Anna, Elizabeth, Rebecca and Abigail. There were two other males, one between 26-45 and one over 45, perhaps hired hands.

Settlement was made in 1824. The brother Ebenezer having died in the interim, distribution was made to the above named brothers and sisters and brother-in-law Gile. The inventory of real estate totaled $10,402. and included such items as mansion house with the land under and yard round the same, a dwelling house with about 2/3 of an acre of land under and adjoining the same, now occupied by Joseph Hawkes, the farm house with about 1 1/2 acres of land under and adjoining the same farm, boundaries given, about 70 acres of wood land in the great lot, about 3 acres of tillage land in the Hill Field, about 7 acres of wood pasture land in the Lower Plain, about 4 acres pasture land near the Factory Pond, about 18 acres in Chelson Hill Pasture including the old orchard and the flat land adjoining Newburyport Turnpike, about 4 acres partly tillage, partly meadow, between the factory and turnpike, about 5 acres meadow at Dexter's Marsh, about 30 acres land in home pasture, about 14 acres tillage land in home field, barn and shed with the land under and cow yard together with the privilege to pass around the barn, 6 acres of salt marsh at Lower Division, cider house and mill with the privilege to from and around the same. Son of John and Jerusha Merriam Hawkes
b. 19 April 1762 (Lynn VR)
d. unknown

Samuel was mentioned in his father's will in 1814. He was "of Hartford, CT" in 1816 and 1817. A search of early census records in CT does not reveal his name there although in 1820 the name Sarah Hawkes appears in Hartford, roll 101 of Hartford County. The Mormon Computer File Index mentions no Samuel in CT. Later census records of CT list no Samuel although there are several Hawks names in Hartford, CT for the 1850 census.

94. JOHN[6] (John[5], Samuel[4], Ebenezer[3], John[2], Adam[1])
Son of John and Jerusha Merriam Hawkes
b. 15 May 1764 (Lynn VR Society of Friends Records)
d. between 2 Oct. 1813 and 17 Jan. 1814 Lynn
m. (1) 21st day 5th month 1789 Salem, MA (Lynn VR, Society of Friends Records) REBECCA SHILLABER, daughter of Walter and Sarah Nichols Shillaber, Quakers, sister of Jonathan Shillaber who married John's sister Esther, b. _____, d. 16 Aug. 1803 Lynn (Salem Gazette).
m. (2) 2 Jan. 1804 (Lynn VR, intentions also listed) FANNY BACHELOR (Lynn VR), b. _____ (not in Lynn VR), d. _____ (not in Lynn or Saugus VR).

John was a cordwainer. He was called John Jr. The Quaker record (Vol. NA, p. 210) at Friends Church, Lynn states: John Hawkes, cordwainer, Lynn, son of John and Jerusha Hawkes married Rebecca Shillaber, daughter of Walter and Sarah his wife. Among the witnesses present were John, Hannah, Sarah, and Joseph Hawkes, Mary, Jonathan and a second Jonathan Shillaber, and Joseph Ervin. The second marriage is questioned although recorded in the Lynn VR and also the JMH manuscript as it does not appear to be substantiated by the U.S. census records. The 1810 census shows John living in Lynn with 1 son under 10 years. His first wife had died. There is no indication of where the other children were but it is assumed they were being cared for by relatives. No wife appears in this record. John died three years later according to Essex Probate. He is said to have died as the result of a broken neck suffered when he fell from a runaway horse. John made his will 2 Oct. 1813 and it was proved at Essex County Probate Court 17 Jan. 1814. A recent search at Essex Probate Court did not reveal it but the following is a typed copy of the will and inventory found in the early Adam Hawkes Family Association records. It is noted that the daughter Sally sued James Gardner, executor, in 1825 for her portion of the legacy. Will of John Hawkes, cordwainer: First of all I order my three sons, John, David and Jonathan to pay all my just debts and funeral charges together with the following legacies viz to my daughter Lydia Estes, $25 to be paid in 6 months after my decease and to my daughter Sally Hawkes $40 to be paid her as soon as she becomes 18 years old with interest after one year from my decease. After the payment of the above debts and legacies, I give the remainder of my estate, real and personal, equally to my aforesaid sons and their heirs on condition that they the said sons keep and perform in due season all the covenants and obligations made by me to my father John Hawks and my brother Samuel Hawkes relative to their support. On this my last will I name and appoint James Gardner executor 2 Oct. 1813. Witnesses: Benjamin Hudson, Joseph Hawkes, William Newhall. The will was proved 17 Jan. 1814. His inventory included house and land, about 1/2 acre, front field about 3 acres, school house pasture 10 acres, front pasture about 1 acre, brick yard field about - acres, upper field 1 acre, swamp field 1 acre, 10 acre lot 10 acres, one undivided half of Samuel's garden, 1 undivided half of 600 lot three acres, 1 undivided half of Townsend lot 2 acres. Deeds 162-216) A birthright member of the Society of Friends, Joseph, a cordwainer, married outside of the faith when he married Nancy Atwell, a Congregationalist, in 1799. Her exact date of birth and parentage are not recorded in the Lynn VR, however there were many Atwells there at the time and Ezekiel and Elizabeth Breed Atwell who were married in Lynn 16 July 1778 had 12 children listed in the Lynn VR from 1779 to 1802 and she may have been an unrecorded member of that family.

The U.S. census for 1800 shows Joseph and Nancy at Lynn with a daughter under 10 and a male over 45. In 1810 they are shown with 2 daughters under 10, 1 son under 10 and 3 additional adult males. In the 1850 census for Lynn, Joseph was apparently deceased while Charles, 32, was recorded as head of the family, a cordwainer, property value $500, Nancy the widow age 66, also George, listed erroneously as age 73, cordwainer. Mathew was called yeoman and husbandman. He was born in Saugus, a birthright member of the Society of Friends, and he lived there all his life. His wife was a descendant of the prominent Stocker and Newhall families of Lynn. Together they raised a large family of 13 children, keeping a record of births and deaths in the Family Bible as was customary. This record was passed down in the family until 1951 when Frederick A. Phillips, 31 Exchange St., Rochester, NY, presented it to the New England Historic Genealogical Society where it remains in their manuscript collection. A copy of this is in the Adam Hawkes Family Association records.

Although a member of the Society of Friends, Matthew is undoubtedly the Matthew Jr. named in the National Archives Index for the War of 1812 as a private who served in Brimblecom's Reg't. in Massachusetts Militia.

Mathew is said to have been interred in a tomb on his own land. His will, written on 22 Oct. 1846 was probated at Essex County Probate Court on 16 Feb. 1847, #41971, Mathew, yeoman, of Saugus Elbridge G. Hawkes was appointed executor the 3rd Tuesday of February, 1947. The will was as follows: First to beloved wife Charlotte all household furniture to be at her sole use and disposal and if she shall survive me my will is that she be maintained by my sons Elbridge G. and Wesley with the right on her part to live with either of them as she may prefer. Second, it is my intention that my two grandchildren, son and daughter of my deceased daughter Charlotte, my daughter Mary Ann, wife of William P. Newhall, Sarah Ann and Maria, and my sons Alfred, Albert, Mackiness, George P. and Andrew shall have no part of my estate, real or personal. Third, after payment of just debts and funeral charges by executor I give and bequeath to my sons Elbridge G. and Wesley all the residue of my estate, real and personal upon the condition however that they shall support my wife Charlotte in a comfortable and respectable manner during her natural life with a right on her part to live with either of them but both are to contribute equally to her support and to pay the interest which may accrue upon the mortgages on my real estate. After the decease of my said wife all residue of my estate, real and personal is to go to Elbridge G. and Wesley, their heirs and assigns forever to be equally divided between them if they shall have complied with and faithfully performed the condition aforesaid but if they or either of them shall have refused or neglected to do so then they or either of them so neglecting or refusing shall forfeit all share in my said estate and the one who shall have complied with and faithfully performed said conditions shall have the share of him who has failed to do so, but if both shall fail in the condition aforesaid then my wife is to have the improvement of my said estate, real and personal to her own use and benefit for and during her natural life and upon her decease the said estate to go to my heirs at law. Fourth, It is my wish and I direct that the tomb now on my land be kept and used by all my children as a family tomb. Lastly, I appoint my son Elbridge G. Hawkes sole executor of this my last will and testament. In witness whereof

I hereunto set my hand and seal this 22nd day of Oct. A.D. 1846. Mathew Hawks. Witnesses Samuel Fiske, David M. Hollis, Eliza Bean. Inventory included real estate, 31 1/2 acres and buildings thereon encumbered by mortgages. Charles W. Hawkes (Wesley) of Boston, Suffolk County, cordwainer, petitioned that Elbridge Gerry Hawkes has not rendered an account and more than five years have elapsed since he was appointed executor. C. W. Hawkes petitioned for settlement. Petition and complaint of Alfred Hawkes of Boston 3 Oct. 1854 said Wesley died intestate Aug. 1853 and Alfred appointed administrator of his estate. Alfred now requested Elbridge Gerry to distribute Mathew's real estate. Agreement to postponement "until Elbridge G. Hawkes returned to Lynn; he now being in the Western Country." Differences were settled out of court 5 Oct. 1852. 1854 a further petition was made.

Within the year following Matthew's death, the widow Charlotte died intestate. (Essex County Probate #41957 dated 5 Oct. 1847) Alfred Hawkes, "the oldest son" was appointed administrator. The inventory was prepared by Alfred Hawkes of Boston, Suffolk County, Gentleman; George P. Hawkes of Boston, Albert Hawkes of Lowell. No real estate; small personal inventory. Named in settlement were: Mary A. Newhall, Maria S. Hawkes, C. W. Hawkes (Wesley), George P. Hawkes, Albert Hawkes and O. G. Hawkes. (?Elbridge Gerry)

Alfred, called gentleman, of Boston, was a teamster who lived at 24 N. Bennet St. After his first wife's death, Alfred asked Suffolk County Probate Court to appoint Martha G. Smith of Chelsea guardian of Fanny as she was under 14. Martha was the child's aunt who later became her stepmother. She was appointed guardian 26 May 1862. The estate of Fanny Hawkes of Chelsea, minor, was then appraised including one twelfth undivided part of house and land on north side of St. James St., Roxbury, value $2000, subject to mortgage $600. The guardian then requested real estate be sold and proceeds be invested "as it would be so much better for Fanny and all concerned": So ordered Suffolk Probate #44017.

When Alfred died intestate, Charles H. Butler was appointed administrator 1 May 1882. Heirs were listed as Harrison of Chelsea, son; Fanny F. Hawkes Smith, of 24 N. Bennet St. Boston, daughter; and the widow Martha G. The house was offered at auction, described as a 3 1/2 story brick building, 1000 ft. of land, value $4500. Fanny married shortly after her father's death. (Suffolk Probate #64152).

iv. ELBRIDGE GERRY (called son of Mathew and Sally in Lynn VR), b. 10 Mar. 1811 Saugus (Lynn VR), d. 5 Dec. 1877 (Essex Probate #41961), m. (intentions) 23 Dec. 1832 (Saugus VR and Lynn VR) MARTHA B. CLARK of Lynn, daughter of Theophilus and Mary Burrill Clark (Lynn VR), b. 29 Aug. 1813 (Lynn VR), d. alive 1879 (probate), m. (2) (family tradition no document found) ROSE ZEURES RICHARDSON, daughter of Frederick and Patience Mallory Richardson, b. 31 Oct. 1833 Littleton, VT (Reference: AHFA early records, but no Littleton found in Atlas for VT. According to 1860 census of Saugus she was b. ca. 1835; not found in VT VR), d. 25 Dec. 1913 Torrington, CT. (Reference: undertaker's record).

Elbridge Gerry grew up in Saugus and married Martha B. Clark who descended from two prominent Lynn families, the Burrills and the Clarks. On 16 Nov. 1849 their young daughter Charlotte M. was married to Thomas Hill at Brattleboro, VT by R. W. Clark. The following year the census shows her back with the family in Saugus.

Elbridge Gerry was listed in the United States census for 1850 at Saugus as 39, a shoe manufacturer, property value $3000. In his household were his wife Martha B. 37 and his daughter Charlotte M. 17, also George Campbell laborer, Henry Wilson 25 gold beater, b. Eng., Mary Wilson 25, born CT and Charles H. Wilson 2, born NY. In 1860 Elbridge Gerry was listed as a trader, real estate decreased to $400. The household included his wife Martha B. 47, daughter Charlotte 26, now a teacher, and Rose Richardson, 25, born VT.

By 1870 the picture had changed. Elbridge Gerry 58, was now a farmer, real estate $3000, personal property $500. The household included Rose Z. 34, born VT, keeping house, Nellie F. 7 in school, born MI, Edward G. 6, in school, born MA, George E. 4, at home, born MA and Rose B. 2 at home, born MA. In a separate listing, also at Saugus were Martha 56, employed in a dry goods store, property $2500, and Charlotte 37, employed at post office. The JMH manuscript tells us he was a farmer in East Saugus and that in the fall of 1876 he went to Florida with Dr. John Milton Hawkes and spent the winter at Hawks Park, now Edgewater Beach. He liked the climate and the country and entered a government homestead intending to remove his family there; however he returned to Saugus where he died suddenly as a result of an abscess of the liver on 5 Dec. 1877.

As he died intestate, both Rose and Martha petitioned to be appointed administratrix. Rose named as next of kin her children Nellie F., Edward G., George E., Rose E., and Alice M. and also Martha's daughter Charlotte, now called the wife of Charles Mills. The judge of probate appointed Martha as administratrix. Rose appealed the decision to the Supreme Judicial Court, giving as her reasons "that she the said Rose Z. Hawkes was the only legal wife of said Elbridge Gerry Hawkes at the time of his decease and was a fit and competent person to administer on his estate and was entitled to be appointed administratrix, she never having relinquished her right to said administration." Dated at Salem 20 April 1878. At the November term of Supreme Judicial Court Essex County 1879 the decree of the judge of probate was affirmed and probate office so notified 19 Nov. 1879. (Essex County Probate #41961).

In later years Rose lived with her married daughter Alice at 163 Workman Ave., Torrington, CT where she died in 1913. Her age 61-2-25 and date of birth as given on death certificate appears to be an error according to the several reports on census records. The census states she was born in VT; death record gives birth information as above, however a search of the VT vital records does not reveal such a birth. A Rosina Jane Richardson was born in VT 1 May 1835, daughter of Robert. Neither Saugus nor Lynn VR give birth information either.

The estate of Wesley Hawkes alias Charles Wesley Hawkes of Boston, cordwainer, deceased, was probated in Suffolk County Probate Court 1854 (#39151) Although the death record given in the State VR said he was unmarried at time of death, the papers of administration show a document in which JULIAN Hawkes, widow of Wesley Hawkes requested permission to have Alfred Hawkes, Wesley's brother, be appointed administrator 10 July 1854. This was done. The inventory of real estate showed property in Saugus described in a mortgage to John Hilton dated 15 Jan. 1835 and another mortgage to Ivory Chadwell dated 28 June 1841, also real estate in Saugus described in a deed from Asa T. Newhall to Matthew Hawkes. No known children.

xiii. FILLMORE, b. 20 May 1828 (Lynn VR), d. young 18 May 1832 (Family Bible record).

It should be noted that in addition to Matthew #35 and his son Matthew #96, there was another pair of Matthews, father and son. Although they have not been properly documented, there is considerable evidence of them in the vital records and census records and land records. They are definitely four separate persons. The geographic proximity and also the duplication of several children's names not found elsewhere, for example Micajah, leads us to believe there was a close relationship although we cannot say just what.

One of these family groups belonged to the Society of Friends and lived in Saugus. The others were members of the Congregational Universalist Church and resided in Lynn. This second set of Matthews is as follows:

Matthew m. 13 Nov. 1792, also intentions (Lynn VR) Univ. Church Record - Saugus, Betsey Sweetser, also given as 10 Jan. 1794 (Lynn VR) Elizabeth Sweetser. d. 16 Nov. 1863 Eastport, Washington County, ME (Family Records of Eastport, ME by Beulah Hutchinson Morse, Topsham Brunswick DAR, 1949, p. 124).
m. 6 Aug. 1815 Lynn, MA (VR), also ME State Archives Film #0154 and National Archives 1812 pension records, WC 21264) SARAH A. WHEELER (called Sally), b. 29 Apr. 1795 Lynn (VR), d. 30 June 1879 Eastport, Washington County, ME (Family Records of Eastport by Morse) daughter of Raphael and Mary Wheeler.

Born a twin, Michajah survived, while the other twin, Samuel, lived only a few weeks. He was educated at Phillips Exeter Academy and then went to Boston where he studied medicine with Dr. William Ingalls. Before completing his studies, the War of 1812 started and he volunteered for service. He was a birthright member of the Society of Friends, yet the War of 1812 found him serving aboard the USS Hornet as a Surgeon's Mate. In command of the armed sailing ship was Captain James Lawrence, who would later utter those immortal words which would be passed down from generation to generation of men in the US Navy "Don't give up the ship!" A detailed account of events in the early months of 1813 can be found in "Blue Jackets of 1812" by Willis Abbott 1887, and "War of 1812" by Francis F. Beirne 1949. From these one can readily imagine the exciting part played by surgeon's mate, Micajah C. Hawkes! The Hornet was a sloop-rigged vessel with 18 guns. In January 1813 for eighteen days she blockaded the British treasure ship "Bonne Citoyenne" in the South Atlantic, off San Salvador (where Columbus had arrived in 1492), about 4 degrees north of the eastern point of Cuba). When a second British ship bore down upon them, Captain Lawrence skillfully manouvered a departure. The Hornet cruised in waters south of the equator, off the coast of Brazil, and succeeded in taking many valuable prizes. Then on Feb. 24, near the mouth of the Demarara River she met the British man-o'-war brig "Peacock", commanded by Captain William Peake. After a brief but devastating battle, during which Captain Peake was slain, the Peacock sank. The Americans lost one man in the fight, and three more who had gone aboard the Peacock when she sank. All the British who could be saved were brought aboard the Hornet; five British had been killed and 90 wounded. The Peacock had carried a crew of 210 men. Now Captain Lawrence, with his own crew fatigued from the flight, realized he was far from home, overcrowded with prisoners, and short of water, so he determined to return to his home port. Every effort was made to make the prisoners comfortable. Most of them had lost clothing and possessions when the Peacock went down; they now received replacements generously collected and donated by the Hornet's crew. After about a month, they arrived at Holmes' Hole, at Martha's Vineyard, off the coast of Massachusetts. News of the great victory spread; Captain Lawrence became hero of the hour. Songs were sung praising the courage of the brave officers and crew of the Hornet, and the morale of the American people received a great boost.

As a result of his services to the wounded, Micajah obtained much surgical knowledge. During the combat he himself received a leg wound which left him slightly lame for life.

After his return to civilian life, Micajah returned to Boston and resumed his medical studies, receiving his diploma in 1814 at the Medical School connected with Brown University. The following year he was married to Sally Wheeler. A sample of her needlework accomplishments is extant: in Antiques Magazine Aug. 1976, "some print sources of New England schoolgirl art" by Jane C. Nylander, curator of textiles, Old Sturbridge Village, p. 292-301, shows a picture labeled Figure eight, the Parting of Hector and Andromache, by Sally Wheeler. Silk embroidery with water color on silk, 13 1/2 x 12 inches.

Micajah practiced medicine in Boston after his marriage until 1817 when, in response to an invitation from the citizens of Eastport, he moved there for practice for the remainder of his life. Eastport was an island community which had been much involved in the War of 1812, on the border between New Brunswick, Canada and Maine, which was still a part of Massachusetts. After the war, it remained under martial law from 11 July 1814 to 30 June 1818, being ruled by Officers of the British Army. It was during this period that Micajah and his new wife moved there, where Samuel Wheeler was already located as an early pioneer. On the last day of June 1818 however, there was great celebration as international flags were exchanged and the jurisdiction was returned to Massachusetts. Originally called "Plantation #8", Eastport was incorporated in Washington Co. in 1798, and as early as 1801 it had a Masonic Lodge and hall.

Dr. James A. Spaulding, in his book Maine Physicians of 1820", published by the Lewiston Journal Printshop, 1928, wrote of Micajah as follows:

"The student of American Medical History will not find another physician who so much occupied the public gaze for the ten years between 1820 and 1830 as Dr. Micajah Collins Hawkes of Eastport. For, during those years, the medical magazines and newspapers of the day made very frequent mention of the famous case of Lowell vs. Faxon and Hawkes.

The case of Lowell vs. Faxon and Hawkes, the central point in the career of Dr. Hawkes, was substantially this: Charles Lowell was thrown from a horse and dislocated a hip joint. Dr. Faxon of Lubec was called, but had sense enough to see that he knew nothing of so complex an injury, and was glad to call in Dr. Hawkes, who, to his own satisfaction, reduced the dislocation. Dr. Faxon, by the way, was a plain country doctor, a medical graduate of Brown in 1787, and was about 60, but he knew nothing of surgery. When the dislocation returned, a few days later, malpractice was charged against both attending physicians.

It was generally admitted that the plaintiff had left his bed and walked a considerable distance within two weeks after the dislocation had been reduced. Contributory negligence was also set up as a defense beside the claim on the part of the defendants of the use of ordinary skill.

The case dragged through the Courts for five years or more, one jury differing from another, until finally the Court decided that it must be withdrawn, each to pay his own costs. In this way the case ended for the physicians, but Mr. Lowell walked lame for life, and in his will ordered a post-mortem examination to be made. At that time it was found that all of the physicians were wrong as to the position of the head of the femur. In fact, nothing but the X-rays of today could have settled the diagnosis. Those who are curious, can see the bones with the pelvis in the Warren Anatomical Museum, and near at hand my brochure with a full account of the entire suit. Dr. Nathan Smith, Dr. John C. Warren, Dr. Benjamin Brown, Dr. Buxton, and many others, testified at the various trials.

From this time on, Dr. Hawkes practiced as of old, drove about with his famous horse, "Ridgeway," pulling a chaise with a flamboyant picture of the Good Samaritan on each side of the top. A similar picture was painted on the facade of his hospitable mansion. Those in Eastport should examine the handsome wainscotting within, just as Dr. Hawkes caused it to be made for himself. He also tried to get rid of robins eating his cherries, by tying bells all over the branches of the tree, but it did not work. A good deal concerning Dr. Hawkes can be found in the diary of Mrs. Ayer, already mentioned, for Dr. Hawkes and Dr. Ayer saw a great deal of one another when the Ayers removed to Eastport, about the time of the famous law-suit, and stayed there until the death of Dr. Ayer in 1832. The two men got along nicely together.

Dr. Faxon died in Machias at the age of 65, and Dr. Hawkes flourished into the year 1863, thus living to see service in the War of 1812, and to cheer off the volunteers for the War of '61. Of Dr. Hawkes we can say that what with his contest in the "Hornet," and his battle with Lowell, he fought the "Good Fight" and came off victorious each and every time."

In 1808 Samuel Wheeler became a Selectman. By 1820 the Hawkes were well established at Eastport. That year the Congregational Society decided to raise funds to build a church; Micajah subscribed one share, out of a total of 53, "for the purpose of building a meetinghouse for the use of a Congregational minister" The building cost $10,343.25 and was dedicated 13 Jan. 1820, Rev. Mr. Rand officiating. There were two other churches in the community, a Freewill Baptist and a Calvinist Baptist Church. When it was time for the Congregational Church to secure a minister, it was decided to get one from Harvard College, and so the church became Unitarian from then on. In 1831 this church had the first organ used in public worship in all Eastern Maine. 1822 marked the formation of the Eastport Female Benevolent Society, and a pamphlet printed that year lists the original board of officers, which included: Mrs. Samuel Wheeler, Treasurer, Miss Sally A. Wheeler, Secretary, and Mrs. Micajah Hawkes on the Board of Managers.

Micajah's family appears on the US Census records for 1820 through 1860 at Eastport, Washington Co., Maine. Although the Adam Hawkes Famili Association records list only two children, born 15 and 17 years after the marriage, it appears from the census that there may have been more. In 1820 the household includes one female child under 10; the 1830 census shows the female child now 10-15, and a male child under 5, as well as older persons in the household, who may have been employees. Also in 1840 there was a Margaret Hawkes listed as head of a household in Eastport, between 20 and 30. By 1850 Micajah's family included himself, age 66, physician, property valued at $3000, and his wife Sarah, 55, son Andrew, 19, clerk born in Maine, daughter Mary L., 17, born Maine, B. B. Leavitt, 51, gentleman, property valued at $11,000, Sarah E., 16, born Maine, a female 17, born Maine, and Susan Delesnier, age 46, born New Hampshire. In 1860 Micajah, 74 physician was now worth $10,000 (real estate) and $500 personal property; Sarah W. was 65; Andrew M. K. 28, Samuel R. Byrum 41, apothecary $900-$1700, born Maine with wife Mary L. Hawkes age 24 and daughter Sarah W. 4; also Robert Smith 17 born Nova Scotia, and Samuel D. Leavitt, 24 student at law, born Maine.

Micajah's name may be found on the Pension lists for the War of 1812, National Archives #W029160 and #WC21264.

The file indicates that Micajah Hawkes, M.D., at age 68, resident of Eastport, Washington County, Maine made declaration of his service aboard the sloop "Hornet" during the War of 1812 and applied for bounty lands. He entered service at Boston and received an honorable discharge at New York by the Captain James Lawrence, serving as assistant surgeon. Dates officially established as 22 Oct. 1812 to 10 May 1813. Bounty Claim 30534-160-55. He was granted and received 160 acres and a war pension. W. C. 21264 is the file of the widow Sally Hawkes requesting pension and she was found eligible to receive $8.00 monthly commencing Mar. 9, 1878. Certificate dated Mar. 15, 1879. On 4 Sept. 1882 dropped. "Last pay $8 on 4 June 1879." Dropped for failure to claim. In applying she gave proof of death of her husband on 16 Nov. 1863. An affidavit from City Clerk of Lynn, Massachusetts that she and Micajah were married by George Pickering, Minister of the Gospel, on 6 Aug. 1815, Lynn Town Records, Vol. 6. On 13 June 1878 she deposed that she was 83 years of age; that her husband had been on board the "Hornet" during the engagement with the "Peacock" 24 Feb. 1813; that they had lived in Lynn and Boston until 1817 when they moved to Eastport; that her husband had received a land warrant of 160 acres and a pension under the special act of Congress 11 Apr. 1860. Samuel was born of Quaker parents in Lynn, MA. He inherited from his father Mathew #38 who died in 1805 and as he was still a minor, provisions were made for his guardianship. (Essex Probate 12941) On 18 Apr. 1808, Mathew Hawkes cordwainer, James Gardner Esquire and Jacob Newhall

Gentleman, all of Lynn appeared at Probate Court regarding the need for appointment of guardian for Mathew, the son of Samuel Hawkes of Lynn, cordwainer, deceased. "Samuel Hawkes, minor, nearly 21, son of Mathew Hawkes late of Lynn in said county, cordwainer, deceased made choice of his brother Mathew of Lynn for his guardian" before James Gardner, Justice of the Peace.

He was by 1810 living in Portsmouth, Rockingham County, NH. He was a shoemaker and owned several houses on Deer St. near the river and not far from the railroad station. He appears to have married first Elizabeth McClintock who died of epilepsy on 12 May 1822 at the age of 32. It will be noted that the second marriage took place before the death of the first wife. All children appear to be by the second wife Lucy.

The 1850 census for Portsmouth lists the household as follows: George W. Jefts 35, engineer, property $1000, born MA; Minerva 27, born NH; Susanna 9, NH in school; also Samuel Hawkes, age 62, shoemaker, property value $5000, born MA, wife Lucy Hawkes, 58, born NH; son Samuel A. Hawkes 23, engineer, born NH. Also the 1850 census for Epping, NH gives Samuel Hawkes, age 21, engineer on railroad, born MA. This would appear to be a second listing for Samuel A. above.

Apparently Samuel prospered for he lived in a fashionable section of the city near the river where there were substantial homes and he owned rental properties there as well.

Samuel made and signed his will 6 Jan. 1854 although it was not presented for probate until 8 Sept. 1863. It was witnessed by Charles Annable, Albert W. Parsons, and W. H. Rollins. Item 1 regarding debts and funeral expenses. Item 2 "to Martha, Mary G., Edward and Georgette Pendexter, children of George W. Pendexter, as a token of my love and affection, $100 each, to be paid to them by my executor within 5 years after my death," Item 3 to my son Samuel A. Hawkes, all the rest of my estate, real and personal. Item 4 in case Samuel A. Hawkes shall decease leaving no children, then the above real estate to the above Pendexter children. Item 5 If Samuel A. Hawkes leaves a widow, then to her "the use, occupation and income from my house on Deer St. Portsmouth, numbers 38, 41, and 42, as long as she shall remain unmarried, she keeping the same in repair, meaning hereby to include only so much of the land connected therewith as is included between straight lines running from Deer St. to the railroad. Item 6 I appoint said son Samuel A. Hawkes sole executor. This will was presented for probate 8 Sept. 1863 and proved. Samuel A. Hawkes was appointed executor; Charles Annable and Oliver Gerrish of Portsmouth sureties. On 17 Oct. 1863 Martha H. and Mary A. Pendexter each received $93.33 as legacy in full and their share of legacy due Georgette Pendexter; also on 13 Oct. 1865 Edward Pendexter received the same amount which had been paid to George W. Pendexter for him on 17 Oct. 1863.

Seaman (NH State VR) MARY ANN CHICK of Kittery, ME, daughter of Caleb and Annie Hall Chick, b. _____, d. after 1912.

Samuel A. was a railroad engineer. Apparently there were no children by either his first or second marriage. The 1860 census shows Samuel 33, engineer, born NH and Adeline A. 32, born NH, living at Charlestown, MA. There is a probate record #16241, Rockingham County, NH, giving his death as 21 Nov. 1912. The will was signed 7 Aug. 1897 and was proved 10 Dec. 1912, leaving the entire estate to the widow Mary Ann Hawkes and naming her as executor. On 4 Dec. 1912 inventory prepared by Mary Ann Hawkes listed real estate at $6000 and personal property at $7000, total $13,000. No heirs except widow. Widow living at 166 Deer St. Portsmouth.
